Ants and Men
Inge's Marriage Idea
Hormones and Youth
War, Says Briand

—By Arthur Brisbane—

ON THE ITALIAN ISLAND of Stromboli yesterday there occurred, simultaneously, a severe earthquake and a deadly eruption of the Stromboli volcano.

The earthquake destroyed scores small houses. Burning rocks thrown high into the air by the volcano fell upon little villages, clustered around the base of the volcano.

For thousands of years Stromboli has been a deadly menace, and for thousands of years people have rebuilt their houses, and continued to dwell at the volcano's foot.

And we wonder that ants rebuild when our feet crush their nests in the garden path.

Dean Inge, ruler of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, startles other clergymen with the suggestion that marriages might well be tried for ten ods shorter than "life." The dean would also have "limited marriage contracts," and would have the government recognize them. Only "till death us do part" marriages would receive the blessing of the church.

The Rev. Dr. Mellish, of Brooklyn, replies that Rome tried two kinds of marriage centuries ago, short marriages for unimportant people, lifelong marriages for more important people, but it didn't work.

Dean Inge's suggestion can be proved unwise without dragging in the church, or "spirit."

Marriage is an institution of discipline, devised to make men better, gradually. The process is slow, but it is real.

Besides, the last years of married life ought to be the best, and usually are, in spite of divorce records.

To have, in old age, one friend interested in your troubles, and your symptoms, is precious above all other possessions.

Scientists gathered in Cincinnati are told that new methods of rejuvenation, better than the Voronoff "gland grafting," have been discovered. Compounds made of myster[illegible] will do the [illegible] "hormones" being [illegible] that could never be transplanted.

The old may be made to live a little longer, but science will never discover anything better than friendly companionship. It moves men when out, and makes room for new energy.

The learned Voronoff, who, by the use of monkey [illegible] extends the [illegible] of old men, says "all Americans over [illegible] 50." He does not mean that they actually die, but that they are worn out at 50, and might as well be dead.

There is no doubt that men in America wear out early. Their eyes grow dim, hair white, step slow and knees stiff, too early.

But they GET THINGS DONE, while h is more important than remaining young.

Briand, French foreign minister, warns Europe that, unless it establishes a "United States of Europe" WAR IS CERTAIN.

Representing the most powerful nation in the League of Nations, he no longer believes that league able to keep the world out of war. It is just as well that we kept out of the league. And if we could keep out or get out of the World Court, that would be an improvement.

While Briand says war is certain without a "United States of Europe," France has been holding elaborate army manoeuvres on the Franco-German frontier.

Fifty thousand picked troops marched, and 300 airplanes roared within sight and hearing of the Germans, which did not please them, or look peaceful to them.

By way of confirming Briand's statement about the probability of war, Italy enters on a ten years' project to build a "formidable army, ready to cope with whatever emergency."

It is no secret that France is the emergency that Mussolini and Italy have in mind.

Marconi believes that radio waves will travel off millions of miles through space.

If the sun can send rays of light through 93,000,000 miles of space, there is no reason why radio waves should'n't go as far in the other direction.

This ought to mean that we shall talk to the other planets soon, if they have any inhabitants able to talk.

President Butler, of Columbia College, says that if the Republican party in New York doesn't go wet, as the Democratic party has done, New York State will go Democratic by 500,000. On the other hand, if the Republican party does turn wet, it will beat Governor Roosevelt and the Democrats.

Prohibitionists say that Dr. Butler reminds them of an evil spirit leading the Republican party up on to a high mountain, and offering it everything in sight to turn wet.

NYE PROMISES SLUSH FUND PROBE HERE

Senate Committee Chairman Phones Crooker Agents Have Trailed Big Fund

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

The United States Senate campaign investigating committee is coming to Boston to investigate expenditures in the Massachusetts senatorial fight.

This definite announcement was made today as the result of an "undercover" inquiry in progress for several weeks, following complaint regarding the expenditures of William M. Butler.

Positive indications that the committee would come to Boston probably some time in October, was given by Senator Gerald P. Nye, North Dakota, chairman, at noon today to Conrad W. Crooker, general counsel of the Liberal Civic League, which attacked Butler's expenditures, with the [illegible] publican nomination from Eddie Dowling.

[illegible] called the attention of [illegible] and [illegible] to the West Junior high in the attempt to obtain recruits in already large ranks. Police precautions [illegible] high, but stepped in and herded the boys [illegible] away from the grounds. The new [illegible] were to keep the paraders on the march and how they are [illegible] them on the [illegible]. The students obeyed the police without offering any resistance to orders.

PROBE OF ALLEGATIONS

The announcement was the most definite official hint of a senatorial battle and it [illegible] conference of the leaders in all campaigns.

Hands of all candidates seeking nomination on both tickets are expected to come under the committee's inquiry.

Crooker and Senator Nye talked on the telephone between Boston and Washington, and the Senate investigators gave positive assurance that hearings would be held. He said:

"Reports which our agents have sent us from Massachusetts indicate very clearly the necessity of the committee holding hearings in Massachusetts at the earliest possible time, which may be within a few weeks."

The committee will meet in Chicago Monday and set a date for the opening of the investigation here. Senator Nye said he would advise Crooker of the date selected.

Butler's expenditures have been under fire by the Liberal Civic League and other organizations for many weeks, it being alleged not only that an enormous sum of money was being spent in his behalf but that a large portion of it was being used in an attempt to corrupt labor leaders and influence the labor vote which, because of his record on labor questions, has always opposed him.

The latter charges have been so strong that an inquiry into them is being conducted by the American Federation of Labor.

AGENT WAS LENT HERE.

Crooker demanded that a Senate investigation of Butler's funds, their sources and disposition be made and Western Starr of Washington was sent here by the Senate committee several weeks ago. Whether he has been assisted by other agents is not known here, but Nye's statement today indicates that he has been.

Witnesses at the hearings are expected to include the candidates themselves, the campaign managers and all who had any connection with the solicitation, handling or disposal of funds.

Police Foil Plan of School Strikers

STRIKERS IN WATERTOWN HIGH ARE DROPPED

35 Junior Boys and 100 Girls Join Walkout; School Head Threatens Dire Penalty

Five hundred striking Watertown school children were suspended today by the school committee as the strike against longer hours spread from the high school to two junior high schools and more than 300 girls joined the demonstration.

Nearly [illegible] girls [illegible] their classrooms at the high school to align themselves with the strikers, and 35 boys and girls quit school at recess at the West Junior high school, a small number following suit at the [illegible] Junior high.

Both breaks [illegible] demonstration of high school strikers at the West Junior high earlier in the day, and reserve police held in readiness in case the demonstration, now in its second day, became too disorderly.

MOTHER ENDS ON STRIKE

One mother lashed her son with a horsewhip on the steps of the high school and forced him to return to his classes.

The strike spread to the West Junior high school in spite of an appeal by the principal, C. Arthur Wheeler, for loyalty.

When the noon recess arrived, about 35 boys and girls started shouting for "shorter hours," and went across the street from the schoolyard. The principal, after again appealing to them, marched the others in.

"Yellow Dogs," "Sneaks," were some of the epithets hurled by these strikers at their schoolmates. The crowd then paraded to the East Junior high school, where a small group joined them.

"Unconditional surrender" is the only acceptable terms under which the boys and girls may return to the high school, they were told by Principal Edwin H. Whitehill of the high school.

TEACHERS BAR REVOLTERS

One girl returned to school with a note from her mother and was admitted but a chum, who returned without an excuse, was sent away.

Acting Chairman Charles O. Cass of the school board addressed a letter to all parents stating that the striking pupils are suspended, and would not be taken back until their parents promise in writing that the boys and girls would "co-operate with the school authorities."

The approximately 100 girls who quit classes at the high school today left their seats to join a crowd of wildly shouting, parading boys, just as the session began.

Teachers were forced to stand guard at the doors to prevent more leaving, but by the time this action was taken, only 377 of the 500 enrolled pupils remained in the building. The doors were locked to persons seeking entrance.

An hour and a half later, after a parade and mass meeting, a committee of four boys and four girls called on Supt. of Schools Wilfred [illegible].

ARREST BROKER IN LARCENY

Leroy C. Percy, 34, of Moreland ave., Newton Center, stock broker with offices in Congress st., was arrested today on a secret indictment warrant charging larceny of $8000 from a wealthy Back Bay woman, Mrs. Elizabeth W. Macmahon, of 232 Bay State rd.

According to the indictment charge, the stockholder converted to his own margin account $8000 worth of American Telephone and Baltimore & Ohio stock pledged with him as collateral by Mrs. Macmahon in a stock transaction.

Police inspectors William Connolly, Joseph Laughlin and Mark Morrison of headquarters sought Percy for two weeks after return of the indictment, and found him today in new offices in Congress st., to which he had moved on leaving his old offices in State st.

The indictment charges that after the $8000 worth of stock had been turned over to him, Percy turned it into a margin account under his own name and the names of members of his family.

In an earlier edition the name of the stockbroker under arrest was inadvertently printed as Leroy Perry. There is no Leroy Perry, a stockbroker, in Boston.

Writ Restrains Cupid, Bars Boy's Courting

Concord, N. H., Sept. 12 (AP)—The first "love injunction" known to be on record here has been granted by Judge Joseph S. Matthews in Merrimack superior court.

The order restrains James Hunt[illegible] ington Niles, 24, from visiting Frances Keene, 17, daughter of the petitioner, Mrs. Edwin F. Keene of Concord. Niles is the son of the late Edward C. Niles, former chairman of the Public Service Commission, whose family has long been prominent.

The girl's mother alleged Niles visited her daughter and refused to leave when the parent requested. She demanded Niles' courtship cease. Under the court order Niles is prohibited from speaking to the girl.

Mercury Hits 88 as Hot Weather Returns

After several days of agreeable coolness, a spell of warm weather descended upon Boston today. The mercury soared, starting at an early hour, and at 3 p. m. the official thermometer at the weather bureau registered 88 degrees, the high mark of the day. The weather man, however, does not expect the warm weather to continue. The forecast for tonight predicts increasing cloudiness and probable showers.

YACHTS TUNE UP FOR RACES

By TOM HORGAN

Newport, R. I., Sept. 12 (AP)—Shamrock V, Sir Thomas Lipton's fifth challenger for the America's Cup, and Enterprise, Harold S. Vanderbilt's defender, today entered their last day of preparation for the greatest of all sailing contests in American waters.

Shortly before noon tomorrow the two boats are scheduled to cross the starting line nine miles southeast of Brenton reef lightship of a 30-mile open ocean course.

The first brush will be over a windward leeward course, that is, the sloops will run 15 miles into the wind and run home before it.

Confidence was high aboard both craft today, though it took different forms of expression.

Vanderbilt has kept his crew keyed up to a high pitch since Enterprise took to the water this spring and all connected with the white-sparred sloop appear jauntily certain of victory.

Judge Creed Is Near Death; Unconscious

Former Mayor Peters Will Support Ely

By BERT FORD

Andrew J. Peters, former mayor of Boston, who was prominently mentioned as a possible Democratic candidate for governor if John F. Fitzgerald won the nomination, today came out for Joseph B. Ely, the Westfield candidate.

In a letter to Ely, Peters wrote:

"I have great regard for John J. Cummings, but I will vote for Joseph B. Ely at the primary on September 16.

(Signed) ANDREW J. PETERS."

The Ely endorsement came on the heels of Peters' official announcement that he would not be a candidate under any circumstances.

Mayor Curley today made his first official denial that he would be a candidate, with the assertion:

"The point I wish to stress," said the mayor, "is that I am not a candidate myself, and, as a Democrat I am interested solely in the selection of the ablest [illegible] man as nominee for the office of Governor."

The Mayor's statement was promoted by criticisms which had reached him from the Ely camp because he named several Republicans in his list of 49 eligibles for Democratic nomination for governor in case Fitzgerald, who is still confined in a hospital is successful in the primary.

Mayor Curley slapped back at his Ely critics and hit at Daniel H. Coakley without naming him, alluding to the "sinister oracle."

MEANT TO NAME 50.

The fact that only 49 names appeared in the Mayor's honor list instead of 50 also gave rise to whisperings that the missing name was probably the Mayor himself.

Mayor Curley explained that there were 50 names on the original list, but that the stenographer inadvertantly omitted one name. Asked whose name that was, Mayor Curley replied that it was Andrew J. Peters. He said it was some where down in the list.

PETERS AND ELY OMITTED FROM CURLEY'S LIST OF 49 ELIGIBLE

John J. Cummings, Ely's rival in the Democratic race for gubernatorial nomination, at a noon rally in Cambridge today charged that the 50th man was Curley, whom he accused of "running by proxy for a sick man."

The Mayor's statement follows:

"There is no particular significance in the fact that there are only 49 names in the list. In fact I thought there were fifty.

"Friends of Ely are stressing the fact that I mentioned Republicans among those in the list. They forget that Alvan T. Fuller, who was Governor of Massachusetts, was at one time a Democrat.

THE "SINISTER ORACLE."

"Eugene N. Foss, another former governor was not only a Republican but a prohibitionist at all times an independent and at present is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate.

"Mr. Ely's chief spokesman, the sinister figure, at one time in legal circles, overlooks the fact that he is an independent candidate for Senator and the only purpose of his candidacy is to aid the Republican party to retain control of that seat.'

"It is indeed an ingenious spectacle to listen in on the radio nightly to the sinister oracle giving advice to intelligent Democrats as to whom they should nominate for high political office in the coming election.

"The list is in no sense a closed book. There is still an abundance of able and competent talent from which selections for governorship may be made.

"The point I wish to stress is that I am not a candidate myself, and, as a Democrat, am interested solely in the selection of the ablest man as nominee for the office of Governor."

MAYOR ON THE AIR.

"I will go on the radio for the first time in this campaign at Station WEEI at 7:30 Saturday night and shall speak from the same station at 11:50 Monday night."

Intimating that he would canter his fire on Ely, Mayor Curley continued:

"Ely's vote-getting record is not impressive. In 1922 Fitzgerald beat him in 10 counties and in four of the western counties he beat Fitzgerald by only 1800 votes."

The Mayor will address a big meeting of men and women Democratic leaders at Hotel Bellevue at 8 o'clock.

Five rallies in the interest of Fitzgerald will be held tonight throughout the State—in Brockton, Lowell, Lynn, Worcester and New Bedford.

RALLIES IN FIVE CITIES.

The men who will speak at these rallies received special delivery letters today from Chairman Henry Lawler of the Democratic City Committee, instructing them to report at the Hotel Bellevue for further instructions.

It is known that at the Brockton meeting one of ex-Mayor Fitzgerald's closest friends, former Collector of the Port Joseph Maynard, will be the principal speaker. Others will include William L. Anderson, assistant secretary to Mayor Curley, and former Governor's Councillor Edward W. Collins.

Curley's list was issued as an offer of proof of his assertion that there is an abundance of candidate timber.

Mayor Curley says:

"I beg to submit a list of 50 men of standing, character and good repute for any one of whom the people of the State could cast their vote without closing their eyes or breaking the point of their pencil, both of which it would be necessary to do to square with one's conscience provided either one now in the contest became the nominee of the Democracy."

TAGUE HAS TO DECLINE

Former Congressman Peter F. Tague of Charlestown was slated by the Democratic city committee to make a speech tonight at a Fitzgerald rally in Lowell. He announced today that he would have gladly filled the engagement but was forced by ethical reasons to decline because he is an election commissioner. Vincent Brogna, former assistant district attorney for Suffolk county, will address the Lowell meeting.

More than 600 Democrats of Italian extraction held a rally in East Boston last night for Fitzgerald and cheered the invalid candidate to the echo.

Frank Finneran, president of the Democratic Club of Massachusetts, was chief speaker at a Fitzgerald rally held in Roslindale. Finneran charged Ely with supporting the League of Nations plank rejected at the Springfield convention in 1919.

CALLS ELY BOLTER.

John J. Cummings, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, at rallies today charged Joseph B. Ely with bolting the party.

"I quote from the Boston Herald of October 4, 1919, said Cummings, "extracts of a colloquy between Daniel T. O'Connell, since appointed judge in superior court, and then representing the advisory committee of the Friends of Irish Freedom, and Joseph B. Ely, chairman of the resolutions committee at the Springfield convention that year.

"What is your objection to the treaty?" asked Ely.

"It would make impossible the obtaining of freedom by an oppressed country," replied O'Connell.

"You want the United States to take up arms for Ireland?"

"No, we do not want that, but the League of Nations should be a power to undertake to circumscribe the activities of such a committee as ours," O'Connell replied."

Curley List "Frantic Gesture," Says Dillon

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 12 (AP)—Mayor Dwight R. Winter of this city and Mayor William B. Dillon of Holyoke, named by Mayor Curley of Boston in a list of 49 men who, in his opinion, are better fitted for the gubernatorial seat than the two Democratic candidates, today said they had no aspirations for the office at present.

"It is all very nice and I am highly appreciative," Mayor Dillon said.

He added that he endorsed the Democratic candidacy of Joseph B. Ely and that the Curley statement was "just another frantic gesture."

Mayor Winter said that he was too busy with his present duties to consider the governorship.

Alonzo B. Cook in Anger Quits Brockton Fair

Brockton, Sept. 12—It looked for a time today as though State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook might make it, but at State Fair luncheon here today the apparently smooth progress got indigestion.

The State Auditor, for the first time in several years, this year received an official invitation to attend the Brockton Fair as a member of Governor Allen's party on Governor's Day.

While he did not come to Brockton with the Governor's party, escorted by motorcycle officers, the State Auditor joined them at the Commercial Club as the names were being read off for the head table.

Auditor Cook failed to hear his name called and he approached Walter Rapp, chairman of the Fair Governor's Day reception committee.

"Is there a place for me at the head table, Mr. Rapp?" Auditor Cook asked.

"Just sit anywhere," Chairman Rapp replied.

"No, I want to sit at the head table."

"What is your objection to the treaty?" asked Ely.

"Just take a chair anywhere." The auditor insisted that he wished to sit at the head table with the rest of the Governor's party, and when he finally was not seated there, he departed in anger.

Later, to newspapermen, Cook said he had come in his car with his daughter and a friend. He said he was returning to Boston immediately without having seen the fair, but would be down tomorrow to pay his way, because he has not missed a Brockton Fair in 30 years.

At the luncheon, Gov. Allen highly praised the fair both as a sturdy institution and in its service to the public.

"The fair, as a show," he said, "is unsurpassed. But it is more than that. It gathers in, once a year, the people from around and about. They learn something by these contacts and meetings."

ASK HOOVER TO ACT IN BUTLER CAMPAIGN

Liberal Civic League Wants Him to Restrain All Federal Officers

Issuance of a special executive order restraining all federal officers and members of the classified civil service in Massachusetts from "further participation in the present preprimary United States senatorial campaign" was asked of President Hoover today by William H. Mitchell, chairman of the Liberal Civic League, a "wet" organization.

In a letter to the President, Mitchell called attention to "the flagrant disregard of both the letter and the spirit of the rules heretofore laid down defining and limiting the activity of federal officers in connection with political candidates and political campaigns in the interests of the senatorial candidacy of William M. Butler." The latter is "dry," he is opposed by Eben S. Draper, a "wet."

The letter said, in part:

ACCUSES TARR.

"U. S. Dist. Atty. Frederick H. Tarr is one of the principal offenders. For many months he has taken an active part in the Butler campaign and on Saturday evening of this week, September 13 next, he has announced that he will deliver an address over Station WEEI on the "problems of the Republican party," an address that is generally understood to be in the interest of the Butler campaign.

"Anna C. Tillinghast, United States immigration commissioner at this port, is actively working in behalf of Butler.

"Anna Weinstock, Federal commissioner of conciliation, is also a member of a Butler campaign committee.

"Harold Winslow, postmaster at New Bedford, in a public statement urged Butler's nomination and election.

"James R. Teller, postmaster at Lawrence, is commonly recognized as one of the most active Butler advocates.

MENTIONS WOODCOCK.

"Samuel Ross of New Bedford, a member of the board of labor conciliation, is a member of the Butler committee.

"The aforementioned are but a few of the presidential appointees and members of the classified service who have been procured by Butler to violate both the letter and spirit of Civil Service regulations and executive orders which are intended to prohibit and prevent exactly the kind of partisan activity in which they have been and are now engaged in the current United States Senatorial campaign.

"Furthermore, Butler and those associated with him in this campaign appear to have procured the partisan service in his behalf of Prohibition Commissioner Woodcock, who is billed and advertised to deliver an address in this city in support of Butler on the evening of Monday, September 15, the night before our senatorial primaries."

NAVAL HOLIDAY FOR FRANCE AND ITALY

Tonnage Question Hinges on Success of Bartering on Tunis and Tripoli

Geneva, Sept. 12 (AP)—Settlement of Franco-Italian naval tonnage difficulties, at least by a long naval holiday, was predicted by persons in authority at the League of Nations Assembly today.

It was said the absence of the Italian Foreign Minister Grandi, who took his departure suddenly on Wednesday, had something to do with bartering over the Tunis and Tripolitan questions that have been engaging attention here.

It was understood some sort of definite offer had been made by either France or Italy and a definite reply could be expected shortly.

That a long naval holiday may be the accepted solution was the opinion put forth by persons in close touch with both delegations.

Oreste Ferrara, Cuban ambassador at Washington, told the assembly in an address today that American countries are "profoundly and favorably interested in the success of a scheme for economic co-operation among European countries."

Pointing out that American States, particularly those which provide raw material for commerce, depend upon the prosperity of Europe for their own economic betterment, the diplomat said "America, therefore, welcomes a move for European collaboration."

Such a union would not be regarded by Americans as a reaction against pan-Americanism, the Cuban asserted.

DOMINGO LOAN UP TO HOOVER

Santo Domingo, Sept. 12 (AP)—This Republic's need for a loan to meet the emergency created by last week's hurricane will be placed before President Hoover, who will say whether or not the amount needed may be floated.

Under an agreement more than 25 years old the Dominican Republic may not increase its exterior indebtedness without the consent of the United States, the treaty dating back to the time when the United States arranged for consolidation and refunding of the entire Dominican debt with a customs receivership to guarantee payment.

Marshal Joffre, Hero of Marne, Reported Ill

Paris, Sept. 12—Marshal Joffre, French hero of the first battle of the Marne, is suffering from an acute attack of rheumatism, but his condition is not considered serious, a spokesman for the aged field marshal said today in response to reports that Joffre was seriously ill.

"Papa" Joffre has been ailing for some months. Last May he was stricken while visiting his birthplace on the Mediterranean. His illness was kept a secret for several weeks at the hero's orders. The 78-year-old warrior is credited with the defeat of the German army at the Marne on Sept. 6, 1914.

Mrs. W. V. C. Ruxton Takes Up Reno Residence

Reno, Nev., Sept. 12—Mrs. William V. C. Ruxton, New York and Greenwich, Ct., social registerite, arrived here today to take up the required six months' residence before obtaining a divorce. It is rumored that she will sue her broker husband on grounds of incompatibility.

Mrs. Ruxton, before her marriage, was the dashing Anna Crankhite, daughter of the late Elisha P. Crankhite, cotton broker. The couple have one daughter, Ruth. Mrs. Ruxton will join Mrs. Leslie G. Frank, who has been in Reno for the past few months. They are neighbors in New York and Greenwich.

Member of Byrd Party Guilty of Desertion

Reading, Pa., Sept. 12—After Clair A. Dietrich, ailing Chicago Alexander, a member of the Byrd Antarctic expedition, had pleaded guilty to a charge of malicious desertion, the court suspended sentence and directed the defendent to pay $10 a week for the support of his two children. He was also directed to enter bond of $1000 to assure the payment of the support order.

Dietrich was arrested in New York city after his wife had recognized his picture in the rotogravure section of a newspaper.

San Francisco, Sept. 12—Mrs. Robert Dollar, 78 years old, and wife of Capt. Robert Dollar, president of the Dollar Line, smiled yesterday when asked for her recipe for marital happiness. Here is her simple recipe:

"Don't be fancy; plain things are the direct route to happiness."

Wives who want to keep their husbands, she said, should "Be economical; be a good housekeeper; be his best friend; be gentle and thoughtful; be tender and devoted to the family; and cook wholesome meals for him; keep him healthy."

SAYS N. E. MILLS THAT ARE WELL MANAGED WILL SHOW A PROFIT

REPORT ON BUSINESS IS READ

Council Warned by Proctor of Economic Heresies of Politicians

Middlebury, Vt., Sept. 12 (AP)—A profitable year for many New England mills was foreseen by the industrial committee of the New England Council in its report at the opening session of the 20th quarterly meeting here today. Richard W. Sulloway, treasurer of the Sulloway mills, Franklin, N. H., and William S. Nutter, vice-president of the Goodall Worsted Co., Sanford, Me., reported for the committee.

"The activity or inactivity of a mill at this time rests chiefly with the management," Mr. Sulloway said in the report.

"In those plants where it is the practice of the management to maintain low inventories and a strong cash position, to employ research in the development of new products, new processes, and new markets, also to do the best merchandising job possible, we find a fair volume of business, and prospects for ending the year with a profit smaller than in boom years, but a profit nevertheless," the committee found in their report.

SOME FIRMS WAITING

The committee found that "the whole mechanism of distribution is being subjected to more intensive scrutiny than ever before, and management is becoming more scientific in its efforts to cut costs and conserve profits."

"There are many firms," the committee warned, "who are still 'waiting for something to turn up' and it is these firms which are most likely to find themselves out of the running as business once more resumes its normal gait. The mills that have adopted watchful waiting as policies are the ones that seem to be feeling the depression the most."

The adoption of modern merchandising methods by the farmer, a cash income in the recreational field that is higher than expected, and a rapid advance in highway beautification, was reported by other of the council's committees at the opening session.

The report of the agricultural committee was presented by Harry R. Lewis, chairman of the committee and commissioner of agriculture for Rhode Island.

CORN CROP LARGE

"The corn crop in New England is large and the demand strong due to the failure of western corn crops," the report said.

The potato outlook was described as good, despite the fact that the crop is slightly smaller than last year and the price lower.

New England railroads, steamship companies, oil companies, publicity bureaus and hotels were canvassed for reports on figures on money spent in recreation in New England. The purely recreational hotels enjoyed a very good year the committee found, with losses occurring for the most part in transient or over-night business.

PROCTOR'S WARNING

President Redfield Proctor of the New England Council warned against "economic heresies" and attacks upon the present economic structure during the next two months.

"Immediately ahead of us are two months of political campaigning," Proctor said. "Present business conditions are an invitation, and individual distresses an excuse, to some of those seeking office to attack our economic structure. The preaching of economic heresies already in evidence will probably increase as the campaign proceeds."

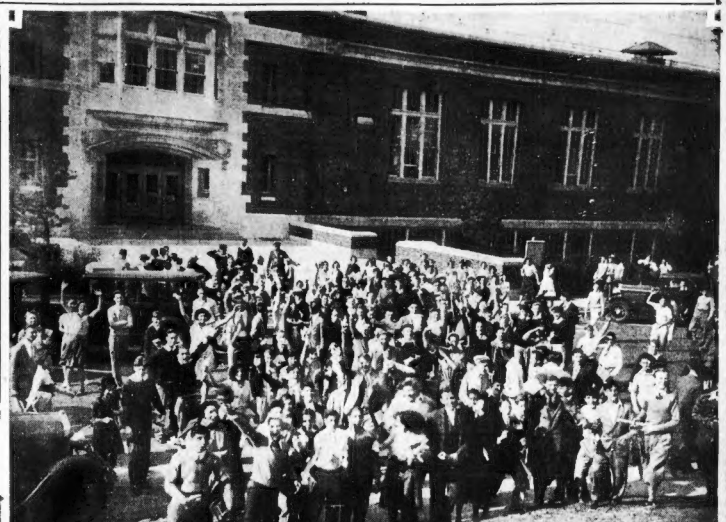
Clara K. Young Is Sued for $22,675

New York, Sept. 12—Suit was filed yesterday against Clara Kimball Young, motion picture actress, to collect $22,675, which she is said to owe on a dress and hat account with Joseph.

Trustees for the creditors of Joseph said in their complaint that Miss Young owed the firm $24,803 on March 27, 1925, and still owes $4368 of that sum. Since that year she has accumulated a debt of $18,307, the trustees complain.

Spirits of Watertown High School Strikers Run High Despite Suspension Order

WATERTOWN SCHOOL REBELS leaders in the move to force the Watertown School Committee to return back to the old school hours are John Donovan, George McNamara, Abraham Rosoff, Michael Pappas, Miriam Oikemus, Florence Mann, Virginia Landry and Mary Hilley, shown in the picture above. This picture was taken just after they were notified by the school superintendent of their suspension. (Staff photo.)



NOT A BIT DOWNHEARTED. Despite the order of the Watertown School Committee in suspending them from classes boy and girl strikers at the Watertown High school seemed happy enough when they gathered in front of the high school to recruit additional members. This picture showd some of the strikers outside the high school, many with books under their arms just waiting for the change back to the old school hours to return to classes.

"Buy Now" Getting Campaign Results

"Many a mickle makes a muckle."

"There's nothing like a long pull and a strong pull together to redeem any waning situation, public or private."

That is the statement of Frank S. Davis, chief of the maritime division of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and he was talking about the BUY NOW CLUB, conceived by the Boston Evening American and endorsed by Mayor Curley and a horde of other public spirited citizens.

"The situation in Boston and in New England," Davis continued, "is not as bad as it is in other sections of the country, though I admit it is bad enough here. The stimulation of buying on the part of the general public, even in small quantities and of the necessaries of life, is the one feasible and logical course that will remedy the situation without working hardship on anybody.

"Already I see signs that the leaven of renewed activity is working to a satisfactory conclusion.

"Store windows and store shelves are full of attractive merchandise at attractive prices. And I am told that trade is increasing in proportion to the inducements offered.

N. E. CONSERVATIVE

"We live in the best section of the best country in the world, but one of our failings is in not putting the best forward and in not blowing our own horn to a greater extent.

"For instance, our harbor facilities and opportunities for shipping are far better than many on the Atlantic coast which are the boast of their particular sections.

"We ought to do a little more boosting and a little more boasting."

There is no extravagance or recklessness in buying necessary or needed merchandise at such a time as this, Davis pointed out. On the other hand a general movement of small buying is the one thing to remedy a business depression.

"I recall," he continued, "a speech made several years ago by Calvin Coolidge at a meeting under the auspices of the maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce at the Willard Hotel, in Washington.

HOLDS TRUE TODAY

"What he said was true then and applicable to those days of 1923. And it is true and still more applicable to these days of 1930. It was to the effect that New England is a land of great opportunity.

"It has some of the most remarkable industrial organizations that exist anywhere on earth. It has the machinery, the capital and the skill to further promote the enterprise in industry that has characterized its past development.

"Senator Henry Cabot Lodge addressed this meeting along these same lines, and Mayor James M. Curley gave similar counsel and advice for a co-operative business spirit.

"The 'buy now' and 'speed prosperity' ideas, put into execution, are all that are needed to remedy the present situation."

Mrs. Mary A. Naylor, widow of Thomas Naylor, prior to his death in 1916 superintendent of the Maynard water department, marked her 91st birthday today by keeping open house at her residence, 13A Maple st., Maynard. There are four living generations in the Naylor family.

Wife of Ex-Governor Milliken Is Dead

Augusta, Me., Sept. 12 (AP)—Word was received here of the death in New Rochelle, N. Y., today of Mrs. Emma Chase Milliken, wife of former Governor Carl E. Milliken of Maine.

She was the daughter of George Colby Chase, president of Colby College for many years. She was married to the former governor in 1901.

Besides her husband she leaves seven children: Mrs. Nellie Wade Braintree, Mass.; Mrs. Vivian Wills of Connecticut, Gladys of New Rochelle, Mrs. Beatrice Kimball of Crawford, N. H.; Carl S., Jr., Edith L. and Dorothy B., all of New Rochelle, and a brother, Prof. George M. Chase of Bates College faculty.

TEXTILE UNION FOR REPEAL

New York, Sept. 12 (AP)—Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and adoption of the six-hour day and the five-day week were advocated as steps to relieve unemployment in resolutions adopted today by unanimous vote by the United Textile Workers of America.

Speakers contended that repeal of the prohibition amendment would give 100,000 men employment in breweries and would "directly or indirectly afford employment to 2,000,000 workers."

The resolution approving "in principle" the 30-hour week as a means of giving employment to more workers was adopted without debate.

Police Horse Bags Man Who Tried to Steal Him

Detroit, Sept. 12 (AP)—This city is no place for horse thieves. Roland Beruchman found that out when he tried to ride away on Hal.

Hal is horse No. 13 of the Detroit Mounted. His regular rider, Officer Percy Rose, parked Hal in an alley while he went into a restaurant for a plate of beans.

Along came Beruchman and climbed into the saddle. He started on a ride and Officer Rose found him lying on the pavement with Hal standing over him. At the hospital physicians said Beruchman would recover.

Two Children Die in Fire; Six Injured

Newark, N. J., Sept. 12 (INS)—Two children were burned to death, six persons were injured and three others escaped by jumping into life nets today when fire swept a three-story apartment house here. The children were Edward Santos, six, and Gloria Romano, two.

COLUMBIA ALL SET FOR HOP

Montreal, Sept. 12 (AP)—The monoplane Columbia, veteran of the transatlantic air trail, was fuelled today for a takeoff at dawn tomorrow for Harbor Grace, N. F., on the first leg of a second flight to Europe.

Capt. Erroll Boyd, a Canadian, will be at the controls and Harry P. Connor, former lieutenant in the United States Navy, will act as navigator.

The flight has been delayed by a writ of seizure obtained against the ship by Roger Q. Williams, seeking to gain money he considered due him in connection with his recent flight with Connor in the Columbia to Bermuda and back. The suit was directed against Charles A. Levine, owner of the plane, and was vacated yesterday.

500 Striking Pupils Are Suspended

H. Price and then on Principal Whitehill.

One girl went from this conference crying. The leaders reported that the principal informed them of a vote by the school committee last night, decreeing that all strikers were automatically suspended.

Principal Whitehill, according to the strike committee, also told them that all pupils could be forced to attend school under the law. Parents would have to apply for reinstatement in all cases, he added.

The main body of the strikers, while awaiting the outcome of this interview, paraded to the grandstand at Victory Field and prepared to watch the forenoon ball game between the Melrose and Watertown nines.

One boy put in a call to Fire Chief John W. O'Hearn, complaining that the doors at the West Junior High School had been locked. Chief O'Hearn made a hurried trip there, only to find that while locked to persons desiring to enter, the doors were not locked to persons leaving the building.

POLICE BLOCK WAY

Principal Whitehill instructed all teachers to keep a careful attendance record today and addressed the non-striking pupils, thanking them for their loyalty and saying that the strikers would "find it to their dissatisfaction" when they returned.

The pupils are striking over a change in school hours, the school time having been changed from 1:30 to 2:45 p. m.

The conference with the superintendent and the principal followed a futile attempt to gain recruits at the West Junior High school, which was blocked by a squad of police, and a mass meeting at Saltonstall Park, in the center of the town.

As the school hour approached this morning, 400 boys were parading with placards outside the high school, but the girls at first refused to accept the invitation to join them.

The shouting and cheering outside soon won them over, however, and by twos and threes the girls drifted out.

Many of them volunteered to carry signs painted by the boy strikers, on which the pupils demand a return to the old closing hour of 1:30, instead of the new time, 2:45, as ordered by the school committee.

SEEK MORE RECRUITS

Down Spring st. to the West Junior high on Waverley ave., the marchers went in an orderly manner, a number of boys acting as marshals to keep them in line on the sidewalks.

A large number of recruits were expected at the junior high school as the same change in hours had been made there.

But there was no opportunity for a demonstration, with two police lieutenants, a sergeant and several motorcycle officers waiting outside the school, having guessed where the parades were heading.

After the march to Main st. and Saltonstall pk., a committee was selected, consisting of John Donovan, George McNamara, Abraham Rosoff, Michael Pappas, Miriam Oikemus, Florence Mann, Virginia Landry and Mary Hilley.

They obtained an audience with Supt. Price and told him their chief complaint was that those who had afternoon jobs could not keep them with the longer school hours.

CAN'T WORK NOW

"It would be different if we were children of wealthy parents," said one girl.

Another said: "I've got a job, but I haven't been able to work since school opened."

Another girl complained that it was 4:30 yesterday when she finished luncheon, and one of the boys pointed out that with the end of daylight saving time there would not be much more than half an hour of "real sunlight" after school closes.

Supt Price explained that the main purpose of the longer hours was to give more time for study at school, thus requiring less home work. In reply members of the committee said no one felt like studying and they doubted if very much would be done under the new arrangement.

The strikers were also informed that the school board met last night and that a special meeting would be held Tuesday night.

The students asked why a special meeting could not be held tonight to thresh out the matter, or if not, they requested a return to the 1:30 closing time, pending an investigation.

At Supt. Price's suggestion the committee started for the high school to confer with Principal Whitehill, and the whole crowd of strikers followed, with police watching to see that traffic was not tied up.

Edward P. Fuller, chairman of the selectmen, described the demonstration as a "disgraceful proposition," but other town and school officials refused to comment.

During the demonstration a quiet move was on among the students to organize their parents for appearance next Tuesday night at the special meeting of the school committee.

At the request of Police Chief John F. Milmore of Watertown, leaders of the boys conferred with him this afternoon. He told them they should not parade, as onlookers were sure to join them and cause trouble that would reflect on the school. The leaders promised there would be no demonstration, as planned, this evening.

HANG SLAYER OF BOSTON WOMAN

Walla Walla, Wash., Sept. 12 (AP)—Archie F. Moock of Spokane was executed at the State penitentiary here this morning for the murder two years ago of Mrs. Catherine Clark, who came here from Boston in response to letters promising marriage.

Mrs. Clark was killed in the woods near Spokane with a hatchet two years ago. Evidence at Moock's trial indicated she was induced to come west through several letters signed "Murphy."

Archie F. Moock and Mrs. Katherine Clark became acquainted through a "correspondence club," in which Moock was registered as "Murphy."

Mrs. Clark, a divorcee, left her Pembroke st., South End, lodgings to go West and meet her mail suitor, "heir to millions." In his letters "Murphy" told her he and marry before October, 1928, to receive his fortune.

Mrs. Clark, divorced wife of Ralph A. Clark, left early in that month. Her body was found beaded beside a spring.

Mother Horsewhips School Striker Into His Class

A horsewhipping by his mother in front of several hundred fellow strikers was the fate of Fred Gorgoni of Watertown high school today.

Boys and girls were demonstrating outside the high school when Mrs. Carmel Gorgoni drove up in a big automobile. Parking her car she advanced on the strikers, whip in hand.

Picking out her son, she dragged him by the collar toward the school steps and lashed him. Then she rang the bell and when the door was opened, marched him in.

She emerged alone, the boy having been sent to his classes, and as she went away, other pupils heard her remark that all mothers ought to do the same.

HOW DEMOCRATS ARE AFFECTED BY WITHDRAWAL OF FITZGERALD

VOTE FOR HIM IS VOTE FOR UNKNOWN

But They Must Do That or Choose Between Ely and Cummings

This article discusses the interesting and complex conditions of the Democratic campaign on the eve of the State primary election. Tomorrow the Republican situation will be set forth.—Editor's note.

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

The sudden and unfortunate retirement of John F. Fitzgerald leaves the Democratic voters of Massachusetts the choice of two alternatives.

1—They can choose between the two men who have made their fight and are still in the contest, Mr. Ely and Mr. Cummings.

2—By voting for Mr. Fitzgerald, despite his illness, they can thus delegate their selection of a governor to a committee of Democrats who will meet after the primaries.

The people of Massachusetts, notably the Democrats, have been jealous of their rights in the selection of candidates. They have been unwilling to return to the old convention system which handed out nominees to them from a smoke-filled room at 2 o'clock in the morning.

In this case they are asked by voting for Mr. Fitzgerald to express their confidence in the Democratic chieftains.

Mr. Fitzgerald will not be the candidate. In his sickroom conference with Mayor Curley he withdrew definitely and he placed control of the situation in the mayor's hands to be handled entirely in the judgment of the mayor.

STILL IN CONTROL

It is presumed that the Democratic State committee would make the choice of Mr. Fitzgerald's successor in the event he won the nomination on Tuesday. But in the last analysis Fitzgerald and the mayor would be the deciding influences because the former could continue to refuse to yield the nomination until the other leaders had chosen a candidate acceptable to them.

The two active candidates now are progressive young men. Mr. Ely's attack upon the holding corporations which are manipulating the electric and power companies and his profession of sympathy for public ownership was sufficient to dispel any suspicion that he was the candidate of any power trust. Mr. Cummings is known because of his service in the Legislature and his previous, if unsuccessful, contest for the nomination. The former has the advantage of his western State residence and the unexpected developments and he has the handicap of Mayor Curley's opposition to him. Mr. Cummings has the disadvantage of being somewhat lost sight of in the shuffle of events.

CRY FOR RECOGNITION

An element which also enters into the situation is the cry of the younger men for recognition. That was the only offset to the popularity which Mr. Fitzgerald's unfailing amiability and known prowess as a leader had won for him.

If Mr. Ely or Mr. Cummings wins the primary contest the matter will be over, and the Democrats can proceed to shape their November contest against the Republican nominees.

If Mr. Fitzgerald wins it, the question will naturally come, "Who will be chosen to succeed him as the Democratic candidate for governor?"

The answer to that question raises doubt and varied speculation. The names of Gen. Edward L. Logan and former Mayor Peters and also of Sherman L. Whipple come first to notice. Mr. Logan was appointed a trustee of the White fund, at a considerable salary, to remove him as an early contestant, but he still could press his claim to consideration. Mr. Peters has refused to run. Mr. Whipple, if he would run, and he does not like contests, possibly would encounter the opposition of Mr. Fitzgerald, because he had been interested in a vain attempt to induce candidates to enter the list against the ex-mayor.

CURLEY UNWILLING

That leaves the field pretty dry. Except, of course, Mayor Curley himself is to be considered. The prestige of his fine administration as mayor and his substantial contributions to the unemployment problems have given impetus to any movement in which he may engage and to any ambition for promotion which he could entertain. He has manifested no inclination in the matter but the fact can not be lost sight of that Mr. Fitzgerald, in the event of having the nomination, could impose his veto on any choice made by the Democratic state committee.

The Senatorial situation is now interwoven into the complexity of the gubernatorial contest. Of the four candidates, Mr. Foss conceivably is out of it. He dissipated an excellent record as governor by his subsequent and frequent migrations between the Democratic party which honored him and the Republican party, which did not want him.

SICKNESS HANDICAP

Mr. O'Connell, like Mr. Fitzgerald, has been unfortunately ill and the task of conducting his campaign has fallen upon the shoulders of substitutes who, naturally, could not bear it with his ability. He still, however, has the endorsement of the Mayor's Tammany Club and he has other sources of support which would be the more formidable if he had the energy to guide it.

The active campaigning has been left to Mr. O'Brien and Mr. Coolidge. Mr. O'Brien has been district-attorney and he has the advantage of several concentrated groups, including the influential and numerous railway brotherhoods and Martin M. Lomasney. O'Brien speaks well, has a good radio presence and he has repeatedly levelled his guns upon Mr. Coolidge because of the latter's alleged support of the League of Nations and the League Court.

Mr. Coolidge has been interested in the party councils for years. He has been notable as a contributor rather than as a leader or campaigner. He has devoted his campaign more largely to organizing work than to appearances on the stump but in the course of them he has said lately he is opposed to "entangling alliances." His early affiliation was with the Woodrow Wilson group in this state.

He Proves Columbus Came Over Once Before 1492

Hamburg, Germany, Sept. 11 (AP)—Prof. Luis Ulloa, director of the Peruvian National Library at Lima, in an address at the Americanists' congress, said newly-discovered documents show Christopher Columbus visited America once before 1492.

The professor said Columbus accompanied Danish corsairs on a voyage which took them from Ireland to what became Greenland, Labrador, Newfoundland and the American continent.

Columbus, he added, was a Catalonian corsair.

LODGE KIN TO TELL OF FEUD WITH BUTLER

Another chapter in the Butler-Lodge controversy, which is attracting nation-wide attention, will be added tonight when the late Senator Lodge's grandson, Henry Cabot Lodge, 3rd, broadcasts over Station WBZ. He will talk from 7:45 to 8 p. m.

Charges by Mrs. Constance Williams, daughter of Senator Lodge, that William M. Butler's "hostility to my father was in good working order in 1893 when he supported Crapo and not Lodge" were corroborated by Sherwin Lawrence Cook of Roxbury, authority on political history.

"What an amusingly, futile answer Mr. Butler makes when he says he is 'on record' as voting for Mr. Lodge for the Senate," Cook says in a letter to Mrs. Williams. "Of course, he voted for Mr. Lodge as a Republican member of the Legislature after Mr. Lodge received the enthusiastic nomination of his party. But he quite neglects to take the public into his confidence as to his position in the real battle, which was, of course, the caucus."

Endorsements in support of Eben S. Draper's candidacy for the G. O. P. nomination for Senator continue to pour in from every corner of the state. Among the latest to be received is one from the Back Bay Republican Club, signed by James Crawford Strong, president, and Joseph G. Shumb, secretary.

Mrs. Joseph Pennenden, of Winchester, active in social, political and business life, also pledges Col. Draper her support.

Maj. Edward H. Cooper, who has been touring the state in the service of Draper's interests, last night. He accused Butler forces of trying to take credit for veteran legislation that rightfully belongs to Congresswoman Edith N. Rogers of Lowell.

A luncheon rally of Newton women will be held today at the Bras Burn Country Club. Draper and Mrs. Florence Lefevre of Norwood will be among the speakers.

At Taunton last night, Butler again referred to his 48-hour national labor law plank to help business and employment.

Mrs. William H. Brown, at a Butler rally at the Commander Hotel, Cambridge, advocated the 48-hour labor law.

At the New Bedford rally last night, Draper received an enthusiastic reception from the citizens of his opponent's home city.

Bacon Endorses Draper in Race Against Butler

Former Chairman George A. Bacon of the Republican State Committee today endorsed the candidacy of Eben S. Draper of Hyannis for the Republican nomination for Senator in Congress.

"I believe that the people of this country are thoroughly alarmed over the utter futility of enforcing prohibition. There are more speakeasies than there ever were saloons.

"There is no question that prohibition of light liquors is so unpopular with our racial groups as to create anarchy. Can anyone be oblivious to the indulgence by young school children in cheap, poisonous liquors? It looks to me as though we were legislating to save a few bums and sacrificing our children to prove the experiment."

Political Straws

Thore in Race

Wendell Phillips Thore, father of the old-age pensions movement in this state, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for the House from the Quincy district. Unemployment insurance, genuine old-age pensions and a government program of public works, he says, are some of the methods which the state can devise "in the interest of justice for all and the restoration of prosperity."

Flying Campaigner

Ordinary campaign methods have leaden wings, according to Russell D. Chase, candidate for the Republican nomination for State Treasurer. That is why he employs an airplane daily between his home and office in Springfield and his campaign headquarters in Boston.

Foley Demands Mulhern Name His Backer in Race

In a bitter attack on Sen. Joseph J. Mulhern of Dorchester, his opponent for the Democratic nomination for district attorney, Dist. Atty. William J. Foley demanded "the name of the racketeer" financing the Mulhern campaign, in a radio address last night.

"Tell the people of Boston the name of the racketeer who is financing your campaign for district attorney. Tell the decent people of Suffolk County the source of the tremendous wealth which he is expending in this campaign," Foley said.

Finnegan's Good Record

Joseph Finnegan was in the forefront of the struggle for home rule for Boston, for equal rights for the independent taxicab operators and for the abandonment of the archaic State Prison at Charlestown. It is on that record he is campaigning for the Senate in his Roxbury district.

The Eagles' Choice

In James J. Davis, the Fraternal Order of Eagles has a fine representative in the political life of the nation. In Charles S. Murphy of Worcester they are likely to have the next Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor. Old-age pensions, a 40-hour week without loss of employment, repeal of the prohibition amendment and the purchase of American-made goods by Americans in order to abate unemployment are among the planks which make his platform conspicuous.

Knows His Job

Arthur W. Sullivan entered the Registry of Probate as a clerk at $2 a day and he worked for 17 years in that department until he was elected registrar. He asserts that technical legal experience in an office which has to do with the guardianship of children, the administration of estates and the probating of wills is an asset which the people require. Hence his candidacy for re-election.

Kilgoar in Race

George Kilgoar of Sydney st., Dorchester, is running for the Democratic nomination for the House from Ward 13 on a platform of public improvements. A short time ago young Kilgoar obtained passage in the city council of a measure to make Carson st, a through street, eliminating a dangerous condition.

IRIGOYEN HELD AS PRISONER

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Sept. 12 (AP)—Sanches Sorondo, minister of the interior, today informed the Associated Press former President Irigoyen is under arrest on board the cruiser Belgrano and has not been permitted to leave Argentina jurisdiction.

The interior minister denied reports that Irigoyen would be transferred to a steamer from the Belgrano or landed at Montevideo.

He said the cruiser still is in Argentine waters, about two hours from La Plata, awaiting orders.

Circus Lion Takes Seat in Grandstand, as Crowd Fades

Port Royal, Pa., Sept. 12 (AP)—A circus lion escaped from its cage during a fireworks celebration last night at the Port Royal fair and for 20 minutes sat in the unlighted grandstand unnoticed.

The shout of a small boy, "Look at the dog," revealed the animal to the crowd, and thousands rushed for the exits. Several women fainted.

Circus attendants recaptured the beast.

Brown to Demand Mail Rate Boost

Detroit, Sept. 12 (INS)—Increased postal rates on first class mail will be recommended to the next Congress, Walter F. Brown, Postmaster-General, announced in a speech before the National Association of Postmasters here. An increasing deficit which last year reached $85,000,000 makes the boost necessary, Brown said.

Raps Dean Inge's View on Marriage

Editor Boston American:

When a man or woman passes 70 years their opinions are apt to be "seedy."

Dean Inge, the gloomy dean of England, so-called, is reported in your pa, r to have ·me out for what he calls "Limited Marriage."

This is nothing more nor less than trial marriages, advocated by Grant Allen, a ruling authority on science in his day. Then Dean Inge had not won his spurs in the ministry and railed against this new idea in marriage. Since then trial marriages have become a hackneyed phrase in newspapers and been championed by many modern minds.

I do not wish to burden your space with my advocacy of marriage as a sacrament always to be regarded as such. It is not, however, to be lowered to a level that Dean Inge seems to make room for in his plea that marriage is not indissoluble. A hard knock against Church of England marriage service, where it says: "What God hath joined together let no man put asunder." How does Dean Inge handle that phrase when marrying couples? Let us keep marriage on a high level.

All Cars Not Inspected As Drive Wanes

Editor Boston American:

The first few weeks of the safety drive being over, all interest in the idea seems to be over also. I was in hopes of seeing a real honest-to-goodness campaign, but somehow it is fading out. The careful drivers and those who are willing to abide by laws that are beneficial to themselves, have had their cars inspected. But what about the others? There are yet thousands of cars which have not been inspected and have faulty equipment. It is these same cars that were left over in other safety drives. Recently I observed two trucks having to pull up their emergency brakes in order to stop because their foot-brakes didn't work. I noticed that neither of them bore any inspection label. If a safety drive is proclaimed, it should mean that every motorist must have his car inspected and must do it in the time designated or else face a fine for not doing so. I sincerely hope that Mr. Parker will not give up this great idea until every motor vehicle in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts has been inspected.

LEO ADELMAN,
Somerville.

Says Correspondent Misquoted Figures

Editor Boston American:

Out of justice will you please permit me space in your open column to ask if it was by accident or design that Grant Rogers misquoted the figures he gave in his letter concerning revocations and suspensions of automobile licenses on account of drunken driving.

Only this minute I have come from the telephone after talking with the office of the registrar of motor vehicles at Commonwealth pier. Directly from this office I learn that for the fiscal year beginning December 3 and ending September 3, they number 3616, against the 3175 given by the correspondent.

He also states that the amounts for the three previous years were as follows:

1709	1927	3151

The correct figures for suspensions and revocations of licenses on account of drunken driving for these three years follow:

1927	1928	1929
4961	5671	5381

Why misrepresent facts and figures? Every citizen wants to rid the Commonwealth of the menace of the drunken driver, but we will never do it while liquor is so easily obtainable from speakeasies and bootleggers as in this prohibition era. Further figures might be interesting. Cases of alcoholism in the Boston City Hospital were:

1927	1928	1929

Mr. Rogers asks, "If a man has not will power to let intoxicants alone, how can he have sound sense, etc.?"

If he is arguing in defense of the prohibition law, why use as an example a man with will power. Such a man needs no law to force him to the path of abstinence. The prohibition law was framed for the puppet. It supposes us a nation of weaklings without will power. For this nor it failed. Americans are not weaklings, and will prove it by repealing the 18th amendment. Only in that way can we restore self-respect.

FLORENCE BIRMINGHAM.

Sleeps "Like a Log" but Doesn't "Curl Up"

Editor Boston American:

A Boston doctor of repute telling people how to sleep said that a healthy sleeper changes his position from 20 to 45 times in a typical night of eight hours.

I do not believe all this twaddle. When I get into bed, I am just like a log till the sun keeps peeking through the window with its golden rays. I know that the U. S. army advises its soldiers not to sleep curled up and "buckled" in the middle. I never do this, for I learned that my nightmares, like forked lightning knocking me all around, made me feel miserable when I awoke from deep slumber. I would like to know how many of your readers sleep the way this doctor recommends. Is this not said by him to prevent snoring.

How Canada Pays Old Age Pensions

Editor Boston American:

Canada is kind and thoughtful of the interests of the aged. There are 450 people, American born, who have moved over to Canada and are receiving old age pensions.

The report says: One Japanese, three Syrians, one Turk, two Algerians, two Greeks, two Chileans, one Latvian, 285 Russians, 173 Germans, 837 Austrians; all together about 35,000 old folks on the Canadian old age pension roll.

This is a splendid record for Americans to ponder.

Wants to Know If Boston Schools Teach How to Think

Editor Boston American:

An educator of some prominence said recently at a Boston schools that the educational systems followed in the Hub trained young people how to remember, but did not train them how to think.

It was still further said if education taught everyone how to think there would be less crime in the world. Is this a common impression of the teaching in Boston schools?

N. H. MESSINGER.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Your correspondent, who signs himself "Grant Rogers," appears to be greatly disturbed over the effects which the repeal of the Baby Volstead act may have on drunken driving.

Mr. Rogers should know that the mere presence or absence of a Baby Volstead act on the statute books of Massachusetts in no way materially affects the number of drunken drivers who infest or will infest our public highways. For he knows that this same Baby Volstead act does not make drunken driving a crime; does not establish a penalty for this offense and does not effectively limit the supply of intoxicating liquor within the confines of the old Bay State. Your correspondent knows that although we have experienced the workings of a Baby Volstead act for six years the supply of liquor is just as plentiful as it was during the three or four years when we had no Baby Volstead act.

Consequently, since the Baby Volstead act does not interfere with the ability of an individual to obtain intoxicating liquor, it can be readily seen that its mere presence or absence from the statute books of Massachusetts will in no way affect the number of drunken drivers on our highways. On the contrary, the only thing that will have any tendency to prevent or deter an individual from committing this crime is:

1—A severe penalty for the first offense.

2—The infliction of this penalty without fear or favor.

Since Mr. Rogers admits that there has been a sharp increase in the number of drunken drivers during the past six years when we have had a Baby Volstead act, over the years 1920-21-22-23-24 when we had no such law, I do not think that it is necessary to waste any more time in proving that two and two are four.

REED DEMANDS HANDS OFF

Paris, Sept. 12—Warning to Europeans that they are trying to achieve something which would do them more harm than good when they seek to involve the United States in their affairs, was sounded here today by former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, addressing the American Club luncheon.

Emphasizing that "America keep her hands off the affairs of other nations," the former senator paid mock respects to "all those great men who are trying to save the world and at the same time keep their jobs."

Prefacing his remarks with an obvious reference to the French action in expelling William Randolph Hearst, Reed confessed himself a bit nervous about speaking his mind in his accustomed fashion, saying:

"I feel a little anxious, because I have been in the habit of saying whatever I please at home, where I have people to protect me and a Constitution to shield me. But I have been led to believe that a man may be invited to leave France on short notice."

Dealing with the international field, Reed pleaded the doctrine of "everybody minding his own business" as applicable to nations as well as individuals. Governments and politicians, he said, have "been more responsible for the greater part of the misunderstanding between races and men." Going directly to a delicate issue hereabouts, he added:

"The more we talk about organizations supposed to preserve peace, the more we are putting the thought of wars into the heads of the people. The more we warn against the dangers of war, the more we are likely to bring it to pass.

"With regard to the United States entering the League of Nations, it is argued that we should enter since it will stabilize the whole thing. But, supposing the United States comes in, and some European nation has a quarrel with some other nation, how can the citizens of the first nation know that we will not come in with the wrong idea?

"We are just as likely to come in on the wrong idea as on the right—we, a people 3000 miles away with no immediate contact, a people, who, however well informed on subjects in general are not well informed on international questions. I contend it is better for Europe to undertake her own affairs rather than risk the menace of placing the most powerful country on the earth, a country unacquainted with these problems, in a league of her nations."

Sen. Wheeler, a Dry, Out for Repeal

Washington, Sept. 12 (AP)—Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Montana Democrat, ranked among the dry's in Congress, issued a statement today saying he had come to the opinion "that national prohibition is a failure."

His statement follows:

"I have voted for prohibition in Montana because I felt that the old saloon was a curse to the American people and I wanted to do away with it.

"I am no more in favor of the saloon, no more in favor of the sale of liquor today than I was before, but under prohibition you have in many cities more dives and speakeasies where they are openly selling rotten whiskey than you had in the old days. Today in many communities, the bootlegger is becoming a greater political power and has more influence than the old time saloonkeeper as evidenced by the fact that he is able to reach many of our higher officials. He is generally a much lower type of citizen.

"In view of the fact that this administration and the previous administration have apparently been helpless in stamping out the evil, I am reluctantly forced to the opinion that national prohibition is a failure and that each state should be left to regulate the liquor traffic as a majority of its citizens deem advisable."

Hunt Slayer Who Fled From Hospital

Augusta, Me., Sept. 12 (AP)—Allen Boulier, 40, who escaped yesterday from Augusta State Hospital where he was serving a life sentence for murder, still was sought today by a posse. He gained freedom from the third floor of the institution by sliding down a rope made of sheets.

Jap Volcano Hurls Ashes Over Resort

Tokio, Sept. 12 (AP)—Asama, Japan's most active volcano, erupted violently today, sending a shower of ashes and small stones down upon Karuizawa, the small town nearby noted as a summer resort and meeting place of missionaries. One Japanese mountain climber was injured.

Business D. Pression Is Buried in Watery Grave

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 12 (AP)—Inmony presided over by Gov. John Garland Pollard, was a feature of a good-will tour by citizens of the western shore of Virginia to the eastern shore.

It was carried out with real coffins in which reposed dummies representing the three leading factors in America's economic depression. Governor Pollard delivered the funeral oration and the burial service was read by the Rev. F. Rowland Wagner.

Lido Venice Opens Night Club Season

Lido Venice opened last night for another gay season, with every evidence of it being one of the outstanding social achievements.

Lido Venice has been the one spot in Boston where Brookline, Winchester and Back Bay society gathers nightly to cavort in the modern form of dance entertainment and enjoy the shows of Lido Venice in general.

This season, John J. Levaggi, managing director, has gone more than a step in the advancement of restaurant entertainment. The Casa Loma Orchestra, which is famous from its many phonograph feature recordings and radio broadcasts, is a feature. Society was well represented, having made reservations in advance of the opening.

Georgia Mayor Clears Out Loafers

AIR SQUADRON TO CROSS SEA

By PRINCE PIGNATELLI

Universal Service Special Cable

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

Rome, Sept. 12—General Italo Balbo, Italian minister for aviation, plans to lead a squadron of six airplanes on the first military formation flight across the Atlantic Ocean in October or November.

This was revealed following the successful completion of a non-stop flight from Rome to Carthage and return by nine Italian military airplanes led by General Balbo.

The six planes which General Balbo plans to lead in flight across the Atlantic from Rome to Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, are to be picked from the nine fleet planes which made the Carthage flight.

Ex-Gov. Bass May Get Morrow Post

Washington, Sept. 12 — Reports that ex-Governor Robert P. Bass of New Hampshire would be named ambassador to Mexico were current here today but White House confirmation was lacking.

Though Dwight Morrow is relinquishing his post next week it was said President Hoover might defer the selection of a successor for several months.

Kin of Jesse James Doesn't Hanker for Bandit Honors

Los Angeles, Sept. 12 (AP)—The family claim to major banditry honors must rest on the record achieved by Jesse James as far as his granddaughter is concerned, she testified in her $55,000 breach of contract suit against a film company here.

Eager enough to help enact episodes of her grandfather's life on the screen, Miss Jesse Estelle James testified she balked at emulating him in actual life.

"They suggested I stick up a cop for publicity," she testified. "They wanted me to get arrested for speeding, resist the officer and draw a gun on him so they could broadcast the story Jesse James' granddaughter stuck up a policeman."

Miss James testified she refused because she had never been arrested and didn't crave the experience, even for the sake of publicity.

Miss James brought the suit against Paramount-Famous-Lasky Corporation and the estate of Fred Camthomas, actor, complaining another had been given a part in the film "Jesse James," which had been promised to her.

Parroquet May Mean 'Whoopee,' But Not to the Police

Chicago, Sept. 12 (AP)—Parroquet may mean "whoopee" to Algerians but not to Capt. William Delaney of the Chicago Avenue police station.

As a result, David Ablin's latest Gold Coast night club, The Club Parroquet, was closed on its opening night.

Ablin sent out engraved cards announcing the opening of the Club Parroquet. The card announced that parraoquet meant "whoopee" in Algiers.

Capt. Delaney, who has closed several night life resorts, sent out his reception squad. It was found that Ablin forgot about getting a license and waiters and cooks were told to put on their hats and coats and go home.

Skinny Thief Loots Store Despite Iron Bars

Worcester, Sept. 12—A slender thief squeezed his way into the store of James E. Fitzgerald at 50 Eastern ave. through iron bars installed by the owner following a holdup two years ago.

Although the bars were set scant six inches apart the thief had no trouble gaining entry. Four cartons of cigarettes and $5 in pennies were taken by the nocturnal visitor.

TRAIN WRECKS AUTO, 2 UNHURT

Littleton, Sept. 12—Traveling at 65 miles an hour the Green Mountain flyer on the Boston & Maine Railroad today clipped the front bumper off an automobile and dented the running board at the State Hill rd. crossing, but the occupants, a Dorchester couple, escaped uninjured.

Myles O'Dwyer of 28 Mt. Everett st., Dorchester, was driving the car and his wife was riding with him. Charles Woodman, engineer of the train, which left Boston at 8:45 a. m. daylight time, put on the emergency brakes and stopped within three-quarters of a mile. He then backed to the crossing, where the couple were standing, unhurt but very much frightened.

Two Are Jailed in Norwood Robbery

Sentences of 18 months each in the House of Correction were imposed today in Superior Court at Dedham on Joseph Conley of Cedar st., Norwood, and Bartley E. O'Donnell of Hill st., Norwood, after they were found guilty of breaking and entering a Norwood store May 10. They were alleged also to have stolen $100 worth of men's furnishings.

CAPTAIN A. E. FOLGER

CAPT. FOLGER, a native of Nantucket, is seen standing by the famous Whalingman's Monument in New Bedford. The old whaling skipper is a lecturer with the showing of the whale, on the tracks of the B. & A. R. R., at the Mechanics Buildings, beginning next Monday.

OLD WHALE HUNTER BRINGS PET MONSTER TO HUB

Capt. A. E. Folger, better known as "Whale Oil Gus," who is at the head of the lecturers accompanying the big 68-ton whale, now on exhibition on a specially built car on the Boston & Albany Railroad tracks at Mechanics Building, Huntington ave., is a member of the famous Folgers, makers of Nantucket whaling history.

"Whale Oil Gus" certainly knows his whale. Since he was 11 years old, when he shipped on a whaler for the first time, he has lived for whaling and by whaling, and it is not very hard to figure out why it is that he has such a whale of a tale of whaling.

While Capt. Folger did not capture the whale on exhibit, he has helped to harpoon plenty of other leviathans of even larger proportions and the story of his life reads like that of a second Trader Horn. He has traveled more miles on water than most men have on land, has chased whales all over the ocean, has been half drowned, half starved, shipwrecked on an iceberg, hobnobbed with cannibals, participated in a mutiny, and has seen his best friends killed by whales.

"I ran away from home at the age of 11," said the captain. "I sailed as cabin boy from New Bedford on the bark Mount Wollaston, with Captain E. B. Coffin as master. When we were 80 days out we struck the island of Juan Fernandez, said to be the old home of Robinson Crusoe, where we stopped for a while. I did not see any signs of habitation, but I did visit some beautiful caves. I remember the island, however, more for its wonderful figs and oranges, and because of the fact that I made myself sick on figs and have never eaten one since. The cels there, too, are the largest I ever seen. It took three men to lift them. Good eatin'? Ain't no better to be found in this country or the next."

"Whale Oil Gus" now calls Boston his home and he is busy visiting friends and will make a number of lectures during his stay. He has also been invited to occupy the pulpit of one of the churches during the time he is here. He has sailed the seven seas and during a recent visit to New Bedford met quite a few old associates that enjoyed the whaling pastime. He is 81 years and has not a gray hair in his head.

Stage Who's Who

Those who complain of lack of training and experience on the part of some of our actors can certainly find no fault in this respect with Jefferson De Angelis, star of "Apron Strings," at the Plymouth, for this veteran began trooping when he was eight years old, and has kept it up ever since. The "since" happens to be sixty years.

Jeff. De Angelis

When he was only twenty he toured the Far East at the head of his own company. Later he appeared here at the Howard Athenaeum, when John Stetson was manager, that being in the days when burlesque was found only in the dictionary, and never a year was complete at the Tremont without a visit from him at the head of his own company.

Though identified then with light opera and musical comedy, he more recently has confined his attention to dramatics, his last Boston appearance being as the hard-boiled theatrical manager in "The Royal Family." He has written his biography, "The Vagabond Trouper," to be published this fall, which contains more hard-luck stories than ever gathered before between two covers.

JOLSON SINGS IN 'BIG BOY'

Al Jolson in his latest talking-screen production, "Big Boy," is the new feature at the Publix, Olympia and Uptown. "Big Boy," is a warner Bros." Vitaphone picture based on the stage play which was one of Jolson's big successes on the boards. The direction is by the veteran of the megaphone, Alan Crosland.

The score of "Big Boy" contains four new songs: "Tomorrow Is Another Day," and "Liza Lee," by Bud Green and Sam Stept; and "Little Sunshine," and "Hooray for Baby and Me," by Sidney Mitchell, Archie Gottler and George W. Meyer. "Big Boy," is a horse-racing story and many of the scenes are laid at the Kentucky derby track. The horse which Jolson rides is a real thoroughbred and was an actual derby winner.

LAUGH LED TO SUCCESS

A laugh was responsible for the success of Edna Covey, late Ziegfeld Follies star, who will headline the Scollay stage show next week. Some years ago in California, Miss Covey decided to embark upon a stage career as a ballet dancer, so she undertook a course in the terpsichorean art. After completing her studies she started appearing in amateur shows. A theatrical producer, with a discerning eye for talent, engaged her for her first appearance on the professional stage.

Her debut, however, was a catastrophe. In the midst of her number, "The Dying Swan," she tripped and fell flat on the stage. The audience howled with laughter. Then and there the die was cast for Miss Covey's career. Back in her dressing room, she decided that a combination of burlesque dancing and formal ballet dancing would be something new. And she created the travesty of "The Dying Swan."

Miss Covey brings with her to the Scollay, a pretentious act of 12 people, called "We're Ready," featuring Bennie and Weston with Bernice Stevens and Cadets, and the O'Connor Twins. Miss Covey was paid the compliment of being called the best ballerina comique by Ziegfeld.

Film Who's Who

Benny Rubin, who heads the supporting cast of "Love in the Rough," Metro-Goldywn-Mayer's musical filmization of "Spring Fever," which is at Lowe's State next week, was born in Boston in 1899. His parents live in Chelsea. Before entering pictures in 1928, Benny was a comedian in vaudeville, legitimate and burlesque and also was famous as one of America's funniest masters of ceremonies. Though he has come rapidly to the fore in talkies, he had appeared in "Naughty Baby," "Football," "Casino Gardens" and "Thanksgiving" before making his talking picture bow in "Marianne."

Dishes for Fall Menu Sharpen the Appetite

Want to add a couple more bright golden stars to your culinary crown? Gather round and I'll tell you how it's done. Particularly good news just about now is a new dish or two to spring on the family in early fall days when no one is quite ready to plunge into the heavy meat meals of real blizzardy days and still something more than the light and airy salads and frozen desserts of summertime are required. A single new dish added to your bag of cooking secrets is a bright spot amid the routine of preparing meal after meal, and when you discover just one new and reliable recipe it is an event worth "writing home about." The use of our favorite "more-than-cheese" will help you in making up some grand and glorious dishes that will appeal to the "tasty tooth" of the whole family. The first trick out of the bag is

SEPTEMBER CHEESE LOAF

1 cup boiling water
2 bouillon cubes. When dissolved add:
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. poultry seasoning
1 small onion chopped
½ cup washed rice
¾ cup hot milk
2 eggs slightly beaten
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 pkg "more-than-cheese"
4 tbsp. soft butter
4 tbsp. dry bread crumbs
Totamo sauce.

Put boiling water in top of double boiler and add bouillon cubes. When dissolved add seasoning, onion and rice. Boil 10 minutes over direct flame. Add hot milk cover and cook in double boiler again until rice is soft. Beat eggs slightly, add the cup of soft crumbs and combine with rice mixture and a package of "more-than-cheese" made smooth with a fork. Spread sides and bottom of bread pan measuring about 7x3 inches with 4 tbsp. soft butter. Coat with 4 tbsp. dry bread crumbs. Put mixture in pan and bake 25 minutes in hot oven (450 Deg. F.) Turn out onto hot platter and serve with tomato sauce and decorate with spinach timbales or flowerettes of cooked cauliflower if desired, or serve plain to take the place of a meat dish.

Dinner of One Dish

THIS DELICIOUS NOODLE RING with cheese sauce makes a fine one-dish dinner.

NOODLE RING WITH CHEESE SAUCE

2-3 cup noodles
3 cups water
2 eggs, well beaten

Break noodles in small pieces, and cook in boiling water until tender. Drain, add ½ cup of cheese sauce and 2 eggs, well beaten. Grease a ring mold and pour in mixture. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 30 minutes or until firm. Turn out on platter and pour over remaining sauce. Fill center with hot asparagus tips, brussels sprouts or cauliflower. Garnish with lemon, chopped parsley and radishes.

CHEESE SAUCE

Melt 3 tbsp. butter, add 3 tbsp. flour, ½ tsp. salt and ⅛ tsp. paprika. Stir until smooth and add slowly 1½ cups milk. Stir until mixture boils, add 1 package "more-than-cheese" and stir until melted. Add ½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce if desired.

CHEESE DREAMS

Butter slices of bread and spread generously with "more-than-cheese." Lay in shallow pan. Spread with mustard and sprinkle with paprika and a dash of cayenne. Pour over 1 egg beaten with 1 cup milk and seasoning to taste. Place in hot oven and cook until eggs are set and cheese puffs up and browns a golden brown. Delicious. And how!

Bread Puts Vim in Body

We hear so much about "roughage" in the diet that we begin to wonder if we're a miniature golf course, or perhaps a mooley cow, but 'tis a fact not to be escaped that much of our food is far too refined for the 30 feet more or less of winding lane through which it must pass during its process of being absorbed by the system.

A natural, pleasant way to regulate the system and at the same time eat your daily quota of bread, is to serve at meals a certain dark bread I can tell you about. This bread is not coarse grained but is smooth and fine, made from several flours carefully blended, but containing the roughage necessary for health-giving qualities that doctors recommend.

It's an old story that can't be repeated too often that bulk in the system is essential for proper elimination, so make yourself a promise today to find out about this health bread which will set you on the road to sparkling eyes and peppy stepping.

For Chinese Dinner

Most everyone who has visited the Martha Lee School of Practical Cookery has seen us make Chop Suey—and I might add, sampled it and secured a copy of our chop suey recipe using the special ingredients that we like so much. We find chop suey making easy and satisfactory.

However, I do think you'll want to save room on your emergency shelf for several of the new complete Chinese dinner packages which contain one can of Chow Mein Noodles ready to heat and eat, one can of Chop Suey, and one bottle of Chinese Soy Sauce.

In less than two minutes you can have a complete dish of Sub Gum Chop Suey with Chow Mein Noodles with the tasty soy sauce that adds so much to this popular dish—all for 40 cents, enough for two or three servings—depending on appetites.

MAPLE SQUARES

1 cup flour
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. soda
2 cups brown sugar
2 cups nut meats, chopped coarse
2 eggs
½ tsp. maple flavor.

Sift flour, salt and soda. Add brown sugar and nuts. Beat eggs thoroughly, add maple flavoring to the eggs and stir into the dry ingredients. Spread in well greased baking pans for 15 minutes at 325 F. Makes about 45 two-inch squares.

Tastiest of Fillings

The school lunch box season is here in earnest, and I think you will find lunch making easier if you make the sandwiches the night before, wrap them in waxed paper and put them in the refrigerator over night. All this does save time in the morning, but the main question is what to use for sandwich filling. Here are a few suggestions which may prove helpful.

Chopped bologna and well cooked scrambled eggs. Deviled ham and chopped pickle; chopped ham with crushed pineapple; chopped lamb and currant jelly; deviled ham and chopped cucumber; chicken giblets and hard boiled egg; equal parts peanut butter and chopped prunes mixed with orange juice; prunes and chopped nuts; tuna fish and chopped olives; cream cheese and dried beef; cream cheese and apricot; grated American cheese and blackberry jam; corned beef and cole slaw; chopped ham and corn.

Use a Rubber Ring

To keep a dish from slipping when placed on ice, place a rubber preserve ring underneath it. It will stick to both dish and ice.

When embroidering with different colored threads time is saved by having several needles each threaded with a different color.

Glycerin rubbed over corks for glass shoe polish, china cement, etc., will keep them from sticking to the neck.

Thrift in Cooking Meat Add a Dandy Dish

Steaks, chops and chickens seem expensive meats, taking into consideration the waste, bones and fat, but for the wom... who combines business and homemaking they represent true economy in that all-too-precious commodity, time.

It is a fact, however, that much of the meat bought in the form of steaks and chops is spoiled through careless cooking. Porter House steak, for instance—that most delicious of all meats—is seldom cooked to give it full value. The tail piece is usually overcooked before the rest of the steak is done, and is often discarded. This tail piece, however, has a fine flavor and if it is cooked carefully is very desirable.

Trim the meat from the fat and put this piece of lean tail meat—and, of course, we all know it really isn't a tail, but the way the steak is cut it has that appearance)—through the food chopper twice.

Season with ¼ tsp. salt and a few grains of pepper. Mix with a few dry bread crumbs and add 1 egg. Stir lightly with a fork until thoroughly blended and shape in a small meat cake, about the thickness of the steak. Fit the cake into the side of the steak.

WHAT DOES YOUR MIRROR SAY?

TO MANY WOMEN the mounting birthdays bring a little less beauty, a few more wrinkles, a complexion that has lost its youth and charm. Yet for others, Time seems to stand still.

The difference is often a matter of diet. So many foods lack sufficient roughage or bulk. Without it, constipation is inevitable. Its poisons spread over the whole system, causing ill health and loss of youth.

Today, you can prevent it easily by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Two tablespoonfuls daily are guaranteed to prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In stubborn cases, eat ALL-BRAN with each meal. This is so much better than taking pills and drugs that may be harmful.

Advanced processes have improved Kellogg's ALL-BRAN both in texture and in the delicious, nut-like taste.

Delightful with milk or cream, fruits or honey added. Use it for making fluffy bran muffins, breads, etc.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also brings iron, which paints cheeks and lips with the natural tint of health. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

WOMEN'S PLACE NO LONGER IN THE HOME

Washington, Sept. 12 (AP)—A 90-year study of women in gainful occupations, from 1870 to 1920, today was published by the United States Census Bureau as background for 1930 census discoveries on feminine status.

Dr. Joseph A. Hill, assistant to the census director, author of the monograph, pronounced its theme one of the most interesting economic studies in the province of the census.

A foreword by Seymour L. Andrew set forth:

"Whatever opinions may be held as to the proper sphere of women, the fact is that, to a considerable extent, woman's place today no longer is in the home."

In 1920, Dr. Hill discovered, 24 per cent of all women were engaged in gainful occupations, women comprising 20 per cent of the total working population. One married woman in 11 was working for a wage, and two of every nine women at work were married. Of unmarried women, 48.6 per cent, or almost half, were earning money.

A special study of married women in 11 cities was included in the monograph to answer the question, "Do gainfully employed married women have a normal home life?"

It was found that in these cities, Fall River, Mass.; Providence, R. I.; Rochester, N. Y.; Paterson, N. J.; Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Paul, Kansas City, Mo.; Atlanta, Louisville and New Orleans, 87.6 per cent of the married women engaged in gainful occupations were not living with their husbands in homes of their own, but were either boarders or lodgers.

FINE POOL MAN $200; 2 HELD

Half a dozen runners and number writers for the "number pools" were before Judge Zottolli in Municipal court today in furtherance of Police Commissioner Hultman's order to stop the activities of this lottery.

Peter Sotis, alleged to be a pool agent in the Union park district, was arrested by Special Officers Joseph Condon and Joseph Hart of the Back Bay.

They testified he had upon his person when arrested 121 slips, each of which represented payment to him of from 40 cents to $8, indicating he had collected in the day approximately $400.

Sotis, it was charged, works for the largest and most prosperous branch of the pool. He was arrested two weeks ago and paid $50 fine. Today he was fined $200 and appealed.

Officers Pimenthal and Hurst of East Dedham st. station appeared against James Deline and George Glaco, both of Tremont st., charged with maintaining a lottery in a store. This case was continued to September 19.

'I. M. Sorry' Sends $130 to Druggist He Cheated

New Bedford, Sept. 12 (AP)—An unregistered letter, bearing a Baltimore postmark and containing $130 in cash, spelled enigma to Charles D. Cundall, a druggist today.

Opening his mail, Cundall found the letter. Enclosed was a note, signed by "I. M. Sorry." It read:

"Dear Sir—In a business deal some years ago I cheated you to the extent of $125 and am now forwarding that amount, with a little in addition, with the hope of rectifying the harm I did you."

The recipient said the affair was a mystery to him, since he had no idea of the sender's identity or any recollection of a deal in which he was cheated.

GIRL HELD AS ABDUCTOR

Charged with abduction and enticing of a 22-year-old girl, Florence M. Armstrong, 36, of Cambridge, was arraigned today in Superior Court at Dedham on a secret indictment warrant.

She is alleged to have taken Thelma I. Lewis, 22, to a cottage in Wellesley, where an attack was made by Mark Shain, 30, of Cambridge.

The Cambridge woman was also charged with aiding Shain in the committing of a felony. She was held in $3000 for trial. Miss Lewis, according to the charge, applied to the Armstrong woman for work and was taken to the Wellesley cottage on the pretext that an employer there must have an interview.

Sues Policeman for Taking Money

Central Falls, R. I., Sept. 12 (AP)—Frank Padykula, store proprietor today instituted a civil action against Patrolman George Collette to recover $300 which, he alleged, Collette removed from a safe in Padykula's store during a liquor raid.

23 Pupils Injured as Bus Overturns

Wooster, O., Sept. 12 (INS)—Twenty-three high school pupils were injured today when the bus in which they were being taken to Wooster high school overturned on a hill south of here. All were taken to a hospital. None was fatally hurt.

AVIATION SHOW FOR LEGION PLANNED

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

With Boston opening its arms to the American Legion next month, the Boston municipal airport at Jeffries Point, is planning a celebration of its own for the legionnaires, it was learned today.

City officials, having organized and operated the recent Tercentenary air show, the commercial operators are believed to feel the responsibility of welcoming the legion men from all parts of the country to the airport and giving them a show that will remain in their memories.

The show will either take place during the legion convention, scheduled October 6 to 9, or will be held the week-end of the 4th and 5th.

According to the commercial operators at the airport, the recent show put on by the city helped business more than they can say, and they feel they owe a debt to citizens of Greater Boston. In addition to that, most of the managers, pilots and mechanics were members of the various military units during the World War. These boys have a warm spot in their hearts for the Legionnaires, and want to make their stay here pleasant in the aeronautical line.

A meeting is to be held this week to decide details. It was said that an aerial show second to none would be presented.

Biggest Thefts in Ceylon—Elephants!

Colombo, Ceylon, Sept. 12 (AP)—Elephant stealing is on the increase in Ceylon. Mahouts seldom endeavor to sell the beasts, owing to the difficulty of obtaining the necessary bills of sale. Instead they take stolen animals to some remote part of Ceylon and hire out their services.

13 Killed in Riots Over Kurd Crisis

Bagdad, Irak, Sept. 12 (AP)—Dissatisfaction of Kurds with the new Anglo-Irak treaty led to rioting yesterday outside the government offices at Sulaimani in which 13 persons were killed and 35 injured.

Canadian 'Mountie' Kills Wife and Self

Toronto, Sept. 12 (AP)—Angered when his bride of two months ordered him out of her parent's home, Simon McIntosh, 30, a Royal Canadian Mounted Police constable, shot and killed her today. Walking then to the rear of the house he shot himself, dying instantly.

Children CRY for it

It may be the little stomach; it may be the bowels are sluggish. No matter what coats a child's tongue, its a safe and sensible precaution to give a few drops of Castoria. This gentle regulation of the little system soon sets things to rights. A pure vegetable preparation that can't harm a wee infant, but brings quick comfort—even when it is colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance.

And don't forsake Castoria as the child grows older. If you want to raise boys and girls with strong systems that will ward off constipation, stick to good old Castoria; and give nothing stronger when there's any irregularity except on the advice of a doctor. Castoria is sold in every drugstore, and the genuine always bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

News of Society Circles and Current Events Among Women's Clubs

Groton Hunt Mecca of Smart Set

THAT PORTION OF SOCIETY devoted to sports is today revelling in the performances of the equine aristocrats at the annual Groton Hunt Club show. Boston is well represented in the saddle and the smart set throngs the gallery at the Groton Fair grounds. Mrs. E. M. Grinnell of Shirley and Gen. Francis Peabody of Milton are the judges this year, and their principal award will be the Groton Hunt Club competition cup, which was won last season by the Millwood Hunt Club team. Mrs. Richard Ely Danielson is showing some of her new mounts and Miss Dorothy Neyhart of Framingham also has her hunters jumping for trophies. Riding in the 12 classes entered are Miss Betty Bird and her debutante sister, Miss Patricia Bird, Miss Isabella Grandin, Miss Nancy St. John Smith, Miss Betty Dumaine, Miss Clarissa Donham, Miss Sylvia Warren, Misses Katharine and Evelyn Thayer, Miss Cynthia Crocker and Bartow Crocker, Jr., of Pittsburgh. One of the delightful features of the show is the luncheon at the clubhouse, where exhibitors and their guests assemble, and later for afternoon tea at the same place.

MRS. DANIELSON AND MISS DUMAINE are on the woman's entertainment committee for the big Boston Horse Show, which opens on Oct. 28 in the Boston Garden. Mrs. Richard Saltonstall is chairman of this committee, assisted by Mrs. Robert Almy, Mrs. Walter Channing, president, and Mrs. Fields and their two daughters, Mrs. Sumner Pingree (Mary Weld) and Mrs. George S. West. Plans for a barn supper dance to be held at the Copley-Plaza on the opening night of the show are to be perfected at a meeting of this group next week. Several dinners will be given in connection with horse show week and a brilliant turnout socially from many eastern cities will add to the gayety of the affair.

THE YOUNGER SET WILL gather this evening at the Essex County Club at Manchester for a bon voyage dance complimenting Miss Lucile Swift, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Swift. Miss Swift is entertaining at dinner for a large group of her friends and her sister, Miss Ruth, is also giving a dinner party for 30 young people before the dance. Miss Lucile is to leave for Florence, Italy, where she will study this winter.

THE FIRST DEBUTANTE IN the illustrious Roosevelt family, Miss Grace Green Roosevelt, daughter of Theodore Roosevelt, Governor of Porto Rico, will be honored this evening at a supper dance at Mohannes, the Oyster Bay estate of the Kermit Roosevelts, who are entertaining for her. Miss Roosevelt is the eldest grandchild of the late President Roosevelt. Later in the season she will be feted by her parents and by Clarence H. Mackay, who has planned a dinner dance for her at his town house in East 75th st., New York.

THE ENGAGEMENT OF Miss Eleanor Remsen Cushman of New York and Marblehead, to Harmon B. MacGregor of New York, is announced by her brother, Norman F. Cushman. Miss Cushman is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Archibald F. Cushman of New York and belongs to the old Gotham family of that name, prominent for many generations there.

COL. AND MRS. I. VERNON Briggs, and their son, L. Cabot Briggs, are the guests for part of August of the Duchesse de Mailé at her beautiful chateau at Chanteuil, cher France. On the 16th of August they attended a tea given by the Comtesse de Mortemart at her chateau Meillant, said to be the most perfect chateau in all France.

MRS. FREDERICK R SEARS, JR., is at the Savoy-Plaza from Manchester for a stay of a few days.

MR. AND MRS. LEONARD WHEELER (Constance Baicke) are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cabot at Barnstable, on the Cape.

MRS. GORDON ABBOTT, JR., was in charge of the water sport program at the Manchester Yacht Club, one of the annual events of the North Shore, which was postponed from last month.

MISS MARGARET CORLIES of Att-Lea house, Magnolia, is opening her residence for an exhibition and sale of the International Students' Exchange tomorrow and Thursday. Mrs. Philip Rhinelander will be joint hostess with Miss Corlies, and assisting them are Mrs. Russell S. Codman, Mrs. Amory Eliot, Mrs. Evans Dick, Jr., Mrs. Walter J. Mitchell, Mrs. Roger Sturgis, Miss Edith Fisher and Mrs. George E. Warren.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON IS TO be feted with a testimonial dinner at Newport, made possible largely through donations by the fashionable summer colony. At this dinner the city of Newport trophy, won by the Westamon in the recent races, will be presented to former Commodore George Nicholas of the New York Yacht Club, who raced the sloop on that occasion.

Y. W. C. A. Courses Include Many New Features

By NANCY BREWSTER

The Y. W. C. A. classes are not alone for girls. They are also for men, if escorted by girls. Such is the edict of the "Y" officials this season. Several new subjects are on the adult education program to be presented at the Clarendon st. building.

New features include the Saturday morning classes in contract and auction bridge, dressmaking, jewelry, sewing, America, Italian and everyday law. Miss Dorothy Hewitt of the education staff of the "Y" points out that the subjects which the majority most eagerly seek are those which make one more acceptable socially; either on the job or off.

Chairman of the general education committee is Mrs. Everett O Fiske of Brookline; director of general education, Dorothy Hewitt; associate director, Lucille S. House; secretary, Katherine Tisdale; registrars, Anita D. Ogren and Jane E. Martin.

Auburn Club Group Starts Fall Season at Meeting Sept. 17

The first meeting of the year for the Auburn Woman's Club will be held at the Town Hall next Wednesday at 2:30 p. m., with an address by Professor Zelotes Coombs of the Worcester Polytechnic Institute on "Puritan Influences," the principal feature of the afternoon.

The program is to be of a Tercentenary observance nature, Mrs Bertha F. Spaulding, press correspondent, informs, with a reception to follow the regular business session. Members of the hospitality committee are to act as hostesses, and include Mrs. Arthur W. Warren, chairman; Mrs. Hallis A. Pratt, Mrs. Arthur W. Stone, Mrs. Levere O. Irish, Mrs. Arthur L. Dexter and Mrs. Fred Kingdon.

Jewish Women Plan Fall Reception as Opening Function

With plans for the fall reception under way, the Jewish Women's College Club is revising its active membership list, requesting members to communicate all changes of address to Miss Sadie Goren, 26 Schuyler st., Roxbury, chairman of membership.

All women who hold degrees from recognized colleges and universities are eligible for membership in this organization, which has for its chief pursuit, scholarships given to deserving and needy young women desirous of a college education.

Boston Society to Greet Grand Duchess Marie

THE GRAND DUCHESS MARIE of Russia has arrived in this country and Boston is on her itinerary for November 21. The Grand Duchess will appear under the banner of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters and will speak on the progress of the Russian woman. She is of the royal Russian line and is a granddaughter of Czar Alexander II and a daughter of Grand Duchess Alexandra, whose father was King George of Greece. This will be the first visit of the Grand Duchess Marie to Boston.

National Council Announces Weekly Radio Broadcast

Mrs. Frances P. Parks, president of the National Council of Women announces a weekly radio program broadcast at 3.30 p. m. every Monday, in which affairs of interest to women everywhere will be discussed. This radio period will give home women the same opportunity to keep in touch with women's world-wide activities as the 10,000,000 women in the council now possess.

The Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs broadcast, of which Mrs. Leon White is the director, will begin the last of this month. It is also a weekly broadcast with prominent Bay State clubwomen giving federated clubwomen Federation messages.

General Federation 'Asks Clubwomen to Study Legislation

The General Federation of Women's Clubs present organization of all the state federations through out the country opposes these measures and, with their avowed opposition, asks clubwomen to study and consider the bills: Equal rights amendment, Sheppard-Towner, National Park bill, and the bill for the repeal of the 18th amendment.

Interest in Mental Hygiene Sought by Miss Vida Newsom

Mental hygiene interest is asked of American clubwomen by Miss Vida Newsom, chairman of the committee on mental hygiene in the General Federation.

She says:

"Do you know that the conservation of mental health is quite as important as the conservation of physical health? Mental like physical hygiene is a community problem. Clubwomen have a record of achievement in the creating of public opinion as to the importance of various phases of physical hygiene in the interest of public health, and they can have an immense influence in helping to impress upon the people of the State the fact that they should know about mental hygiene, its relation to the prevention of mental disease, and the conservation and improvement of mental health. Now is the time for club program building. Arrange one or more programs pertaining to some of the many phases of this topic."

Mrs. Carl W. Illig, Jr., of Onset, the new chairman of public health in the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, plans to embody these suggestions in her fall program.

Black—And the Minaret Tunic

By ANN ARDEN

MODEL FROM WM. FILENE'S SONS CO.

EVEN THE GOOD OLD summertime may begin to irk, with its superabundance of pastels and prettiness. And a smart dining and dancing engagement at this stage in the calendar may seem ample justification for indulging in a little staid but inexpressibly satisfying black frock.

As a concession to the season still lingering, the fabric will most likely be net or chiffon. In aspects other than fabric the thrilling little autumn number will be entirely new-season.

When black for the first subtle inference of fall-mindedness suggests a fabric other than chiffon, there are stiff black satins, lovely crepelike black velvets, black taffetas and soft black crepes from which to select. Other silhouettes are in high standing, too; namely, the Grecian and tiered

* * *

THE BLACK FROCK pictured has youthful charm, and would be a welcome addition to any college girl's wardrobe. Of black net over satin, the persian or minaret tunic is encrusted with a design of black sequins, the skirt is very full, and ankle length. The round neckline is deeper in back, where it is accented with three silk flowers toned emerald green. An emerald bracelet is worn, and a necklace of brilliants, with double drops of emeralds.

It is exceedingly smart to accent either black or white evening gowns with emerald green, ruby or turquoise in flowers, jewels and slippers.

* * *

IN THE EVENING, along with the still popular opera pump, there are others. A white moire slipper with a wide cut-out has a green enamel trim on the instep and base of the heel. A very interesting slipper is one of red brocade with checked design in gold thread. Piping of heel and trim are gold kid. Another open shank model in black satin with silver kid trim was seen dancing recently.

Sequins are employed on jackets as well as gowns, while the little coat of white fur continues smart as well as useful.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social questions or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WHDH.

ANN ARDEN broadcasts latest style news over WHDH every Tuesday and Thursday at 11 a. m.

Society Throngs Newport for Yachting Classic

Newport, R. I., Sept. 12 (AP)—Ghostly white in the moonlight, there moved into Narragansett bay last night a princely flotilla of pleasure craft—schooners, sloops and power boats—come to carry their owners out tomorrow to the greatest spectacle that yachting has to offer.

Past Breton's reef lightship they came into the quiet cove that is Newport's harbor and dropped anchor near the green Shamrock V, and the slim, white Enterprise. Society was there—great names and vast fortunes—aboard yachts famous up and down the Atlantic seaboard. But not only society.

MORGANS EXPECTED

A list of the craft here or expected reads like a register of yachts. The Viking, with George F. Baker and his guests, Mr. and Mrs. W. Goadby Loew, aboard, was anchored near Sir Thomas Lipton's Erin.

And near the Viking was the Iolanda, which will carry Mrs. Moses Taylor of New York, and her guests, out to the race tomorrow. The Wayfarer, owned by W. W. Aldrich, vice-commodore of the New York Yacht Club and a member of the Enterprise afterguard, rode at anchor near the Vara, which belongs to Harold S. Vanderbilt, skipper of the Enterprise. Down nearer the New York Yacht Club dock was the Resolute, winner of the cup 10 years ago, with her owner, Edward W. Clark, of Philadelphia, aboard.

BOSTON REPRESENTED.

The Hi-Esmaro came in last night with her owners, Mr. and Mrs. H. Edward Manville of New York. Also aboard the Hi-Esmaro were Mr. and Mrs. H. Edward Manville, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. George B. Coe, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight C. Harris and Franklin A. Plummer.

Mr. and Mrs. Junius S. Morgan and their guests were expected to arrive some time today on J. P. Morgan's big black Corsair.

Among other society notables who arrived last night were Mr. and Mrs. Colgate Hoyt of Oyster Bay, on the Tide; Mr. and Mrs. Philip R. Mallory of Milton Point, N. Y., on the Seaward; William Butler Dunreu of New York, chairman of the racing committee, on the Javelin; Gerard B. Lambert of Princeton, on the Queen Mab; Mr. and Mrs. Louis K. Liggett of Boston, on the Amilee; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Sears of Boston on the Hardi Bisou; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Oelrichs of New York, on the Cressida; Commodore Vincent Astor of the New York Yacht Club, on the Nourmahal; Arthur Curtiss James, on the Aloha, and Eldridge R. Johnson of Philadelphia, on the Caroline.

While the harbor is crowded with yachts, however, many of the big estates have been closed for the season. The weather had turned cool and Bailey's Beach, "The most exclusive spot in America," was almost deserted yesterday.

Col. Green Reported "Doing Splendidly"

New Bedford, Sept. 12—Colonel Edward H. R. Green was reported doing splendidly today by Dr. Henry S. Pascal, New York physician, who performed a blood transfusion for him July 31, and who arrived in New Bedford and gave the colonel a thorough examination.

Morrow Will Quit Post on October 1

Mexico City, Sept. 12—Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, acting doyen of the diplomatic corps here, will arrive in Washington between Oct. 1 and Oct. 3, there to tender his resignation as American ambassador to Mexico and confer with supporters of his coming New Jersey Senatorial campaign.

Demand Removal of Nude Statue

Berlin, Sept. 12—The statue of a nude woman, recently unveiled by President von Hindenburg in Mayence as the symbol of the liberated Rhineland after 12 years of foreign occupation, has aroused the ire and indignation of this city's clergy.

Blanco in Morocco

Melilla, Morocco, Sept. 12—Prof. Enrique Blanco of the University of Iowa, and his wife, who sailed from the United States in a small yacht, has arrived here.

TROLLEY HITS TRUCK; 5 HURT

Springfield, Sept. 12—Five members of a national guard unit were injured, one seriously, when a trolley car struck a truck in which they were riding, pushing it 100 feet and overturning it.

Private William Wallace, 21, the driver, was taken to Wesson Memorial Hospital, where his name is on the danger list.

The others, who suffered minor hurts, were Sergt. George LaVoice, Privates Archie Gagne, Edgar Bedell and Alfred Dambrosio. All except Gagne, who lives in Ludlow, are residents of this city.

A half-dozen passengers and the crew of the street car were shaken up.

THE PORT OF BOSTON IN REVIEW

By CARL MORRISON

Masters of incoming vessels are still complaining about the amount of debris, barrels, logs, etc., which is floating in the harbor and causing damage to ship propellers.

In New York the police department has a fleet of Banfield sea skiffs which patrol the harbor and pick up this debris.

In Boston, there is no unification of this type of work, for 10 different organizations have divided responsibilities. The Port Authority and the Foreign Commerce Club are now endeavoring to coordinate these.

The climax was reached in the harbor recently when the police boat itself—out seeking floating rubbish—was laid up for repairs on account of striking a log or similar obstacle.

At an early date, a test case is to be made. This will consist of an arrest made against some firm or person seen throwing rubbish in the harbor.

DENIES REPORT

A report has persisted in the harbor to the effect that the Bush Terminal in New York had purchased the lease of the local operators of the Army Base terminal. This has been thoroughly checked and found to be without foundation.

Col. Gerhardt, vice-president, was reached by telephone and informed the writer that this report "is news to me." The general manager of the Bush terminal also confirmed the vice-president. The minority stockholders of the Boston enterprise were reached and denied that their court claims had been adjusted out of court, or that they had sold their interests.

OUTWARD BOUND

The British owned Wooburn has completed unloading of her 5000 ton cargo of Russian coal, consigned here through John G. Hall Co., and has moved to the quarantine section awaiting orders from the owners.

Capt. R. J. H. Lester has made many friends during his two weeks here, and was a guest at the Foreign Commerce Club banquet. He has a distinguished war record, which included service under fire. Twice his ships were sunk by German submarines, and once he floated six days in an open rowboat as a result of a torpedo.

He was in Boston four years ago and declares that a newspaper spirit of port boosting is very evident this year.

WINNING TICKETS

Several of Capt. McCarthy's pupils at the Bay State Navigation School have recently won their "tickets" as masters or mates. Those recently given certificates are:

Owen H. Byrne of Argonne Hotel, Boston, master on any ocean; William Hanlon of 18 Salem st., Medford, master; William Ragen of 3 Prescott st., East Boston, second mate; Mathew J Fahey of 654 East Broadway, South Boston, master and pilot; E. W. Bengtson of 15 Sunset rd., Winthrop, master on any ocean.

REBUILD THE PIERS

A movement is underway to have the East Boston piers strengthened by rebuilding with cement piling. At present if a large vessel took a sheer when docking, and struck the piers, several would collapse.

LARGEST LIST

Due in Boston late Sunday or early Monday is the Cunarder Laconia. She has 564 local passengers, said to be the largest list landed here this year. Of these 222 are cabin, 172 tourist and 160 third class.

BOSTONIANS AFLOAT

On the Red Star liner Westernland, sailing today from New York for Plymouth, Cherbourg and Antwerp, are the following Bostonians: Dr. William Dunn, chief surgeon of the Boston police department, and Mrs. Frank E. Churchill, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Gillett, Mr. and Mrs. Barnaby Morgan, the Misses Helen and Anne Mozart, Miss Frieda Allen, Miss Lucy F. Allen, Rev. Joseph Sweeney, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Swords and son, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Vaney.

On the White Star liner Olympic, saying New York tonight for Cherbourg and Southampton, are, Mrs. Emily Pattgrew, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Stanton, Sir and Mrs. Alfred A. Glidden, all of Boston.

On the French line flagship de France, sailing today from New York for Plymouth and Havre, are: E. O. smith of Framingham, manager of the Universal Winding Co. of Boston, accompanied by Mrs. Smith and E. O. Smith, Jr.; Miss Mary W. Winslow, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bridge, Jr., all of Boston.

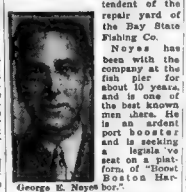
On the French liner Rochambeau, sailing yesterday from New York for Vigo, Spain and Havre were Miss Elvira A. Sylvia and Miss Julia P. Sylvia, both of Boston.

TODAY'S WHO'S WHO

The subject of today's "Who's Who in Boston Harbor" is George E. Noyes of East Boston, superintendent of the repair yard of the Bay State Fishing Co.



George E. Noyes

Noyes has been with the company at the fish pier for about 10 years, and is one of the best known men there. He is an ardent port booster and is seeking a legislative seat on a platform of "Boost Boston Harbor."

This resident of Ward 1 is commander of Post 608 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. During the war he was one of the survivors of the U. S. transport Mount Vernon which was torpedoed in the English channel.

Noyes was a football player with the Flton A. C. and his other hobbies are baseball and "keeping young" with his three little girls.

CHICAGO BOMB MARS PROBE

Chicago, Sept. 12 (AP)—An extortionist's bomb splotched up the opening of the Grand Jury's investigation of racketeering today.

Just a few hours before the inquiry, the family of John Valentino was blasted from sleep by a bomb explosion which damaged their home.

Valentino, a street car company laborer, told police he had been threatened with death, unless he paid $2000 to a man "who would approach and ask for a match."

Prominent civic leaders—33 of them, headed by Col. A. A. Sprague—supported State's Attorney John A. Swanson in his drive to put racketeers on the legal rack. Swanson said the investigation would continue until business was no longer a prey to the racketeer.

Newton Outing

The twenty-fourth anniversary of formation of the Newton City Employes' Local, No. 175, will be observed at an outing to be held tomorrow at Indian Hill Farm, Oakhow rd., Wayland.

FEAR VOLCANO'S NEW BLAST

Messina, Italy, Sept. 12 (AP)—The people of Messina, Stromboli and Lipari today turned anxious eyes toward the Stromboli volcano, which, strangely silent after its latest eruption, had kept thousands awake and on the alert throughout the night.

The nearly 3000 residents of Stromboli island slept in the open, under tents provided by government ships hurriedly sent after yesterday's eruption and violent earthquake shock. Three thousand feet above was the peak of the volcano, mysteriously quiet, but with all of its reawakened deadly potentialities.

All of the Aeolian islands were affected by the earthquake, but only the picturesque island of Stromboli suffered from the volcanic disturbance.

WEEI Carries an Address on Crime, Heard at 4:45 P. M.

Edgar Wallace, English author whose mystery stories have kept millions of Americans awake nights, will discuss crime before a British microphone and through WEEI, the broadcast beginning between 4 45 and 5 p. m. "American Crime from an English Viewpoint" is the title of the address.

As one of the most prolific of English novelists, with a world-wide reputation as a writer of thrilling crime stories, Wallace is well qualified to speak on law violation.

Wallace also is the author of "Northern Trump," a story which deals with the upper section of New York state, and which is considered the best American adventure story written by an English

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

If there is any person associated with the great business of radio broadcasting whose opinions are worth hearing, that one is Miss Bertha Brainard, veteran program director for the National Broadcasting Co., who has written a very interesting article which appears in this week's Collier's.

Possibly the more intricate mechanics of the broadcasting equipment, or the complicated phases of the business end may be something with which she is not familiar; but it is a certainty that no one in the world of radio entertainment can surpass Miss Brainard in knowledge of arranging and staging big programs.

We cannot go deeply into the subject of this gifted woman here; space prohibits it. But we do wish to quote what she has to say concerning announcers. It is her assertion that there are nine typical announcers who stand at the top of the list, and whose examples must be followed by all lesser lights in the small army of aerial heralds throughout the country.

They are: Graham McNamee for the light, airy, jocose, informal manner of announcing; Milton Cross for the dignified and important; Curt Peterson for the cool and detached; Alwyn Bach for the meticulously exact drawing-room manner; Phil Carlin and Ted Husing for the debonaire, man-about-town style, and Norman Brokenshire for the chummy, have-another type of friendliness.

While young singers in hundreds of communities are smoothing out their vocal cords in anticipation of the 1930 National Radio Audition, conducted by the Atwater Kent Foundation, the young people of Massachusetts have taken time by the forelock and are already providing candidates for the state audition to be held next month.

The first to qualify for the state audition were Louise Weihelmina Raab, soprano, of Springfield, and Bernardo Bartolomeau Campagna, tenor, of the same city.

It was quite a unique and interesting experience which Joe Lopez, star announcer at WNAC, had the other day. Mr. Lopez was just about to go on the air with a solo selection for the WNAC Women's Club program when a visitor was announced.

Visitors are numerous at that station, but it happened that this particular caller was once a Salvation Army war-time nurse, whose gentle administrations helped to pull Joe through a bad case of the 'flu, when he was across in France. Needless to remark it was a happy meeting, in honor of which he sang "That Salvation Lassie of Mine."

Score another victory for radio! A statement has recently been made by a noted "correction official" that there has never been a genuine outbreak against authority in prisons that have been completely radio equipped. The Brunswick Radio Corporation hopes the statement is true, and have started a national check-up to find out what the heads of the different state controlled institutions have to report.

Well, why not! What more can a man need than a good warm cell, three meals regular and plenty of entertainment.

Out of the ether . . . We understand that Ervel Von Alsdorf who will be heard over WBZ-WBZA tonight at 10:45 will also have her program broadcast over the short-wave length station, WXAZ . . . Mickie Alpert, who has joined the ranks of orchestra leaders, will be today's Noon Day Revue guest artist over WNAC . . . The romance of the telephone will be portrayed over WNAC at 6.45 tonight. The program will stress the trying days when Alexander Graham Bell, engaged as a professor at Boston U., spent all his spare time in experimenting to make the telephone a reality. Not realizing that the wrong-number industry would grow to its present monstrous size.

"Just a few words of praise of your medicine. Nothing gave me relief and health as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did. I am a practical nurse and was so rundown that I was unable to work. I used to suffer agonies at times and would have to lie down the biggest part of the day. After two bottles of Vegetable Compound I felt better. Now I have used ten bottles and feel fine. I recommend it to many of my patients."—Mrs. Florence Johnson, R. R. #3, Chetopa, Kansas.

2 ANTI-KNOCK
3 DRY

TEXACO ETHYL . . THE DRY ETHYL!

THREE sources of extra power! That's what distinguishes Texaco-Ethyl as outstanding in the premium gasoline field. That's what is making millions of motorists give up their pet "one-feature" motor fuels and flock to the Texaco-Ethyl pump. It gives more than just the extra power and speed of a high-test fuel. More than just a quiet, smoother-running engine! It gives you all of these qualities—plus the amazing starting and pick-up that made the new and better Texaco Gasoline, the original "dry" gas, famous. Try Texaco-Ethyl today. It's better because it's "dry".

THE TEXAS COMPANY . . . Texaco Petroleum Products

JUST as Texaco Aviation Gasoline plus Ethyl gave Captain Hawkins superior engine performance on his record breaking coast-to-coast flights, so Texaco-Ethyl Gasoline provides superior engine performance in your car.

TYPICAL NEW ENGLAND GIRLS? Hundreds of them are, but the one who best typifies the spirit of New England will be selected after midnight, September 15, by five judges, outstanding and notable citizens of the six states, and sent to Paris as the Boston Evening American's guest. Today we present for your approval Phyllis E. Tuttle, a voice and piano student at the New England Conservatory of Music, and Helen M. Knight, a University of South Carolina miss, now a Boston secretary.

TYPICAL GIRL QUEST ENDS SEPT. 15

There is very little left for the Typical New England Girl Editor to write. Only three days more to go for the Typical New England Girl Contest and then the big chance will be over and the task of finding the ONE girl begins.

That free trip to Paris is as alluring as it was the first day we printed word of the contest, last August 15. Hundreds of New England girls have taken advantage of the opportunity. Those who have neglected the chance will just be sorry when the quest ends at midnight, Sept. 15.

All entrants sending completed coupons and photographs to the Typical New England Girl Editor, bearing a Sept. 15 date mark will be eligible, though it may reach the Boston Evening American offices at a late date. But it MUST have the Sept. 15 post mark to be considered.

As a last minute suggestion, the Typical New England Girl Editor will have photographs taken of candidates should they come to the Boston Evening American building, 5 Winthrop sq., today, tomorrow or Monday between 9 a. m. and 5:30 p. m., without charge, to allow every girl equal opportunity in this unusual contest.

The mail is getting bulkier for the Typical New England Girl Editor. The contest gets keener with the hours. The time draws near, young women. Don't miss this one big opportunity and be sorry.

Until midnight, Sept. 15—

This Coupon Makes You or a Friend Eligible to Paris Trip

FIND $75,000 CRATER BONDS

New York, Sept. 12 (AP)—The New York World says an examination of the safe deposit box of Joseph Force Crater, missing supreme court justice, resulted in the discovery of securities worth $75,000.

When Crater disappeared Aug. 6 he had virtually depleted his two bank accounts by withdrawing $5500, generally believed the extent of his wealth.

Discovery of the securities was made by friends who pointed out that Crater, had he desired, could have realized many times the sum he took with him.

Meanwhile, police pressed their search for the missing justice in the Adirondack mountains. The manager of a public hunting lodge at Racquette lake said that two men, one of whom he was "positive" was Crater, had stopped at the lodge Aug. 30 and part of Aug. 31.

Havana Vies With Reno as Mecca for Divorces

Havana, Sept. 12 (AP)—Paris and Reno, gay meccas of divorce-bent Americans, are experiencing a bit of Latin-American competition which, in the opinion of attorneys here, is to grow stronger as time wears on.

Six months ago the Cuban Congress passed a new code of divorce laws. Today, because of the ease in obtaining a Cuban divorce, barristers are preparing for a boom. The wheels of the divorce mill already have begun to grind. Court records show that, so far, 20 Americans have tried its product.

It is estimated that the cost of a Cuban divorce, including attorney's fees and minor expenses, is in the neighborhood of $300.

Court Takes Custody of 'Home Brew' Children

Geneva, Ill., Sept. 12 (AP)—Through their children, State's Attorney George Carbary of Kane County today brandished a new legal weapon against illicit home brewers.

Asserting the home of Simon De Brock, which yielded beer and mash to raiders, was an improper place for rearing children, Carbary obtained from Judge Olney C. Allen an order placing the five De Brock children in custody of the county court.

A determined upholder of the dry statute since the slaying of Mrs. Joseph De King in March, 1929, during a raid by agents from his office, Carbary promised further use of the new enforcement procedure against violators.

The De Brock children will be permitted to remain at home under strict supervision of a probation officer. Should there be further offenses against the dry law in the home, the children will be taken from her, Carbary told Mrs. De Brock. De Brock was fined $500 and sentenced to six months in jail.

Explorer's Wife to Hunt White Rhino

Pittsburgh, Sept. 12—A woman will hunt the white rhinoceros in Africa this winter.

Just back from a trip of exploration in Africa, Rudyard Boulton of Carnegie Museum here, and his wife, Laura, were induced to return to hunt for a white rhinoceros and for Africa's most elusive animal, the giant sable.

NEW NASH LOW PRICED '8'

The Nash Motors Company will soon make an important announcement of a new line of motor cars, according to reports today. For some time the industry and the trade have been looking for the pronouncement.

Reports current have reference to a new low-priced eight by Nash and the probability that this car will be the lowest-priced eight in the world. Besides this car, it is said that there will be two other eights, one in the moderate priced field and one selling at a medium price.

The same reports have it that Nash plans a low-priced six-cylinder car—the lowest priced car Nash has ever built. It is reported that shipments of this new six are already being made.

Rickenbacker Hurt Walking in Sleep

New York, Sept. 12—Col. Eddie Rickenbacker, former World War ace and automobile racer, was injured in a 25-foot fall while sleep walking.

Col. Rickenbacker said the injury was not serious. He fell from a balcony of his home at Riverdale-on-Hudson to the lawn during an attack of somnambulism.

Typos Vote Today on Base Change

Houston, Tex., Sept. 12—That headquarters of the International Typographical Union be moved from Indianapolis to another city will be voted on today at the annual convention of the organization here.

A commission of seven, appointed in Seattle last year, reported in favor of removing the headquarters, and the committee on laws reported favorably upon constitutional changes necessary to effect the transfer.

Boston was awarded the 1931 convention by a close vote over Winnipeg.

DAILY ANTIQUE

No. 191

This tall Dutch clock of amboyna inlaid with a lighter wood was made in Amsterdam in the early 18th century by Harmanus Huystandt. It was designed to accord with the articles of furniture used at that time, and the generous use of decorative ornaments gave the clockmaker opportunity for individual expression. Note the three figures on the ogival top; one carries a beacon to light the path of time, a second announces its passing by means of a trumpet, while a third, with a sickle in his hand reaps the reward of years. The detailed carving above the face is a fitting border for the engraved brass dial with its astronomical lunette above it. The entire appearance radiates a stolid but graceful simplicity that is characteristic of Dutch workmanship.

This clock, a bequest of George Nixon Black, may be seen at the Museum of Fine Arts, in the Netherlands Gallery.

Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Owners of antiques of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. If a photograph is not available, the American will send a cameraman to photograph the antique, providing the owner lives in Greater Boston. Address the Antique Editor, Boston Evening American, 8 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass.

German Publisher Dead

Berlin, Sept. 12—Eugene Diederichs, 63, German publisher, died at his home in Jena after a long illness.

HUNT MOTHER MISSING 21 YRS.

A hunt for the mother she last saw 21 years ago was begun today by Miss Alice Gilmore, of 20 Bancroft st., Watertown, whose name once was Marie Young.

She doesn't remember her mother, for she was just a year old when they were seperated, but she longs to see her again and help her to happiness in her declining years, if need be.

For aid in her search she has appealed to the Boston Evening American and through this newspaper to the public. Twenty-five years ago Annie Young, a native of Ireland and working here as a waitress, married William Young, a young Scotsman, who worked as an oiler and engineer on steamships.

Their child was born at the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital on June 5, 1908, and named Marie. The couple then lived at 57 Waltham st., South End. The following year due to domestic difficulties the juvenile court took the child from her mother and later Marie was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. John Gilmore, of 49 Linden st., Dorchester. The foster father died 13 years ago, and Mrs. Gilmore seven years ago.

Young Hostess in High Spirits as Dinner Party Is Lauded

WHAT HAS GONE, BEFORE

Catherine Paige, elder daughter in a fatherless home, marries her wealthy, elderly employer, Alfred Farnsworth as the only way out of her financial difficulties.

"Is there anyone else, anyone you love?" he asked her before the wedding, but Cathie said no. It was true, for she could hardly count Gordon Moore who once paid her attention and then forgot her.

Some realization of the enormity of the step she has taken comes to Cathie soon after entering the house which is now her home. Mention of Farnsworth's son, Chester and his bride frightens her.

Farnsworth warns Cathie against the maid. This worries her, and Cathie becomes lonely and homesick.

On her way up to the maid's room, Cathie overhears a conversation between the maid and Chester. The maid is demanding money.

The situation depresses her and the news that Gordon Moore, whom she secretly loved so long, is to be a guest in the house worries her still more.

News that Gordon Moore is to be a guest in the house worries her still more.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 20

(Copyright, 1930, King Features Synd., Inc.)

"A DELIGHTFUL evening," old Mrs. Vaughan said graciously, slipping into a black and green Mandarin coat, an old yellow-tinged seal coat and a maroon knitted shawl as she prepared to leave.

She meant it. Cathie knew that. Knew that her dinner party had been a success, and that everyone, but herself, had had a good time.

Certainly Mrs. Willoughby had enjoyed it. She had chased Gordon Moore into a corner and kept him there for two hours, chatting and laughing with him about things that everybody but Cathie knew.

"My dear, do you remember that house party at Brant Rock the year we were all interested in that McShane project? Can you ever forget it!"

An Outsider

"Mosquitoes big as elephants. Talk about your Cape Cod mosquitoes!" Mrs. Vaughan put in, chuckling.

"And Adela's sprained ankle!"

"Adela always sprains her ankle four miles from the nearest horse!" Gordon Moore teased, and Mrs. Willoughby, laughing and blushing, cried, "You didn't seem to mind being the rescuer!"

Alfred Farnsworth's rare laugh rang out, "Mind! It was the event of the year for him, all right."

Cathie stood, smiling, outwardly interested and happy, inwardly bored and miserable. What did she care for Adela Willoughby's sprained ankles, and the McShane project? What did she stare for anything, except making good at her job, making her husband's guests think she was a successful hostess?

"Well, they seemed to enjoy themselves," she thought, when Mrs. Willoughby, wrapped in mink, had gone to her waiting motor, and the Vaughans, bundled and bejewled, had been handed and prodded and hoisted into theirs.

Manners Forgotten

The thought cheered her and she was able to give her hand lightly to Moore, and to bid him an almost gay good-night.

"Good-night," he said, smiling, "and thanks for taking me in like this. You must have a great deal of company. I'll try not to be in the way."

"No, we don't have much company," she told him, and withdrew the hand he was holding.

"The devil you don't! Then what do you do, just the two of you in a place like this?"

"Nothing."

He was a little abashed. "Sorry. I live up in the sticks so much I'm not fit for decent society. Forgotten the few manners I ever had.

It was Cathie's turn to be confused. "It's quite all right. I wasn't being sarcastic. We—we really don't do anything—much."

Secret Guessed

He followed her to the stairway. "Look here! It's none of my business, but is anything wrong? If there's anything I can do . . . forgive me for speaking it, but I couldn't help noticing. I'm sure there's something—"

She tried to laugh it off. "You know you were too busy looking at that pretty Mrs. Willoughby to see me at all. Besides . . . do I look unhappy?" And she smiled, that gorgeous, dazzling smile of hers. Flash of even white teeth, trembling dimple, blue eyes almost disappearing in her radiant, laughing face.

"You look very beautiful."

"And happy. Don't I look happy?"

"Yes—happy."

"So you see—" she broke off, laughing.

"Yes, I see," he said soberly. "Well—good night!"

ALL ON TOES TO CLEAN UP CRIME

Downtown Commanders Declare War on Racketeers, Assert None Has "Pull"

The "pep talk" of Police Commissioner Hultman to his captains in the department was relayed today by the captains to the rank and file at roll call.

Particularly by captains of downtown divisions was the clarion call to efficient duty repeated, but in most of the talks the captains assured their men that thus far they were satisfied.

Capt John Rooney of the Hanover St. station declared to his men that there was no racketeer or law violator in the division who had "a wire or line of protection," and told the patrolmen and sergeants that they should have no fear of consequences in making such arrests.

WAR ON RACKETEERS

"Every bootlegger, liquor law violator and number writer in this division," he said, "belongs in this station house, booked for the crime of which he is guilty.

"I have no fault to find with anyone in this station and division, but I remind you that it is your duty to give an honest, conscientious day's work.

"I am satisfied that the officers and men in this division, since I became commander, have honestly and efficiently performed their duties, but let Station 1 show by its work that it is attempting to drive, and will drive, the racketeer out of the division."

CITES GOOD WORK

Similar talks were given their men by Capts Richard Fitzgerald of Milk st. station, John McGrath of Joy st. station, Jeremiah Galivan of Lagrange st. station, John M. Anderson of East Dedham st. station and Jeremiah Moher of Back Bay station.

Capt. Anderson said

"In my orders to you seven weeks ago I instructed you to clean up the number pools. This work has been efficiently performed by all the officers and by four in particular. Keep it up.

"More than 85 convictions have been obtained by this division. I do not think it is necessary for me to instruct you further about that particular part of the work.

"Keep going, is my message to you. The buildings will stand up without any aid and so will telegraph poles."

Mother of Slain Boy Is Held for Trial

Mrs. Josephine DiMori of Stillman st., whose 11-year-old boy was kidnaped and slain last year, was arraigned in Superior Court today, pleaded not guilty and was held in $1000 bail for trial for assault and battery with intent to kill Rosario Movello. Mrs. DiMori is charged with attacking Movello with an axe last November, believing he was involved in the kidnaping of her son.

Half Holiday for Many State Employes

Gov. Allen today directed all department heads at the State House to allow such employes as can be spared a half holiday Wednesday, Sept. 17, when the Boston Day celebration will take place. As it is not a legal holiday, he explained, skeleton forces must be kept on duty to transact business for the convenience of the public.

MORE GIFTS FOR LITTLE SOLDIER

Cash and Cards Continue to Arrive for Birthday of Eleanor Green

Eleanor Green's fifth birthday is not yet over.

The brave little child, who has come to be known as Roxbury's "Little Soldier" for the courageous way in which she faces life, in spite of pain, today receives through the Boston Evening American several birthday gifts and a number of pretty cards.

Although a few days late—for Eleanor was five on Tuesday—the little girl is sure to prize the remembrances highly and the money, added to the fund that has been contributed for her, will help to make her life brighter.

Among the cards is one wishing her a happy birthday and speedy recovery, the wish of a grandmother of a little girl o five years. Another is from Mrs. Jennie Kelsea of 27 Highland st., Rockland.

65 CARS TAGGED IN CAMBRIDGE

Illegal automobile parkers, driven out of Boston by the "no-fix" rule, will not be permitted to park in Cambridge, Capt Timothy F. Leahy of that city announced today.

A squad of Cambridge police under Capt. Leahy's orders has begun a tagging campaign, to demonstrate that the no-fix rule is in effect in the University City as well as in Boston.

In Lechmere sq., last night, 65 cars were tagged, and their drivers warned that a second offense means court. According to Capt. Leahy a number said the no-fix rule had driven them out of Boston.

Blake to Speak at Democratic Rallies

A number of rallies will be held tonight throughout Somerville for Robert A. Blake, candidate for the Democratic nomination for representative from the 24th Middlesex district. Two years ago Blake came within 103 votes of winning. Blake is a graduate of Boston evening high schoo and Suffolk Law School and is a former member of the Somerville Democratic City Committee.

N. E. Potato Crop Prospects Are Dark

Although potato prospects in New England states, except Maine, improved during August as result of favorable weather, the New England crop reporting service announced today that the crop won't be more than 2,000,000 bushels less than expected a month ago.

Unconscious From Gas

Charles H. Martell, 53, was last night found unconscious in his home on Colburn rd., Brighton with gas jets turned on.

NAB 6 IN RAID ON CLAM DIGGERS

A police capture of clam diggers that had all the earmarks of an equal a marathon was made by eight members of the Lynn police force today, headed by State Officer Crowley.

Heretofore police raids on clam diggers on the Lynn flats have met with defeat because the diggers took to boats and escaped. This raid, however, was reinforced by a speed boat, secreted along the shore

When the clam diggers took to their boats in an attempt to make a getaway, Then Officer Crowley gave chase in the power boat. The only trouble with this plan was that the power boat stalled and the men made the Nahant shore. Here they were met by other police and turned back to the water, heading for Revere. By this time the police power boat was in working order again and finally overhauled the clam diggers.

Six men were arrested for digging clams in polluted waters They were Edward Marchione, Joseph Ferrogano, Harold Lee, John Saunders, Alfred Corcoto and Arthur Denri, all of Revere.

45 Carloads of Beds Coming to Boston for Legionnaires

Forty-five freight cars are being loaded with bedding for delegates to the American Legion national convention in Boston at the quartermaster supply depots at New Cumberland and Philadelphia, in Pennsylvania, Chicago, Brooklyn and New York City, it was learned today.

The equipment, including 20,000 cots, 40,000 blankets, 20,000 pillows and pillow cases, 20,000 sheets and 20,000 mattresses, will arrive at the army base, South Boston, next week, and will be transported to the armories by a fleet of 50 trucks.

MURPHY FIGHTS GOLF ISSUE

Mayor John J. Murphy of Somerville, testifying today before David A. Marshall, auditor appointed by the Supreme court, defended his refusal to grant a permit to Edward and Walter Jaffarman of Haverhill for a "pee wee" golf course on the Fellsway.

"The location asked for is probably the worst that could have been chosen in the whole city of Somerville," Murphy said. "I declined to grant the license because of traffic conditions."

He denied having a financial interest in the miniature course run by Dr. Niles, a dentist, in the same vicinity and said he would give the Haverhill men a permit if they specified a better location.

SELECT TEN FOR SCHOLARSHIPS

The third annual newsboys' scholarships to various New England colleges were awarded to 10 Greater Boston newsboys yesterday by a committee of judges representing the Harry E. Burroughs Newsboy foundation.

The 10 boys were selected from a group of 20 who were recommended by their head masters.

The names were sent to the Harry E. Burroughs Newsboys Foundation, 10 Somerset st., and a committee was selected to choose 10 from the list. The committee, composed of Gerritt Fort, chairman; Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Christian A. Herter, Joseph P. Manning, Philip Stockton, Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., and Herbert Parker, met and personally interviewed the candidates.

The boys finally chosen were David K. Boynick of Dorchester high, to go to B. U. school of journalism; David Esselson of English high, to B. U. college of business administration, Isadore Gordon of high school of commerce to Northeastern University school of finance; Henry Mazer of Mechanic Arts high to Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Samuel Nagin of high school of commerce to Bentley school of accounting; Pasquale Pavone of Boston College high to Boston College; Abraham Peters of Memorial high to M. I. T.; Warren J. Reardon of Latin school to Harvard College, and Leo Saltzman of Brighton to Franklin Union.

West End Man Near Death From Poison

Bernard W. Curley, 39, of Charles st. was found on a bench in the Public Garden with a poison bottle near him. At City Hospital his name was placed on the danger list. Police say he had been out of work for some time and, despondent, attempted suicide.

Quincy Advances Hours for Voting

The hours of voting at the primaries in Quincy, Tuesday were changed from 11 a. m. to 8 p. m. to 12 o'clock to 8 p. m. at a special meeting of the Quincy City Council last night.

SCORES PLAN TO HOLD UP PAYMENT OF TAXES

Says Promoter of Scheme Has Already Received Plenty From City

The proposal that taxpayers end alleged graft in Chelsea by refusing to pay their taxes, and the sponsor of the plan, Samuel Eissenberg of the Mutual Protective Association, were assailed today by Mayor Whalen.

Eissenberg's plan was voiced at a meeting of the board of aldermen last night, at which time it was suggested that a commission form of government replace the mayor, whose recall is asked in petitions now being circulated.

"It is nothing new for me to hear the chattering of this Eissenberg," said Mayor Whalen. "For nine years he was the fair-eat of the fair-haired boys under Mayor Quigley.

SAYS HE GOT $62,000

"He was among those who received all of the city business during that period. Does he think that taxpayers of Chelsea have forgotten that he received $62,000 of their money for loosely drawn plans and specifications which resulted in the city getting a high school building worth no more than $300,000, but which cost the taxpayers over $1,000,000.

"Had I given the emergency job on the Eastern ave. water pipe that was $400, but the dealer would now be singing my praises.

"I believe in more lenient with its taxpayers than any city in the Commonwealth. Our taxpayers have two years while other cities insist on payment within a year.

TELLS OF CAR DEAL

"Eissenberg is merely the mouthpiece of a few disgruntled politicians whom I defeated last fall. Incidentally that big business man stood at the polls all day in Ward 5 at the last election begging for votes for Quigley.

"The matter of his complaining about my buying a new city car is just another case of a sore-headed auto dealer who sold seven cars to the city under Quigley without any complaint from other dealers. Now that another taxpayer is getting a little city business this dealer is whining.

"The book value of the car turned in was $400, but the dealer now whining offered $1000 for it. The city didn't want his type of car. James A. O'Brien, city engineer, used his own judgment in buying the car to be used by his department."

Plans are being made for a meeting of the Mutual Protective Association Wednesday night to discuss publicly the Eissenberg plan and a movement for a new form of city government.

Roxbury Woman Injured by Auto

Annie Zwicker, 67, of 1 Western pl., Roxbury, was seriously injured today when struck by an auto at Whittier st. and Columbus ave. The auto was driven by James J. Ryan of 26 Lambert st., Roxbury, according to police. The woman was suffering from a possible fracture of the right hip.

$100 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston American offers the opportunity. Each week $100 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that some thing of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $25 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received, $15 for the next best, $10 for the next best, two $5 prizes and $2 prizes for each of the 20 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

MAYOR MURPHY DEMANDS PROBE OF TRUCK PURCHASING CHARGES

FLAYS FOES AND CITES RECORD

Aldermen, in All-Night Session, Hint at Wrongdoing, but Somerville Chief Cries "Spite"

Replying to the sensational [illegible] of Aldermen, Mayor John J. Murphy stated today he is anxious for an investigation of the [illegible] by the city of 12 [illegible] the mayor to furnish certified copies of paid bills for the machines purchased by the sanitary division.

Mayor Murphy in his statement [illegible] die form that all the facts were available to anyone and denounced his detractors who charged too much money was paid for them.

DEMANDS INQUIRY

Alderman John M. Grattan, who led the demand for copies of the bill was characterized by the mayor as having an anti complex and with having sought to get the mayor's friends to sign a note for him.

Later, he said, Grattan introduced an order in the board to investigate the purchase of the trucks.

"I insisted that the committee be appointed," said the mayor, "the purchase investigated, and if there were any evidence of wrong-doing that proper action be taken or else the committee find there was no justification for the allegation, and that Grattan should apologize."

Mayor Murphy said he found the city could save money by using its own trucks for ash collection, and that when the facts were submitted the aldermen appropriated the [illegible] money.

CHARGES ITS SPITE

"The contract was made, its form was approved by the city solicitor, copies of it are filed with the city auditor and city clerk, the trucks have been delivered, the money has been paid, and all the facts are available to anyone," the mayor said.

He declared that Alderman John M. Lynch "is sore because I did not put his uncle's trucks on this work."

Referring to Alderman Louis C. Gobron, Mayor Murphy said he was known as "Alderman Go-Wrong," who had stated his policy was to oppose everything, and he had been consistent. In conclusion, Mayor Murphy asserted that if any evidence of wrongdoing be found, it be taken to the district attorney.

IRISH COUNCIL BOLTS PARADE

In a letter today to the Boston Evening American announcement was made that the central council of Irish County Associations will take no part in the tercentenary parade on Sept. 17.

In a supplementary statement, Prof. Michael J. Doolin said he thought the association and the Irish people generally had been put in a ridiculous light by the controversy over the selection of a typical Irish girl as Maid of Erin.

The letter follows:

"At a special meeting of the Central Council of Irish County Clubs, composed of delegates from the affiliated Irish County Associations, held in Hibernian building, 184 Dudley st., Roxbury, it was unanimously voted that the above organization should take absolutely no part in the Tercentenary Celebration of the City of Boston to be held Wednesday, September 17, 1930.

"It is the desire of the delegates that the public be informed of this action for the purpose of correcting a false impression which seems to be prevalent concerning this matter."

The meeting was called by Michael J. Doolin, president, and Andrew J. Walsh, secretary.

Coffee and Doughnuts Cheer in Draper Dugout

DOUGHNUTS GALORE AND COFFEE by the gallon were enjoyed yesterday at the Eben S. Draper dugout, adjoining the Bellevue Hotel, Beacon st. Here you see a busy group at work. In the foreground, holding bag of doughnuts, is James A. Cresswell, attorney, one of Draper's backers in the battle for the Republican senatorial nomination. Others who aided were Mrs. Roland A. Choate and Mrs. Charles S. Redman, leading the Draper women's division. (Staff photo.)

NEW RULING ON NEWSBOYS

In a decision that amazed newsboys and magazine agents, who were unaware of any change in the law, Judge Connelly in Brighton court today ruled that newsboys cannot sell magazines, books or pamphlets.

It was brought out in the court that the original law, which permitted street vendors to sell magazines, books and pamphlets, as well as newspapers, was changed less than a year ago.

So quietly was the change made, however, that periodical and newspaper circulation men had no suspicion of the altered condition.

The decision by Judge Connelly came in connection with a case in which Cy Murphy, in charge of Boston Evening American newsboys, was fined $5 for selling without a license and $5 for selling magazines on the streets on the Lord's Day.

Murphy became a defendant when he interceded on behalf of 20 boys who had been taken in official low near Braves Field while selling papers, magazines and books on Aug. 17.

Murphy offered to sell a book to a policeman in a test case if the police would release the boys. This was consented to and the sale was made.

William Ginsburg counsel for Murphy, appealed the case and will fight it in Superior Court on the way up to Supreme Court for a ruling.

Democratic Outing Scheduled Tomorrow

Arrangements have been completed for the outing of Somerville Democrats to be held tomorrow at Vose's Grove, Maynard. This event will be the outstanding affair of the Democratic Club, Inc., and many leaders in Democratic circles will attend and deliver addresses.

All candidates for public office have been invited to be present and each will be given an opportunity to address the gathering. Free transportation will be provided to the Grove from Somerville City Hall at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

Fireman Spends His Lunch Hour Home Fighting Fire

He spent his lunch period fighting a fire in his house.

The blaze started in a closet from ashes from a hot pipe left in a coat. When Shanley's company, Engine A, arrived they found him in the role of a one-man bucket brigade, with the flames practically extinguished.

Flames destroyed four of Shanley's suits and a brand new fire department uniform.

DRIVER BURNED TO DEATH

When his oil-saturated clothing caught fire in an explosion in a truck, Joseph S. Finnigan, 33, of 14 Rockview rd., Quincy, chauffeur for the City Service Oil Co., was burned to death in the Edison Park Garage, Quincy, today.

Firemen and police who found Finnigan dying, rushed him to the home of Dr. Fred E. Jones, medical examiner for Norfolk County, where he died.

The body was identified by registration and license papers found in Finnigan's clothing.

GAS EXHIBITION AT FAIR

Gas as a modern fuel, whose history dates back hundreds of years is dramatically presented serving in many capacities in a modern home setting at the Brockton Fair. The maximum of luxury in cooking, refrigeration, house or room heating, water heating and other conveniences such as ingineration and service in the laundry is portrayed in every detail for the homemaker.

The remarkable advancement made by the gas industry in its efforts to bring comfort, cleanliness, beauty and convenience is shown in occupying one-half of the second floor of the Industrial Arts Exhibit building. This gas-equipped home, where all these comfort providing devices are set up and connected so that they may be clearly seen and understood, was prepared by the committee of the New England Gas Association under the leadership of John Tullis.

Cambridge Man Is Freed in Slaying

A jury in Middlesex Superior Court today acquitted Carmelo Cammarada of Broadway, Cambridge, of charges of manslaughter and of assault and battery with intent to kill. Cammarada was alleged to have inflicted injuries on a friend, Mariano Celi of Coolidge pl., Cambridge, during a quarrel. Celi died two weeks later.

HOLD LANZO AS DRUG RING HEAD

Thomas Lanzo, 44, of Commercial ct., North End, said by police to be Boston agent of an international drug ring, was arraigned twice in Municipal Court today, the second time being held for the Grand Jury.

On his first arraignment, Lanzo, charged with possessing morphine and a rifle, was held in $5000 until Sept. 19, the continuance being at the request of Sergt. Robert Caverly of the police drug squad.

The defendant then requested a second arraignment, whereupon Sergt. Caverly informed Judge Zottoli he believed Lanzo to be a part of a big drug ring, and the court declined jurisdiction.

Sergt. Caverly said he believed Lanzo to be the Boston source of supply of an international morphine ring, the head of which is now in Italy. Bail was fixed at $5000.

Lanzo and a second man, who was not held, were captured by Sergt Caverly and Officer Thomas Keating near Charlestown bridge, by a ruse.

Representing himself to be an addict, Sergt. Caverly telephoned Lanzo's house and ordered a quantity of morphine to be delivered at the bridge. With Officer Keating he kept the appointment and the arrest followed. In searching Lanzo's room, police say they found 2000 grains of morphine and a rifle.

Tercentenary Book Off Press Sept. 15

A 332-page volume, containing descriptions and illustrations of the Massachusetts Bay Colony before 1750 and entitled "Pathways of the Puritans," will be published by the Massachusetts Bay Colony Tercentenary Commission about September 15.

Compiled by Mrs. Nellie Stover Bell, secretary to the late Dr. Charles W. Eliot, and edited by Alsan Forbes and Professor Samuel E. Morison of the history department at Harvard, the work will be one of the mementos of the Tercentenary observance.

Soleless Shoes and Empty Stomachs

Eileen Billy Paul

WHILE OTHER KIDS were starting their first day at school, Eileen Bergerson, 7, of Tenean st., Dorchester, and her brothers, Billy, 11, and Paul, 8, had to stay away because they didn't have suitable clothes. The family has been in straitened circumstances and food has been scarce. (Staff photo.)

POVERTY KEEPS 3 TOTS FROM SCHOOL

Policeman and Reporter Discover Plight of Children Who Hadn't Food at Home

Out in Dorchester yesterday it was school day for most of the youngsters—but not for Billy and Paul Eileen Bergerson of Tenean street.

As a matter of record and the comfort, Billy and Paul and Eileen had even to forego the routine matter of breakfast, as had their mother.

Billy is 11, Paul is 8 and Eileen is 7, and it seemed to Patrolman William McDonough of the Pleiffers Corner police station that they should be in school at the usual hour this morning.

Instead, they were playing in a field as Patrolman McDonough and a reporter for the Boston Evening American walked along after a passing morning car [illegible] Beach.

The policeman questioned the trio and asked them why they were not in school.

"We ain't got any clothes," said Paul simply.

Patrolman McDonough went with them to their home to investigate and see if they had spoken the truth.

They had. Not only was there no other clothing for the children in the house, but there was no money and no food. Mrs. Mabel Bergerson told the policeman that none of them had had breakfast because they had not even pennies enough to buy a loaf of bread.

Her husband, she said, was a taxi driver and did not give her money for her own or the children's support. A week ago she had him in Dorchester court, she related, and the court had ordered him to pay $20 a week.

Meanwhile they were battling through to Saturday, when the first payment is due. And the gas and electricity and been turned off.

RESCUE COUPLE FROM FIRE

Police were forced to break their way into an apartment to awaken a couple when fire raged in a two-story frame building at 287 Cambridge st., East Cambridge, early today.

The occupants, Mr and Mrs. Frank Ferriera fled to the street in scanty clothing and were cared for by neighbors until the fire was placed under control.

Flames were discovered by three young men, who saw the fire in the jewelry and haberdashery shop on the first floor. One of the three sounded the alarm. Ferriera is the owner of the store and house.

Secret Wedding of Student and Teacher

A high school romance, which lasted through years of college separation, led to the wedding last June of Henry K. Knowlton, former football captain of Winchester high and now varsity quarterback at Springfield College, and Ella Howlett, pretty Wilmington school teacher, the parents learned today.

The couple were married in New York.

LABOR OUTLOOK BETTER IN N. E. SHOE PLANTS

Employment Shows Slight Increase, U. S. Department Reports

A slight upward trend in the shoe business, particularly in the New England states, developed toward the close of August, it was reported today by the United States Department of Labor, Industrial Employment Service.

Although there was little change in the volume of employment throughout August, compared with July, a slight upward movement toward the close of the month is regarded as indicative of improved prospects of the country for the next 30 or 60 days, the reporter stated

SOME ON FULL TIME.

Small improvement was noted in certain shoe manufacturing and allied establishments in Massachusetts, with a few plants operating on a full time basis.

While operations in the textile industry as a whole remained unsatisfactory, improvement in some localities was noted

IN NEW BEDFORD

Regarding New Bedford, the report said:

"The majority of the industrial establishments worked on a restricted production basis, particularly the cotton and silk mills. The local manufacturers were more optimistic as to the future outlook for business than during the past few months. The surplus labor consisted of textile operatives."

The department reported that forces engaged in the shipbuilding and repair yards particularly those along the Atlantic seaboard, increased with every indication that the high level of employment maintained by these yards the last 30 days would be continued.

Mayor Asks Giant Sub V-5 Visit Boston

Mayor Curley today requested Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams to assign the U. S. Submarine V-5, largest vessel of its kind in the world, to the Charlestown Navy Yard for the Tercentenary observance next week. The submarine is now at Portsmouth Navy Yard and is scheduled to leave there for Newport, R. I., on Monday.

BUSINESS LEADERS ATTEND LAST RITES FOR CHARLES L. BACON

SERVICES IN BROOKLINE CHURCH

Favorite Hymns of Merchant Are Sung; Body Taken to Washington for Burial

Business leaders of Boston were present today at the funeral of Charles L. Bacon of Carlton st., Brookline, head of Chandler & Co., in the Church of Our Saviour (Episcopal), Brookline.

The officiating clergymen were Rev. M. D. Ogilby, rector, and Rev. Henry K. Sherrill of Trinity Church, Boston.

There were no honorary pallbearers.

The musical service was in charge of Gardner C. Evans, church organist, who played a number of selections, and the choir sang "Oh Mother Dear, Jerusalem," "O Paradise" and "Abide With Me."

Chandler & Co. was closed for the day, and every department was represented by officials and other employes. Other stores in Boston were also represented. The body was taken to Washington for interment.

Directors of the store present were: Henry Wheeler, Frank Johnson, Benjamin Beck, George Hansen and Wilfred Brehaut.

Also present were Channing H. Cox, vice president of the First National Bank, and a delegation from the Retail Trade Board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. The ushers were Frank Moody, Edwin Corinell, Otis Humphreys, Frank Carter and James Hunter, all from Chandler & Co.

Griffin Is Put in Jail by Bondsmen

Joseph H. Griffin, former assistant treasurer of the New England Fish Exchange, under indictment for larceny of $33,000, was today surrendered in Superior Court to Judge William Burns. Griffin, who is under bonds of $12,000, was brought in by his bondsman and Inspector William Connolly, being remanded to jail.

He was arrested Aug. 28 while working as a laborer at Gloucester after a search which began last November. At that time Griffin, who is 55, vanished from his Fish Pier office shortly before arrival of Inspectors Dorsey and Augusta to arrest him. There is said to be a shortage of more than $100,000 on his books.

Down to the Sea to See the America's Cup Classic

Marjorie Lohman — Mrs. Harrington

HUNDREDS OF BOSTON YACHT enthusiasts will be along the course of the international yacht races, off Newport, tomorrow, when the Shamrock V will make effort to take from the United States the great international cup. They'll root for the Enterprise, the American candidate for a big job. Among the local folks will be Frederick Montgomery Lee of Brookline. Lee will sail down in his new schooner, Pegasus. Among the guests on the schooner Pegasus will be Miss Marjorie Lohman of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Gerbert Ellis Harrington, 903 Beacon st. The boat, shown above, was built at Essex.

HURLEY CALLS BURKE REPORT AMBIGUOUS

School Committee Chairman Says Report Admits All His Charges

The report of school Superintendent Jeremiah E. Burke and his assistants who investigated the reasons for failure of all except eight of 34 girl high school graduates to pass Teacher's College examinations is an "ambiguous compromise," Joseph J. Hurley, chairman of the school committee, declared today.

"Stripped of its euphemistic language, it admits all the specifications of my charges," he declared.

Inspirational marking does exist in the high schools of East Boston, South Boston, Charlestown, Hyde Park and Brighton, he insisted, and the report, while denying it in fact admitted in substance, he claimed.

The report which blamed the failure of the girls to an increase in the passing mark of examinations at the college admitted that individual classroom teachers had failed "to estimate accurately the real power of the pupils," Hurley said.

"In other words several teachers (the number has been omitted for some reason) have been marking pupils above their worth. This is exactly what I charged. These false marks lulled the parents into a false sense of security that their children were doing well. At the first real examination the parents learned the facts for the first time.

"As to the failure to give frequent tests as I charged the report states in effect that no general order against tests has been issued, but my criticism was that no affirmative steps had been taken to assure this essential element of the pupil's education."

CALLS IT CONFUSION

"The report in effect confesses that our high school education is spotty with five good schools and five poor ones. The taxpayer deserves a good uniform system of education throughout the city.

"The educators show a delicious sense of humor in their treatment of cases in which pupils show appalling ignorance of the fundamental facts of American History. These errors, the educators call 'howls'. The real "howers" should be the taxpayers.

WANTS REAL REPORT

"I believe these educators should explain to the people of Boston the humor that they find in the situation in which we find pupils after years of study of American History with the highest paid portion of our teaching staff making startling erroneous statements about our country's story.

"In conclusion, the report is evidently a compromise. The five headmasters under criticism wrote it and out of feelings of professional brotherhood the three superintendents have allowed the criticism to be of the mildest nature.

"I would that the people of Boston could have a frank point unambiguous statement, in which those under fire would have no part, issued by Superintendent Burke, Assistant Superintendent Campbell and Assistant Superintendent Snow. We would then have what this report should constitute—a scathing indictment of these five headmasters."

To Appear in Parades

MISS ANNIE LAURIE MACPHERSON of Talbot ave., Dorchester, chosen today to represent the wife of Gov. Winthrop on float depicting the Arbella in Tercentenary parade next Monday night and Wednesday afternoon. (Staff photo.)

EXPECT COSTE HERE MONDAY

While Mayor Curley was today trying to change the reception to the French transatlantic fliers to Wednesday, plans were going ahead to greet them Monday on the first leg of their good-will tour.

Mayor Curley wished to postpone the reception so that he might introduce Maj. Dieudonne Coste and Lieut. Maurice Bellonte to the public with Mayor Reuben Salter of Boston, England.

The Mayor felt that because of the huge throngs to be here Wednesday, it would be preferable for the arrival of the Paris-to-New York aviators.

The fliers, under the present program, are expected at the Boston airport about 3 p. m., coming from New York over Bridgeport, New Haven, Hartford, Providence and Newport.

At the airport to welcome the distinguished visitors will be Mayor Curley, Park Commissioner William F. Long and other officials of state and city.

Starting at noon there will be a band concert, and the airport will be open to the public. Tuesday the fliers will hop for Cleveland, the second stop, passing over Worcester, Springfield, Albany and Utica.

Veteran Cyclists Pedal Away on Wheel Around Hub

Favored by perfect weather the annual Wheel Around the Hub, by the Boston Bicycle Club, an event of many years standing, started today.

Old timers who have been pedalling over the course for more than a decade in some cases, met at Warren st., and Walnut ave., Roxbury at nine o'clock, and got under way a half hour later.

The cyclists, a number wearing the old-fashioned bicycle costume which made its appearance long before knickers and golf stockings became popular, made their first stop in Brookline.

There they called on President Kilby, whose health prohibited him from making the trip. From Brookline the course led to the Fairbanks House in Dedham, the oldest inhabited house in the United States with lunch scheduled at Cobb's Tavern.

In the afternoon the cyclists were to proceed through Sharon, Bridgeman, all of Boston, and Foxboro and spend the night at the Marsafield Tavern.

Tomorrow they go to Plymouth, and then to Duxbury to visit the grave of Myles Standish, later inspecting the oldest apple tree in the country at Marshfield. A shore dinner will be enjoyed at Cohasset and the return trip to Boston follows.

The club was founded in 1878 and the ride has been taken practically every year since.

Six cyclists started the tour on wheels, the others going by bus. The party will be joined by other members of the club at the shore dinner at Cohasset tomorrow.

Those who are making the tour on bicycles are: Dr. Walter G. Kendall, 76-year-old captain of the club, who started on his 37th "Wheel Around the Hub"; Fred St. Onge, noted trick rider, of Los Angeles, Cal.; Marriott C. Morris of Philadelphia, Pa., and Fred S. Perrault, C. Fred Travis and M. L. Bridgeman, all of Boston.

SEEK TO ALTER BENTON WILL

Atty John L. Hall was appointed special counsel today for the City of Boston by Mayor Curley to seek a change in the will of Josiah Benton, who left the income from $1,000,000 to Boston Public Library to purchase books of interest to juveniles and mechanics.

It was provided, however, that the city spend three per cent of its tax levy for books for the library or the money would go to the relief of the poor of Trinity church.

Mayor Curley said today Trinity has few, if any, in needy circumstances and that the city has never spent three per cent of its tax levy for books for the library.

Fined in Police Attack

PICKS 'WIFE' OF GOV. WINTHROP

Annie Laurie MacPherson, 20, of Talbot ave., Dorchester, was chosen today to represent the wife of Governor John A. Winthrop in the tercentenary float parade on the evening of September 15 and the afternoon of September 17.

Miss MacPherson, the first titian haired girl to be selected for a place on the floats, was chosen by Thomas E. Murphy, assistant pageant director.

The float will depict the Arbella with Governor Winthrop and his wife on deck, crossing the Atlantic with the Great Charter.

Dorothea Gonzales, 14 Decatur st., South End, was 20 years old today and received as her most valued present a notification from the Tercentenary parade committee of Boston that she had been selected as "Miss Spain." She will ride on a float in both pageants.

Miss Gonzales is a senior teacher in the Teachers College. She is of a typical Spanish type. She is five feet four in., in bobbed weighs 115 pounds and has black hair and brown eyes.

Auto Victim Dies

Fall on Floor Fatal to Home Inmate

A recent fall to the floor at the Governor John A. Andrew Home, 32 Washington pk., Newtonville, proved fatal to Mrs. Esther Gordon, 87, inmate of the home.

The funeral was held yesterday and burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery, Everett. Mrs. Gordon was the widow of Walter W. Gordon.

Old Timers Turn Out for Annual Trip

"DOC" KENDALL — FRED ST. ONGE — FRED I. PERRAULT — C. FRED TRAVIS

VETERAN CYCLISTS had their day today when the annual wheel around the Hub of the Boston Bicycle Club got underway from Walnut ave. and Warren st., Roxbury. Marriott C. Morris, of Philadelphia, and Fred St. Onge, of Los Angeles, were among the starters on the trip. A group of the cyclists headed by veteran Dr. Walter A. Kendall are shown as they headed out Walnut ave. (Staff photo.)

'CAVALIER OF THE STREETS' AWAITS CHEVALIER ON RETURN FROM PARIS

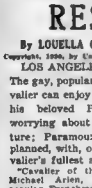
MAURICE TO TAKE GOOD REST

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 12—The gay, popular Maurice Chevalier can enjoy his holiday in his beloved Paris without worrying about his next picture; Paramount has it all planned, with, of course, Chevalier's fullest approval.

"Cavalier of the Streets," by Michael Arlen, will star the popular Frenchman when he returns from his vacation abroad.



Louella O. Parsons

Jeanie MacPherson, who is now in New York, has been in communication with Paramount relative to writing the adaptation of the Arlen story. So far no definite contract has been signed, but it is more than likely that Miss MacPherson, who was associated with Cecil De Mille for so many years, will join the Paramount organization as a writer. "Cavalier of the Streets" will then be her first adaptation.

R. K. O. IS GOING to produce stage plays. Warner Brothers having proved it is possible to get plays on the stage and then later bring them to the screen, William Le Baron has set about completing arrangements to do the same thing. He has leased the Mason Theater in Los Angeles, where he will produce plays, later putting them on the screen and eventually sending them to New York with a stock company. Frederick T. Latham will be stage director and Charles Harris has been engaged as production chief.

The initial stage play will open November 1 What a busy world we are in with New York becoming Hollywood screen minded and Hollywood beckoning New York stage stars. Let's hope it all works out satisfactorily, with plenty of jobs for everyone. In case you are interested, the name of the new R. K. O. stage organizations is Metropolitan productions, Ltd. Sounds very English, does it not?

FULLY SIX MONTHS AGO Ruth Chatterton was hopeful that "Step-Children of War" would be purchased for her. She looked upon it as the feminine equation of the war. Then for six months nary a word was said. Yesterday I learned that Paramount has purchased the motion picture rights to the gripping tale of the feminine side of the war from Frohman Company. The story, originally published in a magazine, was dramatized for the stage by Ken Nicholson. Two English girls serving in a canteen are the interest around which the big war centers. Time we had a little romantic appeal in these gory tales of fighting.

AM I A GOOD GUESSER or am I not? Didn't I say George Fitzmaurice would direct "the prodigal," Ronald Colman's picture? Everything just worked out fine for Samuel Goldwyn. George finished the Evelyn Laye picture yesterday and he will start immediately on "The Prodigal," Ronald Colman's picture. That reminds me that Fox lost no time in putting Irving Cummings to work after he left the Colman picture. He is one of Fox's most valued directors and they were mighty glad to get him back to begin work on "The Painted Woman," featuring John Wayne. Constance Cummings is already on her way back to New York, her brief experience in the movies having been none the worse for her.

TALK ABOUT A SIZZLING hot title! "Leftover Ladies!" What does it suggest? Well, we'd better not mention it in a family newspaper. Anyway Pathe Goldstone has purchased such a story from Ursula Parrott. It is a book written by her shortly after "Ex-Wife," but for some reason it did not achieve the fame of "Strangers May Kiss" and "Ex-Wife."

'FOLLOW THRU' ON SCREEN AT MET

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

THE LOVELY NANCY CARROLL, always acceptable to the eye, shines brighly alongside that star beloved of the flappers, "Buddy" Rogers, in "Follow Thru," at the Metropolitan, this week. It is fare intimately known to stage show patrons, for the musical comedy had its run at the Majestic, if memory serves us rightly. But in being interpreted by camera and microphone, the footlight fun has lost a good deal, so that the screen product becomes mediocre entertainment. That it is entirely in color does not help things one whit; it is rather a drawback, in our opinion.

Nor is the singing of the twin stars up to the standard set on stage last year. Yet, for all their shortcomings, the Carroll and Rogers admirers, whose name is legion in fandom, will probably be hugely delighted at their songs and their dances and their general miming.

There is at times good comedy, in which our old friend Eugene Pallette aids, assisted by Jack Raley. In the cast also are Thelma Todd, a Massachusetts girl, and Zelma O'Neal, who does fairly well and Albert Gran.

ON STAGE, things are much better and more delightful to hear and to behold. The presentation is a good one, known as "The Black and Silver Revue." Among its featured performers are Reed and Austin; Mulroy, McNeese and Ridge; Lyda Roberti, and Norma Gallo. The other Metropolitan features are good.

"The Fourth Alarm"

Ann Christy, recovered from the automobile mishap which caused her to be laid up for several weeks, has resumed work in "The Fourth Alarm," Continental production in which she is featured with Nick Stuart. Others in the cast include Tom Santschi, Ralph Lewis, Harry Howen and Jack Richardson. Phil Whitman is directing the picture being made at the Larry Darmour Studios.

Another Completed

Production has been completed on "Rogue of the Rio Grande" at the Sono Art Studios. Myrna Loy, Raymond Hatton and Jose Bohr will be seen in the featured roles.

ANN HARDING HAS OWN WAY TO REDUCE

Exercises and dieting both figure importantly in keeping fit, but, according to Ann Harding, the most important thing of all in attaining and retaining the slender form, is keeping regular hours both as to eating and sleeping. Miss Harding, who is starring at Keith's in the world premiere tomorrow of "The Girl of the Golden West," says she has experienced the inconveniences of being both too fat and too thin. She has tried both dieting and exercise for taking off and putting on pounds and found them slow means of putting on or taking off weight. Then she tried regulating her hours. She adds:

Ann Harding

"Up every morning at 6:30, a brisk walk, a cold shower followed by a breakfast of raw fruit, cereal, toast and soft boiled eggs—then I am ready for work or play. If I have a call for that day, I go immediately to the studio, or if I'm not working, I go out to take care of whatever business I have. Promptly at noon I have a light luncheon, preferably a salad, a cup of tea, toast and stewed fruit, or if I want to put on weight, I have milk instead of tea. A glass of milk again at 4 o'clock if I want to gain, and tea with lemon if I want to lose, or without lemon if I want to remain as I am. At 7 o'clock dinner and 10:30 to bed. Keep to this regular mode of living for 30 days, and you will be astonished at the results."

According to Miss Harding, exercising plays strange tricks. "Even though you want to take off weight by exercising strenuously, you may become so muscular that you put on instead," says Miss Harding. "Muscular weight is such permanent weight that it is almost hopeless to expect to lose it. Strenuous dieting works havoc with the digestive organs, and put people in such a state of mind that they are not pleasant neighbors.

Supplies 'Laughs

JOSEPHINE HARMON

MISS HARMON, charming comedienne, brings a repertoire of assorted laughs to the Keith-Albee.

'EAST LYNNE' TO HAVE ALL STAR CAST

When "East Lynne" goes into production as a talkie, it will present what is expected to set a standard in the matter of all star casts for a long period.

Winfield Sheehan, vice-president of Fox Films, has decided he is not too busy to take over the personal supervision of the production of this picture, which will be directed by Frank Lloyd. The leading role will be played by Ann Harding, whose work in "Holiday" has been nationally acclaimed. Clive Brook and Conrad Nagel are in support. At the moment the only other player selected for the cast is J. M. Kerrigan who has, for a score of years, been a notable stage figure both here and abroad and rated as second to none other as a character actor.

"East Lynne" will be notable, decidedly so, from another standpoint for it will mark the addition of the brilliant and creative genius Joseph Urban to filmland.

'Wind Cages' Guard Talking Films

"Wind cages" for microphones are the latest development in the complex engineering trick of putting sound on film. At Terminal Island, near San Pedro, in a replica of a fishing village built as a picture set, microphones are set in buildings in "wind cages" or latticed boxes that protect them from the breezes of the Pacific.

The set is to be used in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's filmization of Lorna Moon's "Dark Star," temporarily titled "The Derelicts." Because the ocean breezes set up "whistles" in the microphones, Douglas Shearer, chief recording engineer at the studio, invented the odd "wind cages," which look something like latticed bird houses. They permit sound to enter, but not gusts of wind.

Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery head a notable cast in the new play which George Hill is directing. Dorothy Jordan, Marjorie Rambeau, Russell Hopton, DeWitt Jennings, Frank McGlynn, and others of note are in the cast.

VOICE IS MORE IMPRESSIVE THAN FACE

Which makes the stronger impression on people, a voice or a face? Beryl Mercer, diminutive veteran of the stage and screen, says it must be the voice, and bases her assertion on experience of her own.

Since her success in talking pictures, Miss Mercer has received hundreds of letters asking who "discovered" her.

At first Miss Mercer was astonished to receive such letters. She has been a noted stage actress for many years. Seven years ago she had a featured screen part, in "The Christian." Evidently, her acting in silent pictures made little impression on the fans or they surely would not class her as a "discovery." It was not until they heard her poignant voice from the screen that she became firmly established in their minds as a great actress.

FANNING with GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Jim Thornton
George Considine
Old Metropole

Famous Rendezvous
Celebrities Galore
Chicken Sandwich

Now Boys, Let's Go, "Swe-e-t Adeline, My"——

Back stage at the Colonial we went to congratulate Joe Cook and the cast of "Fine and Dandy" in the most rib-tickling, care-chasing, blues-banishing show we have seen in many days. While fanning with Joe what smiling faces should frame the dressing room door but those of Mr. and Mrs. "Broadway Johnny" O'Connor. We knew Mrs. O'Connor when she was little Margaret Considine, daughter of the late George Considine, mine host of the old Metropole at Forty-Second and Broadway, famous manager, stakeholder and one of the squarest, gamest sports that ever breathed. We often trotted little Margaret on our knee. What a lapful she'd make today! Almost as big as her illustrious dad. Well, not quite as big, for we've often seen George and Jim Jeffries standing together and of the two Considine was the bigger.

The sight of little Maggie Considine — eh, beg pardon — Mrs. Margaret O'Connor, brought back memories of the old Metropole, the most famous sporting rendezvous in the world. Something she said brought back more.

Geo. Underwood

"Who do you think is coming with 'Sweet Adeline' to the Colonial next week, George?" she queried. "Guess who?" Like a woman, she didn't give us a chance to guess, but exclaimed, "Jim Thornton!"

Ah, Jim Thornton! Jim and Bonny Thornton, for whom he wrote "Sweet Sixteen." The daisies are growing over Bonnie's grave now, but the melody lingers on:

"I love you as I never loved before,
Since first I met you on the village green.
Come to me, or my dream of love is o'er,
I love you, as I loved you, when you were sweet,
When you were sweet sixteen."

Jim wrote "My Sweetheart's the Man in the Moon," "She May Have Seen Better Days" and a whole flock of other old-timers. But "Sweet Sixteen" 'tis which never will be forgotten.

Oh, Jim Thornton, Jim Thornton, many's the time we crooked elbows with you over the old Metropole bar. Crooked elbows with you and George Considine, Jim Jeffries, Jim Corbett, Gus Ruhlin, Kid McCoy, Bob Fitzsimmons—although Freckled Bob's favorite hangout used to be the Barthoidi, where he and Jim Hurst first concocted the famous "Micky Finn"—Terry McGovern, Kid Broad, Pomeroy Bob Vernon, Bill Brady, John McGraw, Wilbert Robinson, Mike Donlin, Joe Kelly, Willie Keeler, Jimmie Sheckard, Rube Waddell, Pat Powers, John L. Sullivan, Billy Dacey, Frank Gotch, Dan McLeod, Tom Jenkins, Hjalmar Lundin, Tommy Conneff, Jim Mitchell, Martin Sheridan, John Flanagan, Bud Goodwin, Snapper Garrison—oh, why continue?

ONLY A FEW OF 'EM

Only a few of 'em, Jim; only a few of 'em! Broadway and Forty-Second st., you know, is called "The Four Corners of the World," and if we attempted to name every famous boxer, ball player, wrestler, swimmer, umpire, jockey and actor—we haven't mentioned the actors, Jim, for we've been poaching on good Nick Young's preserves enough—that hoisted schooners over the Metropole bar it would come perilously near filling the Boston directory.

Jim, do you remember the night you and Gus Ruhlin and I were admiring George Considine's cut glass display and Kid Broad came in and we asked him to join us in a mug of plebeian beer.

"Thank you, no," replied the Kid with the funny impediment in his speech. "I don't want to spoil my dinner. I've just been to the New York Athletic Club and had roast duck and champagne."

The Kid finally consented to down a few glasses of the amber. He was taken sick. Lost his lunch—pardon us. Beans, more beans; nothing but beans.

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" we all roared. "So you had dinner at the New York Athletic Club, Kid, eh?"

"You fellers—hic—you fellers," stammered the irrepressible Kid, "you fellers—hic—don't think—hic—I'm going to give up my roast duck—hic—and champagne?"

ONE ON THORNTON

That reminds us of one on Jim Thornton, himself. One night when Jim was slightly under the weather—ahem—he wandered into the Old Glory horse sale at Fiss, Doerr & Carroll's old horse market on East 24th st. That old horse market was the headquarters of the famous old Pioneer S. C. Two of the greatest fights we ever saw, second only to the Dempsey-Firpo thriller as a soul stirrer and heart throbber, were fought within one week of each other in the Pioneer S. C. ring. Stanley Ketchel vs. Philadelphia Jack O'Brien and Jem Driscoll vs. Abe Attell.

O'Brien, with only his gloves and a prayerbook, by a marvelous display of ring generalship, fighting heart and fighting head, gave Ketchel a terrific battle. With five seconds to go in the last round, the Assassin caught O'Brien with a swishing uppercut, which lifted the veteran off his feet and half turned him in the air. When Jack came down his head struck the sharp edge of the sawdust box and he was knocked stone cold. The finishing bell saved the stout-hearted warrior from the ignominy of a knockout.

The Driscoll and Attell duel brought together the two fastest, cleverest boxers we ever have seen pitted against one another. It was a pugilistic poem. What a marvelous boxer it would take to feint Abe Attell into a right-hand lead, slip the punch and send Abe almost hurtling through the ropes! That is just what that marvelous little Englishman did that night in the old Pioneer.

WAITER MADE MISTAKE

But back to Jim Thornton and the Old Glory sale. Harry Stevens, who still does the catering and does it well at almost every ball park and race track in the country, was the caterer. Jim ordered a chicken sandwich. The waiter brought it.

"How much?" queried Jim.

"Seventy-five cents," answered the waiter.

"How much — hic — you say?" again queried Jim, as he felt in pocket after pocket for any stray change he had left—but in vain.

"Seventy-five cents, Mister Thornton," was the answer.

The bidding on some famous stallion was going on. We can't remember the equine's name. Let's call it Director.

"I am bid $50,000 for Director," bellowed the auctioneer, as Thornton continued his fruitless search for money to pay for that chicken sandwich. "Fifty thousand dollars is bid for Director."

"S'hay, feller," finally declared Jim, straightening up and fixing the waiter with a glare. "Seventy-fi' cents you want? You are makin' a mistake. I want—hic—chicken sandwich. You must think—hic—I want to buy Dir-rector!"

MOTHERS AND SONS PLAY GOLF AT WELLESLEY

Mrs. W. A. Hersey — Edward Cole — Mrs. Fred Cole

THE HERSEY FAMILY had a big day in the Mothers and Sons golf tourney at Wellesley Country Club. Mrs. W. A. Hersey, who played two rounds, one with her son Winthrop, and the second with her son Francis, won both gross and net honors. Mrs. E. P. Cole and her son Edward had a net score of 75, which is pretty good golf on this course.

Win Hersey — Malcom Arnold — Mrs. W. P. Arnold — W. P. Arnold, Jr.

MRS. W. P. ARNOLD and her two sons were among the contestants in the Mothers and Sons tourney. Mrs. Arnold turned in a card of 80 net, while W. P. Arnold, Jr., and his mother had a net card of 78. The tournament was the most successful yet held

McLarnin K. O.'s Al Singer in 3d Round of Terrific Tilt

By ED FRAYNE

New York, Sept. 12 (US)—Jimmy McLarnin, the Man-o'-War of the prize ring, smashed out the most glorious victory of his amazing career before 40,000 delirious spectators at the Yankee Stadium.

The bout ended after two minutes and 21 seconds of fighting in the third round, with Al Singer making his first appearance with his newly won lightweight championship, a quivering figure trying to crawl about the ring on hands and knees.

The actual knockout was an anti-climax, as Singer appeared to have been counted out in a knockdown that preceded the finishing fall. The young champion clambered up just in time to be at the final hammer tap of Jack Denning, who was the official timekeeper

But McLarnin evidently thought it was over, for he made the first hand-spring of his familiar victory flop, and came up face to face with the outstretched gloves of his supposed victim. For a moment James stood there startled, and then it dawned on him that he had quaffed the cup before the bevvy was poured.

Singer made a terrible mistake. It was safe and comfortable where he had been resting on the canvas, and he would have been much better off to have accepted his defeat philosophically. It was inevitable, anyway

But little Alfie had promised the neighbors that he would go out with his hands up or his feet out, and he kept his word. He pulled himself off the floor with as fine a display of courage as the ring has ever witnessed, and he staggered out toward McLarnin as manfully as you please.

McLarnin Lashes Away With Terrific Punches

By this time, Young Man o' War had recovered from his astonishment and his leaden gloves were slashing with savage power at Singer's body and head. A flurry of flashing arms, a blast at the body, a right hand thud to the side of the head, and a booming left crunching into the side of Singer's jaw.

Singer put up his hands as if to protect his head and sank slowly to his knees. He flattened out on his stomach and rolled over and over three times, clawing at the canvas in agony. By nine, he was on his knees, clawing at the back of his neck as if brushing off flies. He was still in that position at ten, as white-faced Hymie Caplin and two seconds came running to his side. They lifted him and dragged him to his corner.

King Levinsky K. O.'s Lomski

Chicago, Sept. 12 (AP)—Up from Chicago's ghetto has come an ex-fish peddler named King Levinsky, who seems to bear definite signs of getting somewhere as a light heavyweight fighter. The kingidol of the West Side, abandoned his fish cart for the ring a year ago. Last night he made a deep bow in his league competition by knocking out Leo Lomski, the one-time "assassin" from Aberdeen Wash.

The knockout came in the fifth round of the first 10-rounder on the Stadium's benefit card for little Patricia Harmon, daughter of the late Paddy Harmon, Stadium builder, who was penniless at the time of his tragic death two months ago

Lomski, who never before had been knocked out and who until recently was ranked among the most prominent light heavyweight challengers, took a terrific beating before going down for the full count in the fifth He was knocked down six times in the first round, three times in the second, thrice again in the fifth, the last time landing flat on his back, where he was counted out

Singer-McLarnin Each Made $33,425 on Bout

New York, Sept. 12—Al Singer and Jimmy McLarnin each earned about $33,425 for their eight minutes of battling last night

Each received 25 per cent of the net gate. Some 27,000 spectators paid $152,000 gross, which with taxes removed made the net gate about $133,700

AL SINGER, lightweight champion, who was knocked out in the third round by Jimmy McLarnin, is shown in the International Newsreel telephoto above, falling after a terrific clip to the head in the third round. Singer fought a game fight, but folded up when the Vancouver Irishman connected.

HERSEYS WIN AT WELLESLEY

Forty-four teams, an increase of 18 over last year's total, took part in the annual Mothers and Sons tourney at the Wellesley Country Club

Mrs. W. A. Hersey, who played two rounds, first with Winthrop and then with Francis, figured in about every award of prizes

With Francis, who was her partner after luncheon Mrs. Hersey dovetailed her shots to such a nicety that they turned the first nine in 38 and then clicked off a 39 for the second half. Their 77 won low gross honors with seven strokes to spare.

With their handicap allowance of eight strokes, they also finished in a tie for the low net, but as a team can only have one prize this trophy was awarded to Mrs. S. M Nathan and D. E. Nathan of Oak Hill, who had a card reading 89—20—69

Although Mrs. Hersey did not fare so well with her son Winthrop in the forenoon, their efforts returned a medal of 84, which was good enough to tie with Mrs E. P. Cole and Ed Cole, also of Wellesley, for the second gross prize.

Baker Pitt Punter

Capt. Eddie Baker will do the bulk of the kicking for the Pitt Panthers this fall

He is not an outstanding star in this department, but is consistent both at puting and field goals.

Lack of Enclosed Field Will Hurt School Elevens

HUB TEAMS FACE HARD SEASON

By BILL CONNELL

High school football teams of the city of Boston are in for a difficult year if the present schedule, which calls for all except a few holiday games to be played on open playgrounds, goes through.

In past years the majority of the tilts of the Hub elevens have been played at [illegible] enclosed and fully protected Wigwam surface under competent grid officials, have been conducted without the least bit of trouble.

Occasionally, however, games have been played at some of the open playgrounds of the city. Due to the presence of an undesirable element at these contests, trouble has arisen frequently, both during and after the games.

Bill Connell

The difficulty never has been due to the student bodies of the schools or the parents and friends of the players, but only to those who attend the games seemingly for the purpose of annoying officials and players.

This year the Braves field authorities decided that the frequent weekday games of the Hub schools caused too much damage to the outfield turf and so they decided not to play any games, except those of three holidays at the Wigwam.

Trouble Ahead for Hub School Teams

This means that over 100 football games must be played on the unfenced playgrounds this fall. And lack of police protection at these places is almost certain to handicap seriously the efforts of the officials and others interested in giving the Boston schools a fair chance to take part in football under favorable conditions.

Unless some arrangement can be made shortly for the Boston high schools to play their games in an enclosed field, they face their most difficult season in recent years.

30 Candidates Out for M. A. C. Eleven

Amherst, Sept. 12—Thirty men, including seven letter men and a number of sophomores who appear likely to make the veterans hustle for their jobs, reported for the opening of football practice at Massachusetts Agricultural College.

Letter men reporting today were Art Brown of Wayland, Bob Diggs of Brighton, Jack Foley of Amherst, Ossie Holmberg of Waltham, Charlie Little of West Medford and Bob Pollard of Amherst.

Pitt to Have Light, Fast Backfield

If Jimmy Clark plays fullback for the University of Pittsburgh the Panthers will have a fast and light backfield. Clark weighs 160, Eddie Baker at quarter weighs 165, Josh Williams, halfback, 165, and the other halfback will not weigh more than 160.

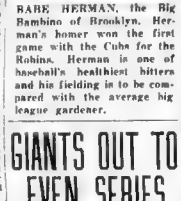
ROLLICKING ROBINS ROMPING TO TOP OF N. L. RACE

ADOLPHO LUQUE, the Cuban twirler for the Brooklyn Robins, who brought his team a game nearer the leading Cubs by shutting them out and giving them but five hits. Luque handed Wilbert Robinson a nice bouquet by turning in this victory. Luque is one of the game's best veterans.



BABE HERMAN, the Big Bambino of Brooklyn. Herman's homer won the first game with the Cubs for the Robins. Herman is one of baseball's healthiest hitters and his fielding is to be compared with the average big league gardener.

GIANTS OUT TO EVEN SERIES

Polo Grounds, New York, Sept. 12 (INS)—Despite the fact that they are three games behind the lead in the mad scramble for the National League pennant, and, to all intents and purposes, definitely out of the race, the New York Giants are not discouraged.

A victory for the Giants today would give them an even break in the series and, while it would not exactly put them back into the thick of the pennant scramble, it would materially lessen the chances of the Cardinals to cop the coveted bunting.

FIRST INNING

Cards—Jackson threw out Doughit. Adams walked. Frisch popped to Terry. Critz threw out Bottomley. NO RUNS.

Giants—Gelbert was under Critz' drive. Leach flied to Doughit. Lindstrom lined to Frisch. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING

Cards—Hafey fanned. Blades flied to Roettger. Jackson threw out Wilson. NO RUNS.

Giants—Terry grounded to Bottomley. Ott singled. Rhem threw out Hogan. Frisch caught Jackson's drive. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING

Cards—Gelbert popped to Lindstrom. Hubbell threw out Rhem. Doughit flouled to Hogan. NO RUNS.

Giants—Roettger beat out a slow roller to Adams. Hubbell sacrificed. Rhem to Frisch. Critz sacrificed, Rhem to Bottomley, putting Roettger on third. Leach lined to Doughit. NO RUNS.

Malden Authorities Answer Criticism

Malden High athletic authorities today answered the criticisms which followed the recent announcement that tickets for the annual Malden-Medford grid contest next Thanksgiving would cost $2 instead of $1 as in past years.

It was explained that holders of season tickets, which cost $5 and admit to all home games except that with Medford, would be able to purchase tickets for the Turkey Day contest for $1, and also that the registration for all money set in for tickets would be paid by the athletic committee.

The excuse for the increase is that football pays for all athletics at Malden High and that unless the grid receipts increase other branches of sport will suffer.

Doncaster Cup Won by Brown Jack

Doncaster, Eng., Sept 12 (AP)—The Doncaster Cup, for three-year-olds and upward, was won today by Captain H. A. Wernher's Brown Jack, by Jackdaw, out of Queenquidela. Empire Builder was second and Annis third. The winner paid 10 to 10. Five horses ran.

The Doncaster Cup is of two miles and a quarter. It includes the plate of 1200 sovereigns (almost $6000) and a cup valued at 200 sovereigns.

Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, Sept. 12 (INS)—Re-inspired by their sensational clean sweep of their recent crucial series with the Chicago Cubs, the Brooklyn Robins today prepared to square off against Dan Howley's Cincinnati Reds strong in the belief that they are a team of destiny and that this is their year.

The Reds, while low in the pennant standing, have an annoying habit of upsetting the apple carts of the leaders and the Robins are determined that there will be no letdown in their play. They have not forgotten the four straight defeats handed to them by the Rhinelanders on their last swing through the western end of the circuit.

FIRST INNING

Reds—Wright threw out Walker. Swanson went out, Herman to Wright. Stripp flied to Hendrick. NO RUNS.

Robins—Frederick doubled. Gilbert also doubled, scoring Frederick. Crawford threw out Herman. Wright hit into a double play, Durocher to Cuccinello. ONE RUN.

SECOND INNING

Reds—Cuccinello fouled to Lopez. Gilbert threw out Meusel. Crawford popped to Gilbert.—NO RUNS.

Robins—Bisonnette singled. So did Hendrick. Finn sacrificed, Kolp to Crawford, who covered first. Lopez sacrificed to Meusel, scoring Bisonnette. Moss fanned.—ONE RUN.

THIRD INNING

Reds—Finn threw out Sukeforth. Durocher flied to Herman. Kolp fanned. NO RUNS.

Robins—Frederick grounded to Stripp. Gilbert lined to Walker. Cuccinello tossed out Herman. NO RUNS.

Cubs' Lead Cut to Half Game as Robins and Cardinals Win

The hectic pennant race in the National League tightened up a bit yesterday when the Brooklyn Robins defeated the Chicago Cubs, 2 to 1, making a clean sweep of the three-game series, while the St. Louis Cardinals kept pace with their Brooklyn rivals by outslugging the Giants, 5 to 4.

The Cardinals and Robins are only half a game behind the Cubs, and the Giants three games back of the Windy City team.

The standing of the four contenders, with the percentages to be gained or lost in today's contests, follows:

	W.	L.	P.C.	If Today W.	If Today L.
Chicago	80	59	.576	.579	.571
St. Louis	78	59	.572	.576	.568
Brooklyn	80	60	.571	.575	.567
New York	77	61	.558	.567	.550

The Robins meet the Cincinnati Reds today for a four-game series at Ebbets Field, and then tie up with the Cardinals for three games, while the Giants, after taking on the Pittsburgh Pirates for four games, will face the staggering Cubs.

Ben Ticknor May Shift to Tackle

When the Harvard 1931 football squad makes its debut at Soldiers Field Monday, Head Coach Arnie Horween will be looking for a pair of tackles from the word "go."

In every other department Horween is well supplied with veteran material. He has ends, backs and guards galore. He has an All-America center in Big Ben Ticknor.

But the [illegible] were graduated last June.

Where to find a pair that will fill the shoes of Barrett and Davis is one of Horween's chief concerns this fall.

Looking over the available material, there are only three returning tackles left from last year's first varsity list. They are George Kuehn, Graydon Upton and Bob Faxon.

Kuehn Has Edge on Rivals

Of these, Kuehn seems at present to be the likeliest to win a first string berth. As a substitute last season, Kuehn was given the nod over the others when replacements in the line were in order.

Rumor has it that Ben Ticknor, whose work at the pivot post earned him the All-America title last season, will go to one of the tackle positions. There are many reasons why Horween might make this change.

To begin with Ben was originally a tackle during prep school and freshman days. He plays center or tackle with almost equal ease. In fact any place in the line is home to Big Ben.

Several good centers are available for Horween should he decide to move Ticknor into a tackle berth.

Henry Soldes has been understudy at pivot for two varsity seasons, and may get his big chance this year. In addition there is Charlie Cunningham who, like the beam at 190, and was a sophomore sensation a year ago. Charlie Richardson is another who should make the first string grade this season.

Bill Ticknor, Ben's brother, is another possible tackle choice. Bill was alternated between tackle and guard most of last season, and could be easily converted to a regulate tackle to fill the apparent breach.

Bill weighs 187 and stands six feet in his stockings. Brother Ben has a grade on Bill both in weight and height, but Bill is rugged enough to make a good tackle.

Today and tomorrow will see most of the squad equipped and ready to start the fireworks Monday. About 125 candidates are expected to draw uniforms during the next 48 hours.

Sarazen and Kirkwood All Even in P. G. A. Golf

ARMOUR TOPS LACEY BY 2 STROKES

Flushing, N. Y., Sept. 12 (AP)—Gene Sarazen and Joe Kirkwood were all even and Tommy Armour led Charles Lacey by two holes at the end of the first 18 holes of the semi-final matches in the Professional Golfers Association championship today.

The medal scores today were good in contrast to yesterday's play, when the scoring was high. Sarazen and Kirkwood each had 71, a stroke over par. Kirkwood played the second nine holes in 34 strokes, a shot under perfect figures.

Armour scored 72, while Lacey required 73 strokes. Sarazen had 17 pars on his card and went one over par on the 10th, where he had to hole a 10-foot putt for a five after being in trouble all the way to the green.

The card:

Kirkwood, out	4	5	4	4	5	4	4	4	3	—37
Sarazen, out	4	4	4	3	5	4	4	4	5	—35
Kirkwood, in	4	4	2	3	5	4	4	4	4	—34—71
Sarazen, in	5	4	3	4	3	4	5	4	4	—36—71

Match even.

The card:

Armour, out	4	4	4	2	5	4	4	3	3	—36
Lacey, out	4	5	4	4	5	4	4	4	3	—36
Armour, in	4	4	4	2	5	4	4	4	4	—36—72
Lacey, in	4	6	3	2	5	4	5	5	4	—37—73

Armour, two up.

Both golf battles were hard fought. Lacey and Armour were even after nine holes and even again going to the 16th but Armour won two holes in a row to take the advantage.

Sarazen led Kirkwood by two holes until the tenth where the trick shot star won his first hole. Kirkwood evened matters at the 14th with a birdie two and bagged his second birdie in a row at the next hole to go up for the first time.

The home pro, who has twice won the championship, came back to square matters at the 16th and the last two holes of the morning round were halved.

GOOD GOLF

BY CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

There are some golfing details that must assuredly must be looked after. You cannot, of course, think a perfect golf swing and make one with a grip that's all wrong. Usually such details require nothing more than casual attention, with possibly a little practice to remove the awkwardness that follows a change from wrong to a right mechanical method. You cannot, however, center all your golf thinking on such things. The difference between you and any pro player is not, as you think, that he has a perfect physical mastery of all the golfing details, while you have not. The difference is that you think of these details all the time, while he doesn't. And in a sense that's the whole difference between you. He thinks in terms of swing smoothness, you think, doubtless, in terms of swing power. Think as he does and presently you will play as he does.

SIGN BRADDOCK FOR BOUT WITH MERCURIO

James J. Braddock has been signed to meet Phil Mercurio of New York in a 10-round bout at the re-opening of the Boston Garden next Friday night.

Braddock defeated Joe Monte at Fenway Park and lost a close decision to Face Hunt after a hard fight.

Dick Daniels, Minneapolis heavyweight, will clash with Marty Gallagher of Roxbury in another 10-round event. Daniels has won decisions from Babe Hunt, Al Freedman and Armand Emanuel. He is managed by Mike Collins, who at one time piloted Tom and Mike Gibbons.

Six Riders After Hour Motor Mark

With the curtain about to fall in bike racing, six riders will make an attempt to smash the hour motor-paced record Saturday night at the Revere Cycle Track, when Nat Butler stages his final race of the season.

Riding tomorrow night will be Franco Georgetti, Al Letourner, Franz Duelberg, George Chapman, Frankie Keenan and Charley Winters.

Five will start in the New England amateur motor-paced title in a 10-mile race. They are Anthony Iovana, Ralph Keith, Joe McGuire, Lorenzo Lanzin and Peter Cohen.

Forchy Pedon the new sensation from Montreal will ride a special match race. He announces will Henry LePage, Frank Bartell and Al Crossley.

MR. BOSTON by JACK CONWAY

Jack Gagnon was popping away at a punching bag when Mr. Boston stepped into Toland's Gym.

"Why the exercising?" asked Mr. Boston.

Gagnon's answer was a crashing right hand sock to the bag.

Jack Conway

"And take that, too," growled the French-Canadian heavyweight as he let another right hand wallop breeze.

"Don't high hat me," pressed Mr. Boston as he stepped over to Gagnon. "Why the exercising?"

"Did you notice the power behind that right hand sock?" queried Gagnon.

"What about it?" demanded Mr. Boston. "I'm pretty good at betting a bag myself. I like opponents who don't hit back."

"That's not the point," went on Gagnon. "That's the kind of a right hand punch I used to knock out Tuffy Griffith. The punch comes off the shoulder and goes on a straight line. I'd like to use the same wallop on another fellow."

"Don't keep any secrets," chirped Mr. Boston. "Let me have his name and telephone number."

"Jim Maloney," replied Gagnon, "and I don't have occasion to call him on the telephone and so don't know his number.

"Maloney claims Carnera won't meet him. He cannot say the same for me. Perhaps Shaims remembers I won from him on a foul in New York last September. He has also probably read how I clipped Griffith on the chin. I must get some dough for Christmas and I figure a perfectly respectable way to do so would be by battling Maloney. Sure, I can lick him."

St. Joe's Back With Star Amateur Show

Father Bill Cuddy hellocd Mr. Boston on Washington st.

"Of course you're going to drop in at Mechanics Building tomorrow night to see the St. Joe's amateur boxing show," asserted Cuddy. "When I moved our quarters from Commercial Hall to Mechanics Building a year ago man, persons told me I had taken too big a step. The crowds at our Saturday night shows last season proved I was right. The fans get a kick out of seeing the simon pures do their stuff.

"We're going to start the action at 7:30 tomorrow night so that the show will be over by midnight. There will be bouts at 118, 126, 135, 147 and 168 pounds, also in the light heavyweight division. Come early and witness the action."

B. U. Football Team Not Picking on Setups

"With Boston University billed to battle the Army two weeks from tomorrow, it cannot be said that the Terriers are taking on any pushovers. I'd suggest that the local youngsters perform from inside tanks.

"Al Lacy will have charge of Jack Sharkey's corner in the Canzoneri bout in the event Johnny Buckley is unable to make his peace with the bouncy fathers. Ever busy Red Ebbitt, La Bruzzo, Jackie Fields, Rod Chimmon and other prominent boxers. He has also been with the Sharkey camp for two years.

Shields Defeats Wood in 4-Set Semi-Final Match

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 12 (AP)—Young Frank Shields scored a brilliant victory over his fellow New Yorker, the even more youthful Sidney Wood, in the semi-finals of the National tennis singles championship today. The scores were 6—2, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3.

Before a throng of 10,000 fans who rose at the finish to give the young conqueror a rousing ovation, the powerful 19-year-old giant, Shields, swept the courageous Wood off his feet in the first two sets and beat back his stirring challenge in the final stages.

Wood started the match at least an even favorite with Shields, whom he defeated earlier in the year in a tournament at Southampton, but Shields today was in top form from the opening stroke and played like the champion that many followers of the game have predicted he eventually will be.

Shields broke through Wood's service in the third game for a 2—1 lead in the opening set and then increased it to 3—1 on his own strong delivery. Both were playing cautiously.

Shields was striking the ball with terrific power in the opening set, the speed and accuracy of his forehanders scoring clean placements or forcing Wood to hurry his shots and make errors. In service also Shields was in fine form, winning three of his four service games at love and dropping only a single point in the other.

Comes Back From 0—40

After a series of prolonged fencing matches from deep court, Shields came up from love-40 to crack Wood's service in the seventh game of the second set, and forge ahead at 4—3.

Shields took the second set at 6—3 on another break through Wood's service and now led by two sets to none.

As they started the third, Shields serving, took the opening game amid a burst of applause from the 10,000 spectators. Wood fought back gamely, but his shots lacked the sting of his strapping opponent's.

A muffled roar punctuated by handclapping burst from the crowded stands when Wood finally got the range of Shield's service and broke through for a 3-2 lead in the third set. Shields' flow challenged for the first time, came right back to make the games 3-all, but Wood again took the lead, 4-3. On the fourth straight service break Shields tied it up at 4-all. In the next game Shields lunged for one of Wood's passing drives and fell flat on his face. Wood, whip-sawing his opponent's court with shots to the corners, took the game at love to go ahead once more on the fifth successive break.

Wood Wins Third Set, 6—4

Wood won the third set, 6-4 sweeping his service at love. He had not lost a point in the last two games and was still very much in the battle, although trailing at 1-2 in sets.

In the fourth set they batted on even terms with games following service. Wood had the range with his passing shots now and Shields was growing more wary about taking the net. It was Shields who broke through first however, taking the sixth game for a 4—2 lead. Shields made it 5—2 on service, and stood only one game from victory, but Wood took the next and was still in the battle though trailing at three games to five.

Shields ran out the match on his own terrific service, while Wood tried in vain to launch a counter-offensive as he had in the previous set. Shields took the first point of this all-important game on an out by Wood. The second on a net and the third on another net. He was outsteadying the younger player from the back court, and forcing him to hurry his shots, so fast and accurate were his drives. At match point Shields netted, but toeing the line again he shot over a whistling cannonball that Wood "miscued" by striking it on the wood of his racquet, and the match was over.

All Answers to Scientific Questions Couched in Popular Terms for the Lay Reader.

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Bella—
Where can I find some traps for young girls? —SPENCER.

Answer—

Well, well, Master Spencer, I hardly know just what to say to you. Not that Aunt Bella is at a loss to answer any question. No, indeedie. Not dawg. And how! But to be quite frank, Aunty owes a debt of reticence to the younger generation. You may be somebody's son, Spencer. So much depends, you see, on circumstances and everything. Maybe you'd better drop around, Spencer, and we'll talk things over. I'm off (and quite a ways, too, my witty friends tell me) about $125. Au revoir—until we meet again! an expression used at parting.

Man Runs Like a Fox When a Girl Touches the Bell Rope

Being Platonic Is Vogue Now, Says Beatrice Fairfax, So Why Bother With That Type

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will discuss a problem of heart and home at 6:35 p. m., over station WLEX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been a constant reader of your column for several years and thought that perhaps you might help me solve my problem.

Beatrice Fairfax.

I have been friendly with a young man for quite a little over a year and during the past month have become a bit more than "friends."

I have loved him almost from the beginning, but he only recently became aware of that fact. He cares for me immensely as a "good pal," but does not really love me. We have had an understanding and agreed to continue as good friends. However, there are times when my love for him makes me resent the constant reminders of his platonic regard. He realizes this and tells me that, although he cares a great deal for me and would miss me very much, he believes it best for my sake that we part.

This is the thing I dread, as I feel that while we are "seeing" each other he might learn to love me. Yet I would not want to continue if I thought it would only prolong an eventual parting that would be even more difficult than one now would be.

Can you please advise me as to what I should do?

BRIGHT EYES.

Dear Bright Eyes: Your experience is right in line with that of thousands of other girls in this country today. They have fine young men friends who want to keep everything "platonic," as called, but as soon as the girl shows a natural interest pointing toward a mutual future they're off like a fox before the hounds.

Most young men today are marriage-shy. It's in the air and girls needn't wear sackcloth and ashes about it, because even without a man it's a pretty good world. Just gently sever the knot now and cast about for a less wary gentleman. You probably won't get one you want, but who does?

If You Must Smoke, Why?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I wonder if you will answer this simple question which I've had in mind for some time. I am a young girl (18) and I enjoy "good times" and lots of fun. Now my girl friend and I never refuse a cigarette when asked.

There is a certain party who has got us all wrong and into trouble saying we are tough because we smoke. Now, Miss Fairfax, is that right saying these things just because she does not approve of smoking?

Why must some people always take the "joy out of life."

My question is: What harm is there in smoking? Of course, we don't smoke all the time like some girls, but only to be sociable.

WONDERING.

Dear Wondering: All the embittered bo; friends to the contrary, there is no harm in a girl smoking a cigarette. That is, no moral harm. I question whether her lungs can stand the strain any better than her brother's, but as long as as conservative a personage as Queen Mary endorses the gentle pastime, I see no reason why we should quibble about it. Undoubtedly, it is done "in the best families."

Not Allowed to Go to Parties

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX.

I am 17 years old and very lonesome and unhappy. I don't chum with anyone even though I know many students at school. I go to a show once a week, but always alone. My parents are very strict. They don't approve of dancing, or parties, so I can't go out and get acquainted. I am not the sort that wants to run about, I'm even old-fashioned, do not use make-up, don't want to be petted, just to have some young friends.

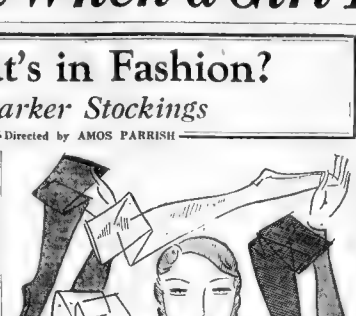
LONESOME.

Dear Lonesome—I've had so many letters like yours, my dear girl, that only a few days ago I wrote a letter to parents begging them to remember that once upon a time they had been young, and let their daughters have friends and good times under the parental roof. It might be a good idea if a group of mothers and fathers who feel as yours do would get together and agree to entertain their daughters' friends once in a while. In this way they would get to know the boys and girls who go together. It would be much safer than for girls to meet secretly people of whom their parents disapprove. I hope you'll be able to make them change their minds.

What's in Fashion?

Darker Stockings

Directed by AMOS PARRISH



WANT TO experiment? Take your favorite shade of last fall's stockings and try them with one of this fall's new costumes.

They look a bit queer, don't they? As if they didn't quite belong. It's because the costume colors have changed. They're dark bright shades this year, instead of just bright. So fall stocking colors have changed, too, to fit into the ensemble. Stockings are a little darker than they were last fall —noticeably darker than they were this past spring.

But—this doesn't mean that fall stockings are going to be born or black. They're still lighter than the costume, but they're dark enough to harmonize with the darker colors of shoes, gloves and costume.

Let's see what the fashionable colors are.

Matching Costume

And right here—a suggestion as to the way fashion-knowing women are choosing new fall stockings. Whenever possible they're taking with them a sample of the costume color the stockings are to be worn with. And they try various shades to determine just which goes best.

They're trying these stockings over the hand, too, to see what effect they have over the skin. And they're looking at the colors in the daylight . . . if they are daytime stockings.

Our check-ups show that women are buying more taupe shades than for many seasons. In fact, they're a first favorite. Not the old, rather uninteresting taupes that you used to see, but new shades especially designed to go with the new tones of fall costumes—really brownier than they are gray, but still gray enough to look well with black.

Taupes and Browns

There's a light taupe that's neutral in tone, but that takes on more color over the skin. And this is fine with black costumes as well as some of the browns, greens and blues.

Mauve taupe is a warm, rosy tone that can be smartly worn with black, the new browns and red.

Beige taupe has more brown in it, and so is a good choice for the brown costume.

Browns are running a close second to the taupes in the choice of fashionable women. They're choosing them for brown costumes and for other colors when the coat is trimmed with brown or beige fur.

Their first choice is a rather neutral brown that can be worn with many shades. And second, a mauve brown with a slight purplish cast that goes well with some of the new browns that have this same cast.

Beiges and Gunmetals

Beiges are still being worn . . . but they're darker, neutral beiges that blend into the costume. And gunmetal is another important color. This new gunmetal, like the new taupes, has a slightly brownish tone which harmonizes better with Fall costumes than the old gunmetal

Fashionable stockings have square heels of medium width and height. They're the most inconspicuous . . . and the stocking rein the smart ensemble is an inconspicuous one

There are all sorts of stockings to choose from Chiffon is the first choice of fashionable women for general wear. But the dull mistred ones are growing more important, too, because they harmonize with the dull finish of most costume fabrics.

And for your tweed and sheer woolen dresses try the pin point mesh. You'll see them everywhere these smart woolens go

Tomorrow: Amos Parrish discusses the fashion for buttons as trimming.

Happiness May Be a Lollipop or an Auto

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I DON'T THINK much about happiness any more. I'm not even sure I want it . . . I'm after something else

Elsie Robinson

Remember how tremendously important happiness seemed to us when we were 16? If things didn't go just right—if we couldn't have what we wanted—what a row we made And it wasn't just because we couldn't have it, either . . . it was the new football It was because that disappointment disturbed something inside us which we considered essential to a perfect life—an inner sense of warmth and contentment in the hive

Lives that don't purr inside couldn't possibly be right—we thought And anything that interfered with that purr was all wrong One must be happy. Life wasn't worth living, unless one was

That was the way we reasoned at 16. And we kept right on thinking that way at 26 . . . at 36 Thinking that happiness was the main thing in life Testing life by its happiness Dreading and despising unhappiness. Rebelling against it, And always waiting for the day when "everything would be all right" and we could, at last, be happy.

So the years went Always we searched for happiness Always it eluded us. Yet we searched on, for we honestly thought that happiness was the true goal of life, And days were few to dispute us

Well, personally, I've come to think that the search of happiness is the least of life's efforts. The blissful reaction, and, of course, happiness is the great thing we're looking for at 16 but that it's essential Nor, in many cases even desirable Nor even the goal of an ideal life

I believe there's something greater in life than happiness and that's GROWTH. To go on . . . learning about life . . . thereby without conscious effort . . . reaching . . . striving . . . suffering . . . putting off old selves, taking on new ones . . . regardless of danger or discomfort or loss or pain . . . LIVING, no matter what it costs—

"But that's just another kind of happiness," you say.

No, it isn't It's an entirely different thing

Happiness means a certain definite reaction. Whether that reaction comes from owning a lollipop or a racing yacht—whether it's six-year-old or sixty-year-old happiness—the reaction is always the same. A sort of inner purr. AND I DON'T BELIEVE THAT AN INNER PURR IS NECESSARY FOR GREAT OR SUCCESSFUL LIVING

I think that life that burns and weeps and curses and shudders may be much more worth while than the life that purrs—as long as these things contribute to growth. I think a broken heart may be a much better bargain than a blissful one

And, indeed I know of no great heart that was not broken . . . nor of any important life that didn't burn and weep and curse and shudder

. . . life more abundant . . . that fruition of the soul which comes through the travail of death and birth—

So, at last, I've come to the point where I don't fuss about happiness. I no longer wonder if I'm happy or get mad if I'm not All I know is that LIFE SHALL GIVE ME THE WORKS

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Of highest importance in the life of every woman is the control of emotion Sudden angers and brain storms are not only foolish, but harmful Temperament will speak one's mind can be mastered The benefits of such repression will be tenfold Not only to the spirit, but to the countenance, which is always in the making. Frowns, scowls, impatience and discontent carve ugly lines which cannot be erased. Self-control oils the wheels of life and serves as a shock absorber

The teeth should be brushed after each meal. The toilet of the mouth consists not only of brushing the teeth but in rinsing the mouth thoroughly with some mild antiseptic solution Though particles of food may not be present, liquid deposits at the edges of the gum set up a harmful, chemical process.

The Marry-Go-Round

Breakfast Nooks Are Big Enough for an Old-Fashioned Row

By HELEN ROWLAND

MARRIAGE is the point at which a man stops "babying" a woman, and experts her to begin "mothering" him.

The breakfast-nook has taken the place of the big old-fashioned dining-room; but there is still space enough in it for the big, old-fashioned before-breakfast family row

When a man wails until after 45 to begin looking for romance, he is likely to discover that his eyes are so dim that he can't tell the real thing from all the cheap, little imitations that are offered him

Funny, how a man can sit on the front piazza, all day long, inhaling and thinking that he'll trim the hedge or spray the roses —and then go off to bed, feeling as though he had done a hard day's work.

Marriage doesn't actually change a man's nature. It merely removes his romantic disguise and permits him to act perfectly natural.

A man may wear a green necktie, break most of the Commandments, and make only $30 a week, and still be an "ideal husband," if he never forgets to send his wife flowers on their wedding-anniversary, never insists on seeing her before breakfast, and never kisses her as though it were a "chore."

After a man has spent an evening describing the wholesome, natural, intelligent sort of girl he is looking for, it is something of a shock to meet him later with the highly tinted little moron he enjoys playing around with

Of course, a woman should at ways look as charming as possible; but, after all, it isn't a man's eyes but his ears that grow so weary, after marriage

Lots of men do not feel that the Sabbath has been properly observed unless they have played at least a couple of rounds of golf, before lunch.

Oregon's agricultural experiment station has noted an increased growth of forage on pasture lands treated with phosphates and lime.

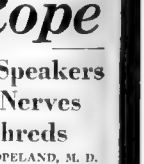
Loud Speakers Rip Nerves to Shreds

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

MOST TYPICAL of the ailments of modern life are the nervous diseases. In these days we are exposed to many factors that contribute to nervousness.

These disturbances are not confined to those who live in the big cities. The monotony of rural life may bring an almost intolerable condition of the nervous system. The normal body will resist these ailments, but if disease weakens it some form of nervous disorder may appear.



Dr. Copeland

To the condition the layman gives the name "nervousness." The medical profession call it "neurasthenia," "hysteria," or "nervous excitement." The doctors admit how very vague and inexact these names really are. But the terms nervous excitement expresses it pretty well. The chief symptoms of neurasthenia are inability to sleep, and fitful sleep. There is a tendency to be awake for hours. The victim falls asleep from pure exhaustion, just as it is time to get up in the morning.

The discordant, distracting, grating noises of a great city are bad for the nerves. Science and the law can do much to remove them. In recent months, in some of our large cities, a movement has been started toward the abatement of these disturbing noises.

Of course, a woman should at ways look as charming as possible; but, after all, it isn't a man's eyes but his ears that grow so weary, after marriage

Lots of men do not feel that the Sabbath has been properly observed unless they have played at least a couple of rounds of golf, before lunch.

DOUBLING FOR LOVE

Judy Hasn't Told Anything, but Her Secrets Seem to Be Known

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

CHAPTER 44

JUDY HAD BEEN through too much. What a vacation this was! Something always popping up to throw her into a panic.

And just when she would settle down to thinking "it's over now; I can be quiet now, wait to get home" —just when she would settle down to this something new and more harrowing would spring up and there would be the panic again.

Now it was Kit Camp startling her so she was ready to scream with his calm demand that she forget the story everybody else had believed—or at least the story nobody else had questioned since Tris said nothing whatever—and spun out the yarn of melodrama!

"You make me sick—all of you!" she cried. "Nobody will tell me a thing. I can wonder and puzzle and be left out and not one of you will say a word to me. How do you know I wasn't in an accident?"

"Oh, are sure of that—how do you know?"

"Please, Judy. I know it wasn't an accident."

"Why ask me, then, if you know?"

Anger scorched her; the anger stirred in her by the sight of Betty Rowe sitting jauntily on the table and Kit flirting with her to make legitimate excuse for being angry now. She faced him furiously.

"Why ask me, anyway? What right have you, Kit Camp?

Proud and Aloof

He gave her a hurt look, put his hand on her arm and held her back when she would have flung out of the room. "Judy dear . . . Let me help, Judy. Take care of you—"

"I can take care of myself, thanks!" The words fell between them like little blows, cold and hard.

He dropped his hands and stood back, drawing himself together. He was remote all at once, proud and stoic. Her anger died. She felt that his warm gayety was lost to her in that moment, that all his quickness to please and charm was lost to her. And she felt that she could not endure it—this thing she had brought about.

"Kit, I'm sorry . . . so sorry, Kit . . ."

"Why, it's quite all right, Judy." He patted her hand but his smile was the polite expression he might have given just anyone.

She stood there looking at him, feeling as if her heart were holding a funeral. They had been friends—such friends—and now she had ruined it. Tossed it away in a moment of rage Jealous rage They were not friends any more. They were just people who knew each other.

"I—I hope you'll forgive me, Kit. Well, you said yourself things were coming pretty fast."

She said it in a choked little voice, knowing all the time it would do no good. He was too proud to take this—like a slap in the face . . .

He said, "Quite all right." In his clipped, aloof tone.

"Well—I'll go now—"

He nodded, held the door for her.

She scurried along the passage, blinking and pressing her lips together. "Why do I care so? I've lost a friend—oh, why do I care so? She talked herself it was because she had been unjust; because it hurt to think she had given hurt. But this did not help at all.

What Is It Now?

Early afternoon when they sailed. Judy remained in the cabin pretending to read and Peggy had cold-creamed her face and was lying down with only the tip of her nose showing through the soggy roof of a hot towel coiled over her cheeks and forehead

She talked in a thick, muffled tone through the folds. "Did you get the beads all right, lamb?" The boy waited while I hunted high and low. What in the world did you want them for, sending in such a rush? Ready, dear—"

Judy was becoming so accustomed to mystery that she knew what it meant. Another move in the crazy game she was obliged to play against opponents she never saw.

"I don't know what you're talking about, Mother. It sounds like — well, tell me what happened."

Peggy took the towel from her face, gone strained and frightened, and sat up to talk in a hushed way.

A messenger—he wasn't in uniform, though she hadn't thought of this at the time—had come early last evening with a note from Judy. Peggy thought it was Judy's writing—still she hadn't looked closely. Mr. Tennant was waiting and she was in a hurry . . . Well, anyway, it was on the stationery of a Fabrique st. jeweler known all over the world. The note asked Peggy to send Judy's green beads with the messenger as the clasp was loose and needed repairing.

"The only green beads I could think of was that string of imitation jade and there wasn't a thing wrong with the clasp I could see . . . Still, I thought . . . At any rate, I put them in an envelope and the boy took them away on a run. The note must be around somewhere—"

She began to look about, searching in a troubled, jerky manner. "I remember now. He took the note. Come back for it. Judy, I hope—"

Judy thought of Tim Birke's warning "You're not to tell anyone—even your mother . . . A bigger matter than you can imagine . . ." Darn Tim Birke! But, there was no use worrying Peggy.

"It's—it's just a—a little joke."

She laughed, not very successfully. But it satisfied Peggy, who relaxed slowly. "Do you remember exactly what the note said, Mother? I—I'd love to know. You see I sort of wonder who would fancy those old glass beads."

"Why, I don't believe it mentioned the beads specifically, dear. I just jumped at the conclusion they were what you wanted. Let's see—I think 'necklace' was the word. Yes, that's it. 'The necklace with the green settings.' Funny how I twisted that around to read 'green beads.' But I WAS in a hurry."

"It doesn't matter. Not a bit. Only a little funny. Some day I'll tell you."

"Well, you haven't told me much of anything lately," Peggy replied rather wistfully.

Judy found Mr. Birke in Cecil Charles's quarters They both looked troubled and Birke was angry

She told about the note. Birke kept nodding and muttering. When the story was finished, he came to Judy, turned her about so the light was on her face.

"What I want to know," he said hoarsely, "is who you've been talking to."

"I haven't talked to anyone and don't you speak that way to me, Mr. Birke."

She Hadn't Talked

"H'm. Haven't talked to anyone, eh? Then what," he cried with a sort of furious triumph, "has become of your sailor friend? No, I'll make a guess! The wireless. Still it's no picnic, getting word to him that doesn't want to be grabbed once he burrows into the waterfront hash house. He must have jumped when we were pulling out. Come, now; who did you talk to?"

"I have not—oh, Capt'n Charley, you know I wouldn't be that stupid. I couldn't be! Why I told another it was a joke about the beads, so no one would think there was anything even to wonder about!"

They let her go. They told her it was all right. And let her go.

But she knew it was not all right. She hadn't talked. Yet Tris had managed to get information from her. Tris knew what they meant to do about the sailor

And Kit Camp knew something, too. Kit Camp knew she had not been hurt in an accident. How much more did he know?

One of them—Tris or Kit Camp —had warned the sailor. Helped him get away. Yesterday she would have been sure it was Tris But today . . .

Children React to Scolding, Often for the Worst

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to pick out any incident in a child's life and have it stand alone. Any reaction difficulties is the composite of former disciplines, former understanding (or misunderstanding) on the part of the parents. So, in the little incident of the high school lad who got into trouble lately. I do not offer the story per se, but as a concrete result of understanding help which the boy has received through his childhood, as opposed to similar cases where the boy has only met with a brief scolding and been returned to his former ways.

Constance Cameron

This little family is only fairly well off financially. The father is the superintendent of a factory and the boy attends high school. Last year the father spent a few hundred dollars of his hard earned money for a little second-hand car The family derived a great deal of enjoyment from it, and one day the boy took it out with another lad. The roads were slippery. In trying to pass another car the boy got too far to one side and the car slipped into the ditch and turned turtle.

When the father returned from work that evening he heard the details of the accident. The boy looked at his father, white and scared. "Well," said the father, "first of all, I am grateful to God that you are home safe. You were not hurt. That is the main thing."

"But the car——" said the boy. "It will take money to get it fixed up. You can't afford to spend a lot right now."

It developed that $110 would repair the car, but the money that the amount was needed for household necessities and his grief and shame were genuine.

"I'll tell you what I'll do, Dad," he said suddenly. "If you'll advance the money, I'll work this summer in the factory and pay you back."

Now, no one hated to see the boy give up his vacation any more than that father, but he thought carefully and answered, "All right son. We will fix it up that way."

You may instantly think of the many boys of this type who feel that as matter of course, Dad should supply them with cars and as a logical result pay damages when trouble occurs, the son in the case to go whistling away with no feeling of responsibility.

This unfair state of things is the fault of the parent, not the child. He has failed to teach responsibility.

In the story I've told you (which is not fiction but a true incident) the boy and father have always had a close friendly understanding. The boy knows the financial condition at home, and he does not think of it as DAD'S problem alone, but of his also. The father has been fair, and understanding and sensible with the boy, and in return, the boy is being square and honest with the father. His attitude toward this accident only reflects what he has been taught through kindly discipline and fair treatment all his life. It is the culmination of a lot of LITTLE problems which were solved in the RIGHT way since his babyhood

How to Write to the Man Who Married Another

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

Perhaps you can help me The chap I was at one time engaged to is now married and lives away from here. I would like to ask advice on a business matter which only he can help me with. Would it be right for me to write to him about this matter, which would be strictly business, or had I better wait for things to come that he is married." He has been married two years and in that time we haven't seen each other. I certainly wouldn't want to cause trouble but would like his advice on this point? Am not sure whether I should write him at all since he is married. What do you think?

WONDERING.

Dear Wondering. If you are sure that he is the only person who can give you advice on this problem of yours, I think that he will understand, and so will his wife if you write him to ask his advice But of course you must use tact, and carefully just how you word your letter; it must be dignified and dignified to the last degree, but not being unduly formal or stiff And then as you full well know, it is best

For the Hotel Guest

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

I expect shortly to go on a trip with my mother, and we shall be staying overnight at large hotels Should we each register separately or as "Mrs. Jones and son" or Jack Jones and mother?

When going out do we leave the key to our rooms with the desk clerk until our return, or should we carry the key with us?

While traveling is it permissable to have dinner while attired in business clothes, or should one dress formally. I am referring to dinner in a hotel dining room

JACK

1 It would be best if each registered separately. Your mother would register

Mrs. Henry Jones
Brooklyn, New York

And you would register in the next line

John Jones, Brooklyn, New York.

2 Either as you find it convenient. But since hotel keys are usually rather large and cumbersome, you probably find it more convenient to leave your key with the desk clerk

3 This depends on many things first on your own convenience, on the type of hotel at which you stop, on the amount of luggage and time that you have. Of course, it is always best to dress for dinner, if we can, for it is a sign of "civilization," or fine breeding and of a sure social sense But sometimes all of these have to give way when we are busy traveling

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

BUSINESS BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN INDUSTRY

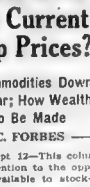
Why Not Stock Up at Current Cheap Prices?

Some Commodities Down 50% in Year; How Wealth Used to Be Made

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Sept. 12—This column is to direct attention to the opportunities now available to stock-up at extraordinarily low prices.

It is inconceivable that these prices can go much lower, whereas there is every likelihood, even certainty, that they will by and by go distinctly higher. The turn in some of them may come so suddenly and drastically that those caught bare of supplies may find themselves seriously handicapped in competing with rivals exercising better judgment.



B. C. Forbes

• • •

Certain commodities are actually selling at less than one-half their price a year ago—raw sugar, rubber, coffee, for example.

• • •

Wheat is down 38 per cent from this time last year. Cotton is down 41 per cent. Rye is down 43 per cent. Beef is down almost 50 per cent, flour 27½ per cent, cocoa 43 per cent. Butter and eggs likewise are cheaper.

Silk has fallen 42 per cent. Hides are down 28 per cent. Flaxseed is down 38 per cent.

Copper has tumbled no less than 39 per cent. Tin is down 34 per cent, zinc 36 per cent. Even steel billets have weakened almost 11½ per cent.

• • •

This table shows at a glance prices current this week as compared with one year ago:

	This Week	Year Ago	Inc. %
Wheat, Chicago	82	133	38
Wheat, Winnipeg	82	1 54	47
Rye	84½	1 48½	43
Cotton	11 50	18 90	41
Copper	8.00	13.00	38
Rubber	8.08	20.00	60
Sugar	1.19	2.25	53
Coffee	8.52	13.60	37
Cocoa	6.87	10.75	43
Flaxseed	1.93	3.11	38
Beef	20.00	38.00	47
Hides	14	19	26
Silk	4.50	7.75	42
Tin	29.65	44.88	34
Zinc	5.24	8.26	36
Lead	4.25	6.50	35

In the days when the common rule was for a business concern to be largely owned and run by one man, fortunes often were made by exercising foresight in contracting heavily for future deliveries of raw materials or finished goods when prices were abnormally low. Certain manufacturers and merchants, indeed, became famous for their ability to read the prices outlook in their line of business.

As corporations took the place of firms, this practice of trying to gauge the future prices became less common. Those who did not choose to anticipated scrubbed the action of others as "gambling." More recently so-called buying from hand-to-mouth has become a generally-accepted policy.

If certain of our old-time and wiseacres, men who proved extraordinarily successful, were at the helm today, one cannot imagine them being afraid to place generous contracts for future requirements at the bargain prices now ruling in various raw materials and other commodities.

Whenever a commodity sinks below the cost of producing it, little risk is involved in stocking up for future requirements.

That many things are today bringing less than the average cost of creating them is not disputed.

• • •

Such opportunities as exist today for buying cheap do not come very often in a lifetime. The question each manufacturer, jobber, merchant, trader, and speculator should ask himself is:

"Do the chances favor my making money rather than losing money by stocking up now?"

Often, inaction, born of timidity proves less profitable than courageous action.

Reserve Ratio Is Found Misleading

New York, Sept. 12—Dr B. M. Anderson, Jr., economist of Chase National Bank, New York states that gold holdings of Federal Reserve System are adequate to extend or even continue present cheap money policy of the system whenever trade justifies. This is recalled that on Aug. 27, the reserve ratio of the 12 reserve banks stood at 81.9 per cent.

"The fact is," he added, "that the reserve ratio is unofficial and misleading. It is a ratio of the total reserves of all the Federal Reserve Banks to their combined note and deposit liabilities. Such a ratio is unknown to the law which prescribes a minimum reserve of gold and lawful money of 35 per cent. against deposits."

Business Activity Recovery Is Seen

New York, Sept. 12 (AP)—Gradual recovery in business activity is seen by Eugene A. Canaliz, president of the New York Cocoa Exchange, in the heavy trading on the exchange during August. Turnover for August amounted to 2630 lots, or 34,961 tons the heaviest trading volume of any month since February and compared with 991 lots in July.

'SACRED COD' GOES SOUTH FOR WINTER

By FRANK H. MELOON

Manager Hugh Butler of the Boston division of the U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce is active these days, following his return from vacation, supplying interesting items of business and financial news. One of these items, just received, informs us that the "Sacred Cod," symbol of the thriving New England fisheries, follows the example of many wealthy Bostonians by going south during the winter months.

• • •

This habit of seeking a warmer climate when the cold comes in is one of the characteristics developed in the first of a series of extensive studies concerning the migratory habits of the cod. William E. Schroeder, assistant aquatic biologist of the Commerce Department's Bureau of Fisheries, has just brought out a comprehensive publication dealing with the life history of the cod off southern New England.

• • •

Morris Plan Bankers' Association holds its 11th annual convention the first three days of next week. Governor William Tudor Gardiner of Maine will greet the delegates at the opening at Poland Spring, Me. A program including business sessions and recreation for the three days has been completed under the supervision of Robert O. Bonnell, president of the association and also president of the Morris Plan Bank of Baltimore), and Frank L. Rawson, general convention chairman. Mr Rawson is president and treasurer of the Portland Morris Plan Bank.

Gov. Gardiner

• • •

Reverting to the codfish, little is known about the migratory habits of fishes in general, and the Fisheries Bureau has been studying on this question for many years. It is an important one, according to the bureau's commissioner, Louis Radcliffe, because it goes back to the fundamental problem of fish conservation.

• • •

Back of the scientific study of the habits of the codfish is the question of fish population of the banks off the coast of New England. There are 20 or more of these "submerged islands" laying off Cape Cod, Nantucket Shoals and the Maine coast. They vary in size from very small ones to some having an area of approximately 36,000 square miles.

• • •

Are these areas being depleted of fish? Are the fish there stay-at-home provincials, or are they wandering cosmopolitics? Where do the eggs come from to populate these banks? These are but few of many involved problems which must be met by the bureau's scientists and Mr Schroder's study attempts to give some basis and direction for future experiments.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Bearishly-inclined speculators have become more active, encouraged by the market's failure to make headway the last few days. They emphasize the lack of much encouraging trade news and the inability of the market to improve upon its recent advances.

The fact is, however, that the bull contingent very probably has been thoroughly satisfied with its success in carrying the market up to levels equivalent to its last high mark. A resting spell, technically, was entirely warranted, during which gains could be consolidated and another survey taken of the immediate prospects.

Thus far, certainly, there has been little upon which to base enthusiastic market activities, but the well-informed interests were not anticipating much cheer from business until the end of September and the month of October.

Woolworth Action Found Significant

The manner in which such issues as Woolworth have recently been taken emphasizes that at least a slight turn in retail business has already been experienced. Buying of Woolworth has been for the account of its officers, who are well placed in the matter of judging the business tide.

Character of Case Selling

Sharp setback in Case Threshing, following declaration here that its banking sponsors were virtually out of the market in this stock, led to conflicting reports regarding character of the selling. An active bear crowd undoubtedly is responsible for a good part of the pressure, but the failure of active support to develop is more significant.

Earnings Reports Comparisons Made

Earnings reports, compared with a year ago, and dividend announcements by leading companies shape up as follows:

	Since July 1	Additions yesterday
Increased earnings	203	3
Decreased earnings	455	4
Unchanged divd.	1068	21
Increased dividends	47	2
Decreased divd.	81	5

Liggett & Myers Rumor Is Good

Tobacco stocks have been acting well, and there is good reason for forecasts of record earnings this year. Rumors that some favorable dividend action will be taken by Liggett & Myers have some foundation. Some say it will be an increase in the regular dividend, some say it will be an extra dollar or two.

Utility Mergers Seen on the Way

Strength in certain power stocks is due to belief that merger negotiations have been resumed and that an announcement may be made before the end of the year.

Strength Seen as Significant

Strength of chain store, mail order and merchandising house shares is construed as constructive by the bulls. There hasn't been much increase in consumption of food products and other things people have to have, but the action of stocks in that class gives the impression that people believe such a development is not far off, and that holiday trade will be better than many predict.

Colorado Fuel Pool More Active

There have been signs the past few weeks of increased activity by the pool credited with operating in Colorado Fuel. Statements also have been made of prospective large rail orders. Colorado Fuel shares in the rail contracts of certain roads, but it is believed that tonnages placed by the carriers this year will be smaller than normal, so that Colorado Fuel's share will not be as large as in the past.

Commodity Prices Aid Woolworth

Declining commodity prices this year eventually should be reflected in a better margin of profit by Woolworth, according to economists. The financial position of the company would permit it to acquire any distress merchandise which may come on the market. Such acquisitions often result in a larger profit margin when goods are finally moved.

The company's growth has been spectacular since 1912. In that year there were 631 stores, with the working capital at $11,387,722, and the net asset value of the common stock at $3,364,799. For 1929 Woolworth operated 1825 stores, had a working capital of $48,367,521, and the net asset value of common stock was $158,804,830.

Pacific Lighting Rumors Revived

Better buying in Pacific Lighting has caused a revival of last year's rumors of an early merger of Pacific Coast utility companies. These reports have been circulated for some time and crop up whenever the far western issues show signs of moving ahead. Pacific Lighting is one of the favorites of the coast and many authorities say this issue is selling out of line with others in the utility group.

Burroughs Under Quiet Accumulation

Quiet accumulation has been reported in progress in Burroughs Adding Machine the past few weeks. The orders have been executed in such a manner that little attention has been attracted. The company is in strong financial position and any increase in earning power would be reflected in the common stock, since there are no bonds or preferred stock outstanding.

U. G. I. Earnings Bring Buyers

The fact that earnings of United Gas Improvement have continued good in the current year is one of the factors which is said to have resulted in bringing shrewd buyers into the issue. Although there was an increase of only $2,700,000 in gross earnings of the company during the first six months this year, the net for the common stock in the period rose approximately $3,900,000, or 22 per cent over the same 1929 half-year.

The company has among its important holdings a one-third interest in Public Service Corp. and this is looked upon as one of its strong factors. It has holdings also in Niagara Hudson Power, Common wealth & Southern, American Superpower, American Public Utilities and Midland Utilities. Because of its ownership of nearly 27 per cetn of U. G. I. stock United Corp. is a dominant factor in the organization.

PRICES HIGHER IN BOSTON DEALINGS

Prices were worked to higher levels in dull trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. Changes for the most part were confined to a narrow range. Investment trust issues maintained the steadiness that was evident in the forenoon part of the session.

Point gains were recorded for Edison, Boston & Maine prior preferred and Boston & Providence. Gillette reacted slightly from its high, showing a gain of nearly a point around the close.

Fractional losses were shown by United Shoe, Massachusetts Utilities and Boston Personal. Fruit dropped over a point. Shawmut, United Founders, American Foundere and Employers group all moved in a narrow range. Westinghouse was fractionally higher.

Among new tax refunds announced in Washington today was one to the Boston listed Torrington Company of $96,820.

World-wide business of Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada this year shows an increase to date of 11 per cent over the 1929 period, despite the fact that 1929 was an abnormal year.

Assets of the company this year are $400,000,000 ahead of last year, Vice-President Wood said. He estimated the company's new business in the United States this year will be $300,000,000, against $232,000,000 last year and $21,000,000 in 1925.

State St. heard a report today that a Gillette and Auto-Strop merger would be announced before long. Some brokers attribute the recent rises entirely to short covering.

CURB MARKET REACTIONARY

New York, Sept. 12—The curb market reacted sharply in the final hour today, and generally lower prices were the rule. Scattered short covering was in evidence, but the rank and file of trading favorites finished off near low levels of the day.

Utility stocks were the most severely depressed in the late selling drive, but, on the whole, declines were of moderate proportions. Electric Bond & Share sold off from its early high of 85¼ to 83½, for a fractional loss.

Other active issues, such as American Superpower, American Gas & Electric, American Light & Traction, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, Niagara Hudson Power, United Gas New and United Light & Power, dipped slightly, with subsequent rallies in a few of these bringing them close to their final levels of yesterday.

Cities Service sold off to 28⅞, for a loss of ⅝ at its extreme low, only to recover fractionally before the finish.

Investment Trusts were lower, with Goldman Sachs reacting to 18⅛ for a decline of 1⅜.

Imperial Oil of Canada was in the van of a firm oil section, advancing almost 2 points to 23⅞, before giving way slightly.

American Cyanamid B broke sharply to a new low for the year at 16½, a loss of more than 3 points, on announcement that the dividend had been passed. Other industrial shares ruled easier.

Cotton Easy in New York Market

New York, Sept. 12—Cotton futures today closed easy, 19 to 33 points lower, October 10.97-98; December 11.13; January 11.18-20; New Contracts—October 10.89-90; December 11.06-10; January 11.15-16; March 11.31-32; May 11.50-51; July 11.66-67. Spot quiet; Middling 11.05.

Bond Market Stays Firm Though Quiet

New York, Sept. 12—The listed bond market stayed firm though quiet today. Trading developed few features, aside from the general upward tendencies manifested by investment issues.

Low coupon carrier obligations of the high ratings met fair inquiry, although small accessions were scattered through the group.

Marking "ACHIEVEMENTS of WORLD IMPORTANCE"

. . . 2 out of 3 credited to Hearst Papers

From Editor and Publisher's Review of American Journalism in 1929:

Perhaps the year's outstanding development was in the field of newspaper enterprise, three achievements of world importance having been promoted by Americans. We think of the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic expedition, the globe voyage of the Graf Zeppelin with a crew of 42 and 18 passengers, also a Hearst exploit, and the adventure of Byrd and his staff in flying over the South Pole.

—Editor and Publisher—
International Year Book for 1930

—certainly an authoritative recognition of the alertness and enterprise of the Hearst papers in covering, indeed in creating, world news.

This vision, this aggressiveness, this grasp of what the public wants, what commands its interest, are among the factors responsible for the dominant position Hearst papers occupy today in American journalism.

It is this leadership which established the increasing earning power they now enjoy. Following large officer-employee subscription, opportunity for the public to acquire an ownership interest in these enterprises is now made available through

HOW'S BUSINESS?

ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY

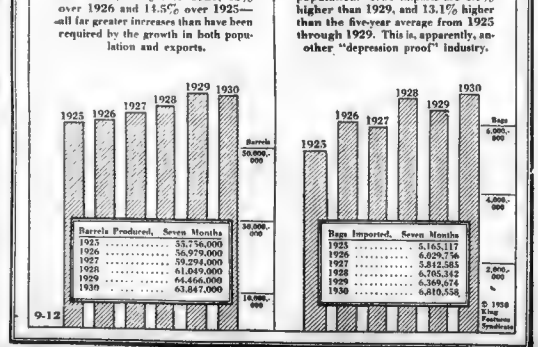
By FRELING FOSTER

Flour and Coffee Having Very Good Year

The production of wheat flour and the importation of coffee in the United States during the first seven months of 1930 are compared with the corresponding figures for the past five years. Flour Source: U. S. Bureau of the Census. Coffee Source: New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange.

Wheat Flour Production

In 1930, the production of wheat flour—the basic ingredient of our "staff of life"—is only 1% under 1929. Compared with the normal years, it is 4.6% over 1928, 7.7% over 1927, 12% over 1926 and 14.5% over 1925—all far greater increases than have been required by the growth in both population and exports.



Coffee Imports

The importation of coffee—another indispensible item of human consumption—seems to enjoy a constant growth far exceeding the increase in population. 1930 imports are 6.9% higher than 1929, and 13.1% higher than the five-year average from 1925 through 1929. This is, apparently, another "depression proof" industry.

NEW YORK STOCKS — Today's Complete Prices and Dividends

SELLING GROWS ACTIVE IN WALL STREET TRADING

New York, Sept. 12—Efforts of the bulls to give the stock market an upward tilt toward the close of the week, as they have for three weeks past, were thwarted by an active selling movement in the last hour of trading today.

Operators for the advance found the technical position of the market weakened, and were unaided by the short covering which has appeared toward the close of other weeks. On the contrary, week-end adjustment of accounts brought out more retirement of long than short contracts, some of which may have been in preparation for quarterly income tax payments due Monday.

BEARS ARE AGGRESSIVE.

Bears were encouraged to launch their most aggressive attack of the week. Advances recorded in utility, motor, chain and miscellaneous issues in the middle of the day were lost.

Such issues as Westinghouse Electric, American Telephone, Fox Film, Motor Wheel, American Can, Union Pacific, Sears Roebuck, Macy and United Aircraft lost about 2 to 5 points.

U. S. Steel, General Electric, Radio, Radio Keith and Consolidated Gas also sagged moderately. The closing tone was heavy. Total sales approximated 1,900,000 shares.

INCLINED TO SAG

The market was inclined to sag for a time in the morning, but the trend was turned before midday. American Tobacco "A"-stock, Power and Light, National Power and Light, Electric Power and Light, Consolidated Gas, Pacific Lighting, National Biscuit, Coca Cola, U. S. Steel, Westinghouse Electric, McKeesport, Worthington, Gillette, Grand-Silver, F. W. Grant, Interstate Department Stores, and Kroger Grocery gained about one to two points.

International Telephone, Curtis Publishing, Vanadium, Auto Strop and Eastman advanced about 2 to 3. Higher fliers were International Business Machines, and Newton Steel, up 6 and more.

Case, however, dropped a few points, and Sears Roebuck was under pressure.

Along with the move in the utilities was heard considerable gossip in brokerage circles about a big merger being arranged by the Electric Bond and Share interests. This old rumor has been brought out and trotted out so often that it doesn't make much impression any more, but still Wall Street cannot be surprised if the Bond and Share properties were eventually unified.

A & P REPORT AIDS

The merchandising shares were piped by the August report of great Atlantic and Pacific, showing a new high record, about 41 per cent over August of 1929, and the statement of the management that all indices led it to look for continued improvement during the autumn and winter.

Sears Roebuck's report for the ninth period of its 13-month calendar, however, showed a drop of 14 per cent from last year. A considerable number of merchandising organizations, however, are reporting definite improvement. Several shares having strong market sponsorship were advanced substantially.

On the whole, the day's news was inconclusive. Against further improvement in steel scrap prices price reductions in black and galvanized steel sheets were announced by Chicago jobbers. Balancing new cent retail gasoline price cuts, was further firmness in wholesale gasoline at Chicago.

In the non-ferrous metals, August copper statistics were again unsatisfactory, showing further piling up of refiners' stocks. Although large producers are still asking 11 cents a pound, few sales over 10¾ cents have been made lately. Silver prices, however, were a little firmer.

Further heaviness of the wheat market was used as a basis for further selling of the farm implements, and Case broke several points during the morning, momentarily unsettling the entire list.

Money continued plentiful, as new funds poured into banks in preparation for the Sept. 15 settlements. Call money officially renewed at 2½ per cent, but was soon being offered outside at 1¾.

Grains Are Easier in Chicago Market

Chicago, Sept. 12—Grains closed easier today. Wheat was down ⅝ to 1¾c, corn 1⅝ to 2¾c, oats 1 to 1¼c and rye ½ to 1¾c. September wheat slumped to 80¾c in late trading to a new low on the crop. New lows for other wheat futures established were December 85-85¾c, March 89-89¾c and May 92-92½c.

Bond Offerings in Week Are Larger

New bond offerings for the week were about double those of last week. The total this week was $134,296,000, against $67,198,000 last week and $131,695,000 in the like week last year.

Fisk Rubber Plant Increases Output

Fisk Rubber Co. at Chicopee Falls will increase its production schedule to five days a week from four, effective Monday, it was announced.

The change effects 1700 employes.

Int. Telephone's Earnings Increase

International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation and associated companies report net for quarter ended June 30 was $4,472,092 after charges, against $3,353,739 in preceding quarter.

Butler Dodges League Court Issue Again; Cannot Forget He's Old-Fashioned Reactionary

If William M. Butler were not living in the political past, he would be aware by this time that the voters of Massachusetts dislike to be regarded as mere schoolchildren, to be treated with contempt and disregard of their mental faculties.

Butler and Eben S. Draper responded to a questionnaire in which the League of Women Voters sought their viewpoints and attitudes on many of the important issues to be acted upon by the next session of the United States Senate.

One of these questions was whether they would vote to put the United States into the League Court of the League of Nations under the terms of the Root-Hurst formula. This is the most offensive formula because it is the most dangerous and most un-American of all the schemes to undermine the independence of the United States in its foreign policies.

Draper replied with the courage and frankness which the people of this State expect of those who seek their votes:

"I am opposed to the United States interfering in the political affairs of European nations, and it must not permit interference by those nations in the affairs of the Western Hemisphere. It is my belief that the pending protocol fails to give us the protection on which we insist."

Mr. Butler's reply was singularly and characteristically evasive. He said he had not read the pro-Court protocol and he would prefer to reply to that question after he had had a chance to study it.

* * *

The Root-Hurst scheme which Mr. Butler says he has not seen or read was produced exactly nine months ago. It was published in every newspaper in the United States. It has been debated from one end of this country to the other.

Mrs. McCormick and Senator Deneen made it the sole issue of their campaign in Illinois, a campaign which commanded the attention of the country and which resulted in the defeat of Deneen, who, like Butler, had voted for the League Court.

Former United States Senator George Wharton Pepper debated it from a dozen rostrums, discussed it in radio speeches and in conspicuous articles in many journals of national circulation, including the Saturday Evening Post and the Hearst newspapers. Although he had been for the Court in the past, Mr. Pepper denounced this latest scheme as a pernicious betrayal of the United States, as a base surrender of its sovereignty.

The American Federation of Women's Clubs, in its annual convention, adopted unanimously a resolution assailing this latest un-American venture into the hazards of foreign diplomacy, and conducted a radio campaign against it which enlisted the interest of people everywhere.

* * *

But why go on? If Mr. Butler has not informed himself on this subject, which is the most vital issue of foreign policy which will command the attention of the Senate in which he seeks to sit and vote, HE DEMONSTRATES A NEGLIGENCE WHICH UTTERLY UNFITS HIM FOR THE HIGH PUBLIC OFFICE.

If he knows anything about the League Court—and he ought to, because he once voted for it—he is guilty of a cowardly and inept attempt to deceive and mislead the people of Massachusetts.

Butler and Draper were asked in the same interrogation their attitude on national maternity benefits legislation. Draper replied he was opposed to the national legislation, because he regarded it as an unwarranted interference with the rights and duties of the states in this matter.

Butler replied, with characteristic evasion, that he did not have the legislation before him and had not come to any opinion about it.

The fact is that Draper solicits the support of the voters of Massachusetts with a dignified and democratic respect for their intelligence and for their right to ascertain the attitude of the candidates who would represent them in the National Congress.

The further fact is that Butler, having been a lobbyist and an Old Guard reactionary all his life, resents this spirit of the people. He would prefer the old boss-controlled convention system, which he manipulated until the people stripped gang politicians of this unsavory power. With that gone he chooses to employ the device of evasion, seemingly in the belief that the people are unintelligent and politically inert. AND FOR THAT REASON HE OUGHT TO BE DEFEATED.

Potential Murderers

Drunken Drivers; Reckless Drivers

A drunken driver is a potential murderer. A reckless driver is a constant menace to life and limb.

Yet a Boston motorist convicted forty-nine times of violating the speed laws of this Commonwealth was fined five dollars, says an official report.

Forty-four times he had been licensed by the courts to use the highways of this State for a speedway, to endanger at his own sweet will the property and the lives of innocent pedestrians and of the vast majority of his fellow autoists who drive with caution and with regard for the safety of their neighbors.

This extraordinary case would be dismal enough if it had no counterpart.

But the records reveal that scores upon scores of reckless drivers convicted from three to twenty times have been allowed by the courts either to go scot free or with a fine of five dollars, which amounts to no fine at all.

A study of these records further discloses that "to a considerable extent the drunken drivers are persons with long previous records," and it prompts the Commissioner of Probation to declare that the character of the previous offenses "is peculiarly of the sort that would seem to have disqualified the drunken driver from the privilege of operating a motor vehicle even before his arrest for operating under the influence of liquor."

What about all this?

If we know anything about the automobile laws of this Commonwealth—and the Boston Evening American conducted the campaign which resulted in the passage of the laws designed to eliminate the drunken and dangerously reckless autoist—they are being ignored and abused by either the courts, or the State Registry of Motor Vehicles, or by both.

These laws provide for the speed maniacs arbitrarily severe penalties which the courts are presumably permitted no discretion to render null and void.

Secondly, the courts are required by law to transmit the record of these convictions to the State Registrar and he is required automatically to suspend or revoke their licenses to operate autos and again endanger the safety of the law-abiding drivers and citizens.

These laws were intended to prevent the favoritism of which the judges are obviously guilty and of which the State Registry stands on the record as being guilty.

They have licensed drivers who by record are a menace to safety. The courts have failed to penalize them. The State officials return them their licenses, which is the equivalent of saying to them, "Go out and violate the laws again."

These judges, from the highest down to the lowest village police court, issue long screeds on the sanctity of law and order and even-handed justice and by their own acts give the lie to the creed they preach.

The State officials assemble conferences through which the autoists are urged to exercise care in order that the regrettable death toll may be reduced and on that very day authorize the return to the highways of the reckless drivers who most imperil safety.

They should begin today to set the example. They have it within their power to relieve the menace which they condemn. The drunken driver, the reckless driver should be punished to the full extent of the law, and the privilege of driving a car should be forever taken from him.

Good News From John F.

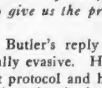
The news from the hospital that John F. Fitzgerald is being steadily, if slowly, restored to health is comforting. His radiant personality, his unfailing optimism and his striking ability as an executive have made him a beloved and admired figure in the life of Boston and New England. We express the genuine hope of all that he may soon be able to resume activity among us.

New York Day-by-Day

Ladies in Black—How to Wear a Sport Shirt—Yellow Tomatoes

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 12—Thoughts while strolling: Gentle ladies in black who sit quietly feeding pigeons in library park. E. A. Rolfe plays tunes I like. Those out-door sey men with springy walks. Nobody wears a sport shirt like John Barrymore. Or a dinner suit like Jack Buchanon.



Arthur McKeogh, a Troy boy, who made good in the city. Clouds like torn wool tipped with fluffs of pink. Wonder what would happen to Lillian Gish in a windstorm? Buses to the right, autos to the left and trolleys in front—but here I go like a cutter in the wind. And I made it!

Splotched geometrical canvases galleries kid us is art, the teases! Never heard anyone use acerbity in conversation. And Rupert Hughes is the only person I ever heard use deracinate. I could follow those fascinating Albino twins all day. Turn over collars with square corners again.

John W. Thomason, Jr., the writing, fighting marine. And he sketches, too. A new 5 and 10 I have not prowled through. Fred and Betsy Drake. The hat makers better do something about the bare-headed business. Howard Acton and Julius Tannen look alike. Wish I could run across yellow tomato preserves.

Moneta, who runs the Italian cafe in Mulberry st. Where judges and lawyers go. And who looks like an E. Phillips Oppenheim count. People from South Africa interest me. But I'm surprised when they don't carry spears. Whatever became of hand-painted coal vases?

Timid tenement tots—alliteration without a struggle—who drag kindling wagons across town. The eagle-like gaze of Max Steur, the criminal lawyer. Those alert, freshly shaven Mannies with Russian complexes but quick on a speakeasy draw. Flora Zabelle, Raymond Hitchcock's widow.

Never knew a man to pass an open coal hole without peering down. Ask somebody: "What is a spiral stairway?" They'll do it every time. Benny Leonard grows chubby, too. The Caledon's on 26th st. where O. Henry lived. In Europe they would buy the site and erect a monument.

* * *

The new Waldorf, whose riveting across the way still has me nose-thumbing it in spare time, will feature "boudoir baths"—baths 25 feet square, equipped like a miniature gymnasium.

* * *

A Sixth ave. bird store has—or had—a bright freckle-faced pessimist who arrived early the other morning. Deciding, as the front door was locked, it would be innocent diversion to give the birds freedom of the store, he did. Someone opened the door in midst of the fun and 200 birds winged out and upward. A window card heralds: "Boy wanted."

* * *

A frequent day dream is buying a dog shop and giving each dog a swell home away from auction block stuffiness.

I inquired the cost of all dogs in a shop on 48th st., was told it totaled $14,320, waved to an imaginary acquaintance outside and hippety hopped to greet him.

* * *

I am an occasional patron of an Armenian restaurant on Washington st.—reveling in native dishes. The other night passing the kitchen I peeked in for a glimpse of the cook, expecting a figure in a fez with perhaps a rug over his arm. Instead I saw a fat American negress with a red bandana around her neck perspiring over an old fashioned stove. I don't believe now there is a Dorothy Parker.

In the same cafe I met a gentleman whose hobby for 50 years is tracing the birthplace of Columbus. He is not certain it is Milan or Genoa and won't give up.

"You often," writes F. S., Dodge City, "talk about shrill winds around the Flatiron building. Come to Kansas this fall and catch at the tails of our playful tornadoes."

Aside from being no good whatever in a breeze I can get into correspondence with the funniest people.

The latest, as of September 18, in speakeasy cocktails, comes from the East 50's, called "The Number"—meaning it makes you numb.

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

A New Life Machine or a New Part?

FROM THIS extreme stage of reversed development of de-differentiation, as the process is called, there is no recovery. But at any time before the heart stops we can revive the animal by putting it into clean water.

H. G. Wells

Surprisingly swiftly it organizes itself again, and in a few days the shapeless blob is transformed into a working Clavellina, a little smaller than the one with which we started, true, but otherwise healthy. Moreover, it is a newer, younger animal than the original one. The process can be repeated and the animal made to degenerate and revive again until it reaches a certain minimum size; then it will not work any more.

But here there is a difficulty. Has a single individual been rejuvenated here or has one piece of matter doffed an old individuality to become clothed later in a new one? Is this the same Clavellina? Whichever way we answer the question the fact remains that the animal has passed through an obliteration, temporary or definitive, of its essential character.

However, there are a number of examples where this difficulty does not confront us. The best studied is that of Planarians. It has long been known that these little flat worms can survive prolonged starvation by living on themselves, growing smaller the while. They can draw on their own tissues, and convert them little by little into food to satisfy their daily needs.

Men or dogs or hens can only do this to a limited extent. They can use up perhaps half their total capital of living substance before they are reduced to skin and bone, as the saying goes, and succumb. The first drafts are made upon the reserve stores of fat and glycogen (the readiness with which fat breaks down makes it possible for hibernating animals to survive the Winter), then upon the actual living substance of glands and muscles and to a less extent of connective tissue.

A Guide to the 1930 No. 1 Act

By ARTHUR BAER

THE MOST AMAZING sidewalk is the curb of the Palace Theater on Broadway. That's where the vaudevillians stand waiting, as Violinski said, for the talkies to blow over.

* * *

The talkies haven't blown over. But they have blown everything else over.

* * *

There was a time when the small-time variety performer could appear in the flesh. Now he must appear in technicolor or nothing.

* * *

The struggle between the dramatic stage and the talkies seems to have ended in a tie game. There is room for both of them, and the warring factions finally seem to realize it.

* * *

But there doesn't seem to be room for the oldtime number one acts. A number one act is the performance that opens a vaudeville show and plays to good audiences in the aisles.

* * *

Unfortunate, indeed, and this line may have been wired for a brutal sound, but you can multiply a number one act by a million and still have a number one act.

* * *

The number one actors were never going anywhere. They just plugged along for years, unhonored, unrecognized and unsung by critics. Now it has been crowded loose by the short-reel comedies, the animated cartoons and the news celluloid.

* * *

When you walk along the palace curb you can recognize them by the way they stand and gesture. The boys with the baggy knees are the mammy singers. The ones with the scorched teeth are the flame-breathers who touched powerful carbons to their lips and then blew little forest fires over old ladies in the fifth row.

* * *

The Arabian acrobats are easily spotted because they spend the day leaning on each other. The little man is a spy for the midgets and goes around finding out what the big people are doing.

* * *

Over against the wall is a crippled sword swallower who foolishly took a bow in the middle of his act and sawed himself in half. The most difficult group to pass is a knot of 11 ventriloquists who stand there day after day. The conversation is loud and intelligent without a single one of the 11 saying a word.

* * *

The policeman on the beat has given up the job of making the huddle of ventriloquists unhuddle themselves because he gets plenty of insults and cannot locate them.

* * *

Barrel jumpers, jugglers, contortionists, clay modelers and wire-walkers are all lined up waiting for the talkies to get a cold in the head. The man who played the hind legs of a clown horse is there with knees bent from a successful tour back in 1896.

* * *

It was a good act until he quarreled with the front legs and the horse walked off in two different directions without a surgical operation. They are all there and they are all waiting for the talkies to blow over. The man who trained the pigeons is also there with his entire act inside him. He ate it, one by one.

* * *

It's tragedy enough, but not so heart-rending for actors who never saw an audience seated.

Keep Close to Your Hurdle

That Means Keep Close to Your Work

WHICH GIRL WON?

There is a moral for every girl and young man in this picture, and the moral is: DON'T WASTE ENERGY GOING UP INTO THE AIR. A man who knows anything about athletics, looking at this picture of girls racing over hurdles in England, is not surprised to hear that the girl in the middle won, which she DID.

You select that girl to be the winner because she goes over the hurdle STICKING AS CLOSE TO IT AS POSSIBLE.

The girls on either side of her, whom she beat in this race, may be more powerful than she. Perhaps if they had known how to go over hurdles both could have beaten her.

But, as you see, they use their energy GOING UP IN THE AIR. She stays as close to the ground as she can without hitting the hurdle, doing just what is necessary to get over—AND SHE WINS.

You see a great race horse covering the ground at terrific speed, his feet barely rising above the turf. Every inch he raises his hoof above the ground is an inch of energy WASTED. The powerful hind legs propel his body forward. The front legs, which are supports holding his weight as he lands from each stride, skim over the surface as close to it as possible.

What applies to jumping hurdles, jumping and to racing applies to WORK.

STICK CLOSE TO YOUR WORK, don't go off to one side, and, above all, don't go up in the air discoursing of your own magnificent qualities and lack of appreciation on the part of your boss.

Let him attend to HIS job; you attend to YOURS. Avoid waste of motion, wasted effort, and for your own good remember that the worst kind of waste is envy and complaining.
